How Secret German Agents Strive, by Whispered Scandal, to Cause Disunion in America

Malicious and Unfounded Stories Circulated to Raise Race and Religious Issue, to Array Class Against Class and to Hamper War Work by Giving an Impression of Unfairness and Discrimination.

This is the second of a series of three articles on "The German Whisper" by Mr. O'Higgins to be printed in the Post-Dispatch. The third will be printed next Sunday

By HARVEY O'HIGGINS,

Associate Chairman of the Committee on Public Information.

IN a previous article we have noted how the German agents in this country are using their "whispering propaganda" to set us against the French, the British and the Japanese by circulating among us all sorts of slanders and ill reports against these allies. In the campaign to promote domestic disunity the pro-German rumormonger has been even busier. He is working here, exactly as he worked in Italy, upon religious prejudices. He has spread the report that the Masonic orders have protested to the Government against the Knights of Columbus being permitted to build recreation huts in the camps. No such protest was ever made. He has circulated stories that Catholic nuns were refused permission to do Red Cross work unless they wore Red Cross uniforms, and that Catholic soldiers—and Jewish soldiers—were being discriminated against by Red Cross officials. All such stories are outright inventions. At the same time he passes around every kind of rumor of Catholic disloyalty, such as the famous one that President Wilson's secretary, a Catholic, had been executed for treason. He has filled the mails with printed copies of an alleged "bloody oath of the Knights of Columbus," giving it on the pretended authority of the Congressional Record. It was printed in the Record because it was read into a debate before the House of Representatives on an election protest, in order that it might be denounced as a forgery and a libel upon a Catholic candidate. A pro-German agent has been caught distributing copies of this "bloody oath" in New Jersey and sent to prison for it.

> ALONG with the campaign to set the farmer against the Government's war measure, there has been proceeding a twin campaign to arouse feeling against him by accusing his farmers' leagues of disloyalty. That is equally a work in aid of the enemy. The western farmers have contributed their quotas to enlistments and to the drafts as loyally as any citizens. They have subscribed to Liberty loans and to the war reliefs with unfailing patriotism. They had their quarrels with the men whom they suspected of exploiting them just as labor has had its quarrels with its employers. But it is an economic quarrel, and, as long as it is conducted without interfering with the nation's war work, the charge of disloyalty is in itself traitorous.—HARVEY O'HIGGINS.

All Things to All Men

In Spain and the Catholic countries of South America the Kaiser poses as "the champion of Catholic Bavaria and Catholic Austria against Protestant England, infidel France and Socialistic Italy, the enemy of the Vatican." He does not preserve that pose in Catholic Belgium or Catholic Poland. And in America the Kaiserite uses this very claim of the Kaiser to arouse enmity against the Catholics, just as in Italy the German agent used it in an unsuccessful attempt to seduce the Italian Catholics, and now in America accuses the Italian Catholics of having succumbed to the seduction. As a matter of fact, the Catholic chaplains in the Italian army were among the first to discover this propaganda among the soldiers, reported it to the officers, and combated it diligently.

Various persons and publications that made a living out of sectarian animosities before the war are unconsciously doing the work of the enemy by assisting the spread of anti-Catholic and anti-Protestant slanders. They can only be stopped by an appeal to public reprobation. They are representing the trouble in Ireland as purely a religious trouble, and the opposition to conscription in Quebec as the same sort of thing. Even Rudyard Kipling recently fell into the trap and denounced the Pope and the Kaiser and the neutrals in one breath. Such denunciations overlook the fact that Cardinal Mercier, the Catholic prelate of Belgium, has been the most effective popular opponent of the Kaiser that Europe has produced. This is a war of nations, not of creeds. Prussia is as Protestant a nation as England is, and Belgium and Poland as Catholic as Austria. Anyone who raises the religious question in America today is acting as a German agent, whether he knows it or not, as truly as if he were blowing up munition plans. All loyal citizens should discourage him.

Aggravating Our Race Problems

Among the negroes the German propagandist first began work in the South and failed. He has been more successful in the Middle West, where the presence of a large loyal German population gives him better cover. He is promising the negroes that the Kaiser will give them social equality with the whites. An agent, recently captured in New York, was offering the negroes a "black republic" under German protection, and he was denounced to the authorities by the negroes themselves. Another was spreading reports of discriminations against negro soldiers in the camps, reporting that the negroes were being trained "shock troops," to be sacrificed in the front lines, and even circulating a story that the German military authorities had ordered all negro prisoners killed. Thus far this sort of German effort to aggravate a race problem has been an absurd failure. Its only danger is that it may lead to charges of disloyalty against our colored citizens and a suspicion of them which is not justified. To allow the German intrigue to arouse a prejudice against the negro would aid the enemy as much as if he succeeded in organizing the negro in disloyalty. Discourage such a prejudice wherever you find it, Mr. Citizen. It is being promoted by the Kaiserite.

In order to obtain a supply of castor oil for lubricating airplane engines the Government contracted for the planting of 85,000 acres of castor beans in the gulf states. After the contracts had been divided among the subcontractors German agents circulated a report among the farmers that the castor beans exhaust the soil. There is no truth in that; but before the Government learned what was going on many of the farmers had canceled their contracts. The lie has now been contradicted and the beans are being grown.

Working on the Farmer

This is typical of German methods not only in this country, but abroad. In Italy the propaganda that opened the Italian lines was preceded by a long drive against the farming communities. An agrarian sentiment was procured against the war, against the high cost of labor and necessary supplies, against the drafting of farm workers and against the Government control of the price of wheat and breadstuffs. Crop shortages resulted and a bread famine ensued. A similar campaign is now proceeding in America.

Alien-enemy farmers have been secretly counseled to hoard their wheat; several such hoarders have been caught by the Food Administration and their grain has been confiscated. For the loyal farmer a concerted attempt is being made to present his war-time problems to him as a class grievance. He is being assured that he alone is being hampered by price-fixing, while all other industries and businesses are left free to profiteer. Men of undoubted loyalty, eager to increase our food supplies, are innocently assisting the German program by such statements as the following from a recent address made to Eastern farmers by a college president:

"Why should the food producer be singled out for the role of a public benevolent institution?" "Why deny the farmer alone the market price of his skill and labor?" "Why attempt to regulate the prices of farm products?" "We have tried that experiment with wheat, and we have sent the price of corn above wheat, compelling the farmer to feed wheat to his poultry and animals and discouraging him in the planting of winter wheat." "In spite of all appeals, the farmers have not planted substantially more winter wheat than they planted in 1914. I believe it is no exaggeration to say that we are confronted with the danger of starvation in the next 12 months. The energies of our farmers are paralyzed by price fixing and the fear of price fixing. Does the Government want to stimulate agricultural production? Then strike the shackles off the farmer and leave him as free as other producers. In the name of common sense, of justice and of patriotism, I make this appeal to the President and Congress."

Farmer Is Not Discouraged

As a matter of fact, it is not true that the American farmer has been discouraged in the planting of winter wheat. He has seeded this year 42,170,000 acres of winter wheat. That is 2,000,000 acres more than the year before, 150,000 acres more than ever before, and 7,000,000 acres more than his average acreage before the European war began. The December estimate of the Department of Agriculture placed his yield of winter wheat at 122,000,000 bushels more than last year's crop. And the reports that have since been received by the department indicate that the December estimate was too low by 30,000,000 bushels.

It is equally untrue that the "price of corn has

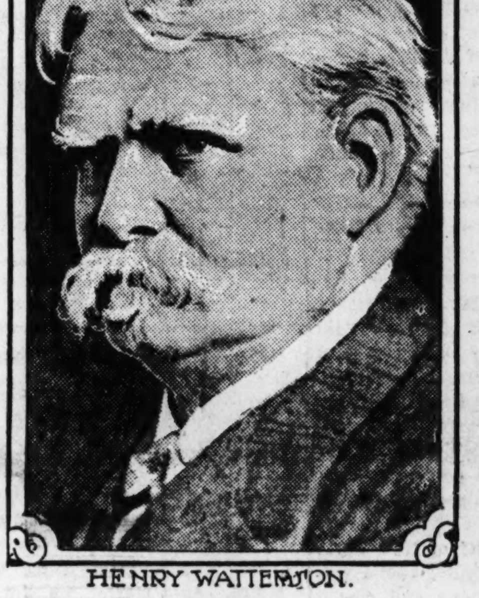
Henry Watterson's Editorials That Won Joseph Pulitzer Prize

Adjudged Year's Best in American Papers

Two Articles Were Selected by Columbia University Trustees Under the Will of the Late Owner of the Post-Dispatch and the New York World Providing, in Connection With the School of Journalism Which He Founded, for an Annual Award of $500.

UNDER the will of the late Joseph Pulitzer, owner of the Post-Dispatch and New York World, provision was made in connection with the bequest establishing a school of journalism at Columbia University, New York City, for the award of a prize of $500 yearly for the "best editorial article written during the year, the test of excellence being clearness of style, moral purpose, sound reasoning and power to influence public opinion in the right direction."

The trustees of the University have just announced the award of the prize for this year to the Louisville Courier-Journal. The award is based upon two editorials, one called "Vae Victis," published April 7, 1917, and the other published April 10, 1917, entitled, "War Has Its Compensations." It has developed since the award was made, that both were written by Col. Watterson, the Courrier-Journaal's veteran editor.



HENRY WATTERSON.

Of Col. Waterson, who is 79 year old and, by the way, is just recovering from a serious illness, it may be said, that "Age cannot whiter him nor custom stale his infinite variety." When in good health, he turns out his daily editorial, with the enrve and enthusiasm of youth. It is the Colonel's nature to write "with a punch" and his leaders are as vigorous in composition today as ever.

Both editorials that figured in the prize award were written "in the course of the day's work." They are typical, not unusual, and the Colonel never gave a thought to the possibility that they might bring him such conspicuous commendation. His winning of the prize when all but ready to turn his eightieth milestone recalls the amusing little rebuke that Longfellow administered to the kids at Bowdoin College on the fiftieth reunion of the class of 1825:

"Cato learned Greek at eighty; Sophocles
Wrote his grand Oedipus, and Simondes
Bore off the prize of verse from his compeers
When each had numbered more than four-score years.

"And Theophrastus, at four-score and ten,
Had but begun his 'Characters of Men;'
Chaucer, at Woodstock, with the nightingales,
At sixty wrote the Canterbury Tales;
Goethe, at Weimar, toiling to the last,
Completed Faust when eighty years were past.

"And as the evening twilight fades away
The sky is filled with stars, invisible by day."

The Post-Dispatch reproduces herewith the two editorials that won the prize:

• "VAE VICTIS."

"Rally round the flag, boys"—Uncle Sam's Battle song; Proud bird of Liberty screams through the air!"
"Sound the bold anthem! War dogs are howling." —The Hunters of Kentucky.

It is with solemnity, and a touch of sadness, that we write the familiar words of the old refrain beneath the invocation to the starry banner, the breezy call of hero-breeding bombast quite gone out of them; the glad shout of battle; the clarion note of defiance; because to us, not as to Nick of the Woods, and his homely co-mates of the forest, but rather as to the men of '61, comes this present call to arms.

We may feel with the woman's heart of Rankin of Montana, yet repudiate with manly disdain the sentimental scruples of Kitchin or North Carolina.

There are times when feeling must be sent to the rear; when duty must toe the line; when the aversion brave men have for fighting must yield to the adjuration, "Give me liberty or give me death!" That time is now upon us.

Unless Patrick Henry was wrong—unless Washington and the men of the Revolution were wrong, that time is upon us. It is a lie to pretend that the world is better than it was; that men are truer, wiser; that war is escapable; that peace may be had for the planning and the asking. The situation which without any act of ours rises before us is as exigent as that which rose before the Colonists in America when a mad English King, claiming to rule without accountability, asserted the right divine of Kings and sent an army to enforce it. A mad German Emperor, claiming partnership with God, again elevates the standard of right divine and bids the world to worship, or die.

From the beginning the issue was not less ours than of the countries first engaged. Each may have had ends of its own to serve. Nor were these ends precisely alike. At least France—to whom we owe all that we have of sovereignty and freedom—and Belgium, the little David of nations—fought to resist invasion; wanton, cruel slavery, savage pitiless slavery. Yet, whatever the animating purpose—whatever the selfish interests of England and Russia and Italy—the Kaiser scheme of world conquest justified it.

In us it sanctifies it. Why should any American split hairs over the European rights and wrongs involved when he sees before him grim and ghastly the mailed figure of absolutism with hand uplifted to strike Columbia where these three years she has stood pleading for justice, peace and mercy? God of the free heart's hope and home forbid!

Each of these three years the German Kaiser was making war upon us. He was making war secretly, through his emissaries, in destruction of our industries, secretly through his diplomats plotting not merely foreign, but civil, was against us, and, as we now know, seeking to foment servile murder upon our people and visiting all our rights and claims with scorn and insult—with scorn and insult unspeakable—at this moment pretending to flout us with ignominy and contempt. Where would the honest passivist draw the line?

Surely the time has arrived—many of us think it was long since overdue—for calling the braves to the colors. Nations must e'en take stock on occasion and manhood come to a showdown. It is but a truism to say so.

Fifty years the country has enjoyed surpassing prosperity. This has overcommercialized the character and habits of the people. Twenty-five years the gospel of passivism, with "business is business" for its text, has not only been preached—indiscriminately—oracularly—without let or hindrance, but has been highly financed and potentially organized. It has established a party. It has made a cult, justifying itself in a fad it has called humanity—in many ways a most spurious humanity—and has set this above and against patriotic inclination and duty.

Like a bolt out of the blue flashed the war signal from the very heart of Europe. Across the Atlantic its reverberations rolled, to find us divided, neutral and unprepared. For 15 years a body of German reservists, disguised as citizens, has been marching and counter marching. They grew at length bold enough to rally in the support of a pan-German scheme of conquest and a pro-German propaganda of "kultur," basing its effrontery in the German-American votes, which began its agitation by threatening us with civil war if we dared to go to war with Germany. There followed the assassin sea monsters and the airship campaign of murder.

All the while we looked on with either simpering idiocy, or dazed apathy. Serbia? It was no affair of ours. Belgium? Why should we worry? Foodstuffs soaring—war stuffs roaring—everybody making money—the mercenary, the poor of heart, the mean of spirit, the bleak and barren of soul, could still plead the hypocrisy of uplift and chortle: "I did not raise my boy to be a soldier." Even the Lusitania did not awaken us to a sense of danger and arouse us from the stupefaction of ignorant and ignoble self-complacency.

First of all, on bended knee, we should pray God to forgive us. Then, erect as men, Christian men, soldierly men, to the flag and fray—wherever they lead us—over the ocean—through France to Flanders—across the Low Countries to Koln, Bonn and Koblens—tumbling the fortress of Ehrenbreitstein into the Rhine as we pass and damming the mouth of the Mozelle with the

The Press and the War

Revolution in Publishing Conditions and What It Means to the Public, Discussed by Editor O. G. Villard

Menace to Nation Seen in Large Capitalization Necessary to Newspaper Making Today and People Are Warned to Demand Character, Honesty and Fairness in Their Favorite Publications Now More Than Ever.

(Following is, in part, the address of Oswald Garrison Villard, editor of the New York Evening Post and the Nation, who was chief orator at the celebration of the tenth anniversary of the founding of the School of Journalism at the Missouri State University at Columbia last Wednesday.

By OSWALD GARRISON VILLARD,

Editor of the New York Evening Post and the Nation.

IN every reform camp and among the plain people the belief exists that the newspapers with heavy capital investments are a capitalistic press and therefore opposed to the welfare of the masses. Then the public is watching with great alarm the steady drift toward consolidation. They behold only one morning newspaper in Cleveland, Indianapolis, Detroit, Toledo, Columbus, Denver, Scranton and St. Paul, and they have read with alarm that the morning field in Chicago is now divided between the imperialistic Tribune and the Hearst Examiner-Herald; that there is no newspaper there to represent genuine liberalism, real democracy.

> SAID John Bright in his greatest speech: "The Angel of Death has been abroad throughout the land; you may almost hear the beating of his wings. There is no one, as when the first-born were slain of old, to sprinkle with blood the lintel and the two sideposts of our doors, that he may spare and pass on; he takes his victims from the castle of the noble, the mansion of the wealthy, and the cottage of the poor and the lowly, and it is on behalf of all these classes that I make this solemn appeal." In this hour, when we, too, can almost hear the beating of the wings of the Angel of Death as he passes our doors with a frequency John Bright never dreamed of, let us dedicate ourselves anew to the service of our country's ideals, relying upon an educated and moral people and upon a system of government which, with all its defects, is still the best that has been devised. Let us be serenely certain that come what may, great efficiency and wealth and power, wide conquests and mighty armies are in themselves of no avail. Empires pass, kingdoms based on force and their kaisers fail—the truth prevails. Honor, justice and liberty alone can survive.—OSWALD GARRISON VILLARD.

It is startling to note that in nine of 14 Michigan cities there is not a single morning newspaper and but one evening newspaper apiece; that in that State the number of daily newspapers printed in the English language has shrunk from 42 to only 23, and that three more have been purchased for consolidation or suppression within the last three months. Of the 23, nine are controlled by two brothers. Six cities receive chiefly or only from them the news of the world and the political news of America.

Where will this tendency end? What becomes of the old American belief that both sides of all our national and domestic issues shall have their spokesmen in the press?

More than that, the business of publishing newspapers has become a race between rapidly rising costs and increased advertising and circulation receipts. How to preserve a margin which will allow for reasonable profit is the problem over which publishers lie awake at night and as it grows more intense in these war times, when the price of everything rises at a staggering rate, the weaker and less conscientious managers yield the more steadily to the temptation to bow down to advertisers or to court by unworthy means additional circulation without which rates cannot be increased.

Zone Postal Rate Most Inopportune

The Congress of the United States takes this the worst of times to advance largely the postal rates. Increasing the price of the metropolitan newspapers to two cents is only a slight relief. If the war lasts many of the weaker dailies and weeklies must go to the wall—an editor writes me that there are 100 weeklies within 50 miles of his city in upper New York State that are likely to go under soon. And it all means putting new capital into those that survive, so that the strong newspapers have long been in the million-dollar class. How can we prevent the editors and owners of these newspapers from regarding every question from the point of view of the other managers of great companies with huge capital investment? How can we induce them to present the point of view of the plain people on public questions and to view national and international problems at least somewhat from the point of view of the masses? Nothing is more alarming than this growing rift between newspaper publishers and the small paid workers of the country. In its gravity this phenomenon far outweighs the steady decrease in the number of weeklies, semi-weeklies, tri-weeklies and semi-monthlies, of which more than 400 disappeared between 1914 and the end of 1917. We can do without certain of our existing papers if the others will live up to their highest obligations of presenting the facts and of telling the truth, but we are going to be in a serious situation indeed if the consolidations and disappearances result in purely business organs remaining in the field—that is, newspapers which regard everything from the point of view of earning dividends for stockholders in a five or ten million dollar concern.

What intensifies the anxiety with which many regard these tendencies is the fact that new newspapers cannot be started without heavy capitalization, and that the field therefore attracts more and more rich men—we have no laws today to prevent a Hearst, an unpatriotic and conscienceless Hearst, from owning not nine newspapers but 90, and it is doubtful if we could draw such a law if one were desirable. But the menace that may come to us from the monopolizing of the press by a few rich men or groups of rich men is clearly illustrated in another remarkable consolidation in the field of newspaper making, that of the American Press Association and the Western Newspaper Union. The combined company, which is owned by two or three people not actually engaged in the business, now supplies plate and ready-to-print matter to nearly 14,000 newspapers.

In 1912 a United States Court forbade this very consolidation as contrary to public welfare. Today it permits it by reason of the enormously increased war time costs. A most dangerous power to influence public opinion is thus placed in the hands of the officers of a money-making concern, for news matter is furnished as well as news photogravures. It is today conducting propaganda, or permitting itself to be the vehicle of propaganda, such as the campaign for the un-American proposal of universal military service, that devilish invention of the Prussians to which their downfall is directly attributable, and it goes without saying that it would hardly welcome articles presenting the other side of this vital question. Does this not open up vistas of the easy influencing of public opinion in America for malign purposes?

But I need not elaborate the other grievous problems which confront the profession in order to drive home my point. Never was there more need for trained brains in newspaperdom than today, for fearless, outspoken, unpurchasable journalistic leaders. I refer, of course, not merely to those menacing evils I have just recounted, nor to the existing war. I have particularly in mind reconstruction work after the war, for I am of those who believe that this war will inevitably mean a reconstruction not only of the world, but of many of our own institutions. We must bring real democracy to America—a constructive democracy that will spell fair play and justice to every citizen in the country, and that cannot be said to have been the case heretofore.

New Parties to Be Formed

We need not choose between a conservative reaction and an unintelligent radicalism, but we can and will advance through a liberalism in accordance with our American traditions, achieving our reforms not by violence but by the historic method of the ballot box. I look for the disappearance or amalgamation of the existing political parties and the redivision of the country into liberals and conservatives. Above all I hope for a determined battle to make impossible the recurrence of such a world situation as that of today. The war to eliminate war must go on to the end by one means or another. Upon us largely will depend when the time comes to discuss peace terms whether democracy will really have been safeguarded or not; whether we shall have a liberal Wilson peace or a jingo imperialistic peace carrying with it by the retention of large armaments, both afloat and ashore, the seeds of another Armageddon.

Much will depend upon the enthusiasm with which the press will contend for those splendid 14 peace terms of President Wilson, the adoption of which alone means a real victory in the war, a real triumph for humanity, and it is cause for sincere regret that there is amazingly little preparation in the press for the day when it will be

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Memorials for Edith Cavell.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

France and England are erecting memorials in honor of the martyred nurse, Edith Cavell—memorials that will not only be in honor of this noble, heroic woman, but which will do lasting honor to womanhood.

In every circumstance and condition of this dreadful struggle for the safety of humanity, woman has done a most noble, generous and vital part. America stands second to no nation in its veneration for woman—and in its sacred love for the mothers, wives, sisters, daughters, yes, and the grandmothers, who are putting their lives into this struggle in every possible way.

Let America do its part now by erecting similar memorials to Edith Cavell—in her honor, and at the same time, in honor of American womanhood.

Let St. Louis be first in this, as it has been first in so many great and good achievements.

Mr. Editor, make the call and let us raise $50,000 for this purpose at once.

EDWARD S. LEWIS.

Irish Should Get Together.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I have read a great deal lately of the way some of our Irishmen in Ireland are sulking at the British empire, and I believe it would be better policy for them to get together at once and fight with the allies, as their cause will be taken up by the nations now fighting against the Kaiser, and will be the best way to secure home rule for Ireland, as Germany was never Ireland's friend at any time in her history, nor never will be. WILLIAM J. DILLON.

Busybodies.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I notice that some people, should they have any ill feeling or grudge against a certain drafted man who has received deferred classification, the first thing they usually think of, in order to get revenge, is to try and think up some lie concerning his status and then write an anonymous letter to his draft board, thinking possibly they can have his exemption revoked in this manner.

In these trying times, there are too many busybodies who are only too anxious to take advantage of a man in order to get even with him, in this manner. No attention should be paid to anyone beating around the bush, to get someone in bad, by writing such an anonymous letter.

In any case where any person makes a complaint about a certain man's standing, they should be made to appear in the accused man's presence, and if they have anything to say, make them substantiate it right there. This would materially help to clear up any question of doubt, but if the complainant cannot appear and back up their statements, absolutely no consideration should be given their charges, for many an innocent person may be made the victim of someone's revenge, as mentioned above. T. D. POWERS.

Earned the Name of Huns.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The use of the word "German" should be dropped by all speakers, writers and in our conversation.

When the Kaiser sent his soldiers to China in 1900 his farewell to them was: "Show no mercy, take no prisoners, be as the Huns were under Attila— open the way for kultur," etc.

His soldiers were then and are in this war Huns in all their savagery and bestiality. Give them and the people back of them the name they have earned. Let them never be spoken of except as Huns, and with hatred and execration.

Carl Luedeking, a St. Louis boy serving on the west front writes: "If our people could see the horrible ruin brought to Northern France and Belgium by the Huns they would put forth their full strength in this war."

Write to the Committee on Public Information at Washington for their pamphlets (free) "Conquest and Kultur" and "German War Practices." Learn what the Huns have done over there and will do to us if we don't knock them out.

W. S. STUYVESANT.

"No Flag, No Trade!"

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I know full well that most of our business people are patriotic, but there are a few of them who have done nothing to show their loyalty. Some of them have never had an American flag about their premises, neither have they displayed any of the other signs of the patriotic citizen.

I believe that the patriotic societies should list all the merchants and business people who do not display the American flag at both their place of business and their homes.

Then let the slogan be "No Flag, No Trade!" H. W. McCOY.

FAIR WAR TAXATION.

The existing excess profits tax does not always reach "war profits," says the Secretary of the Treasury in a letter to the Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee of the House. It does not indeed, and that is one reason why the present war revenue is unequal and unscientific. Its authors were at great pains to impose double taxes on what they regarded as "excess profits" which may have had no relation to war. They failed in many respects to reach profiteering clearly traceable to war.

"Excess profits," meaning everything to a salary now depleted by war to whatever a horseback lawyer in the Treasury Department may designate as such, have no necessary connection with war profts. Why, then, confuse the two? The levy upon incomes, corporate or personal, which is to be increasingly heavy as they rise in amount, meets or can be made to meet at one stroke every degree of earnings properly to be described as "excessive" except in the case of war profiteers.

When the Secretary urges the justice and wisdom of giving all engaged in war industries generous returns for their labors and risks—the Government to tax away their profits beyond a certain percentage—he meets intelligently an issue which is more and more engaging the attention of the people, and which, if not correctly settled, is sure to prove troublesome. On this point reasonable men in and out of Congress have long been agreed that Government cannot by law or executive order prohibit profit or make it precarious and at the same time derive great revenues from that source.

By such cross-purposes the present law has been brought into disrepute, for between methods so cinflicting it is probable that many a profiteer has escaped. Congress cannot afford to deal with a subject so momentous in a way that is both slipshod and dangerous. There are men in that body who even now in matters of taxation, proclaim the theory of German propaganda and pacifism, that this is a rich man's war and that it is their inveterate hostility to wealth that has made it difficult to separate the profiteer from the patriot, or to place in due proportions the burdens of war upon the comparatively few who have been enriched by war.

The first requisite of a new revenue bill should be brevity and clarity. It ought not to contain a single dubious paragraph or sentence. It ought not to embrace anybody's freakish demagogy or anybody's vengeful classism. It should be so simple that trickery and favor must fall before it. Above all else, it should recognize the profits of war as well as the inevitable losses of war and make a very decided distinction between those who gain and those who lose.

If Congress can interpret and develop in its legislation the true spirit of the American people in this struggle there will be no more complaint of taxation whatever it may be in amount than is met with in response to the call for men. But with money, as with men, the levy must be just, and it must comprehend ability to pay and duty to pay as well as willingness to pay.

LOUISIANA AND NATIONAL PROHIBITION.

A curious instance of referring the national prohibition amendment to a referendum of the voters of one State senatorial district is announced in Louisiana. This situation follows a chain of unusual circumstances and it will be the first opportunity of any body of voters to express their opinion on this question.

Louisiana was hailed as the first State to reject the national amendment. The House in that State was strongly favorable to the amendment, but the Senate vote was a tie. There was one vacancy in the Senate when the vote was taken and as the Lieutenant-Governor declined to vote, the tie was equivalent to a rejection of the amendment.

Following this vote, Gov. Pleasant has called for a special session of the Legislature to meet from Aug. 5 to 14 for the purpose of taking up the national amendment with a full membership, it having been arranged to hold a special election in the Winn and Grant Parishes to elect a Senator. It is granted that former Senator Harper from these parishes would have voted for the amendment had he not at that time been under suspension because of charges made against him under the espionage law. He has since resigned, rather than go to the expense of fighting the charges against him.

No one expects a change in the sentiment of the House members to affect the vote. Strong political pressure is being brought against the Senators, but it is believed that all will vote in August as they did in May. So the national amendment is to be the issue in two Louisiana parishes, with a prospect that the verdict there will mean one State for or against the amendment. Louisiana is a wet State, but those who are asking the special session think their parishes will vote dry.

LOYALTY WINS IN ARKANSAS.

The Arkansas primaries, the first of State nominations for this year, appears to be handwriting on the wall for those candidates who are attempting to win offices by before-the-war methods. The candidates who stood pat on "win-the-war" platforms and ignored politics were nominated by a vote ranging from two to three to one. In many cases the loyalty candidates were incumbents and naturally had incurred the displeasure of certain politicians who were willing to vote against them, no matter what platform the opponent held.

Gov. Brough and United States Senator Joe T. Robinson were the notable candidates. Both were renominated by two votes to the opponents' one. Neither of these men made a speaking campaign in his own behalf, and it must be remembered that the "stump" has had a larger influence on Arkansas elections in the past than in any other state. It was the key to the power of Jeff Davis and others of his kind, so long the idols of Arkansas Democracy. But Brough and Robinson made no political campaign except in newspaper advertisements, answering questions raised on the stump by their opponents. Most of the advertising on their behalf was prepared and paid for by loyal business men, who decried the raising of personal and other "stump" questions during this campaign. Both Brough and Robinson gave as much of their time to public speaking as they could possibly take from their official duties, but their speeches were for the Third Liberty Loan, Red Cross, Thrift Stamps, food conservation and similar urgent public questions. Usually they did not refer in any manner to their candidacies. It also is notable that Oliver T. Owen, Food Administrator at Little Rock, who has been saying "don't" to the people for months, easily defeated men who have been less active in trying to direct the people in the right path.

Arkansas' answer appears to be complete, especially when coupled with the recent outpouring of money for loans and Red Cross.

BE GOOD, KANSAS CITY!

Representatives of industrial organizations of nine counties in Southeastern Kansas met in Pittsburg, Kan., recently and adopted severe resolutions demanding that Kansas City, Mo., "clean up that city, so as to make it safe for law-abiding visitors, and keep it so."

The occasion for this unusual expression was the recent murder in Kansas City of D. W. Hargrave, a business man of Chanute, who, it appears, was shot by thugs as he was passing a gambling house in which there had been a row and some of the participants were escaping. Several of the business men attending the protest meeting expressed themselves very plainly as to the conduct of the Kansas City police in this and other cases. Especially was it resented that the police should seek to make it appear that Mr. Hargrave and his companion were about to enter the gambling place. Most of those at the meeting appeared to think that the Kansas City police have long assumed an intolerant attitude toward Kansas visitors and have sought to put the blame on them when they, through ignorance of the city's geography, wandered into dangerous districts and were robbed. It was said at the meeting that the police would say to such victims: "Well, if you'd stayed in Kansas you wouldn't have been robbed."

Kansas City, with its row of State line saloons, long has been a sore spot with many Kansans. Some of the Kansas towns have declared a boycott on Kansas City now until the "vice evils" are cleared out.

The Kansas City Chamber of Commerce has been writing to these organizations, seeking to clear up the situation and calling attention to the reward offered by the chamber for the arrest of the slayers of Mr. Hargrave. But it is action the Kansans demand.

MISSOURI POETS.

The very clever gentleman of the New York Evening Post, who has tried to be facetious at the expense of our Missouri poets, and the very clever gentleman of the Literary Digest, who edited his article for review, appear to be persons of extraordinary moral courage. To get prematurely free with the Missouri poet in his lair is one of the risks that ordinarily cautious publicists would avoid.

There must be, in the great city of New York, vast libraries containing anthologies, bound volumes of magazines, critical reviews and who's-whos of all descriptions, searching wherein they might have learned something highly necessary for the person who would return from poet-baiting with a whole skin. Instead of doing this, these gentlemen committed that unpractical error commonly known as going off half-cocked. They based their assault upon a book written by a professor in a small college in rural Missouri, taking for granted he was what an enthusiastic writer in a Kansas City paper said he was, an "authority" on Missouri poets and poets. We would rather accept the Kansas City paper's dictum as to "authorities" on the wheat crops than as to "authorities" on poetry.

Of the Missouri poets mentioned there are only two who, we surmise, would carry the New York library vote, Sara Teasdale and Zoe Akins. There is nothing of the scholarly muse of William Vincent Byars, or the elegant one of R. E. Lee Gibson, or the impassioned one of Orrick Johns, whose "Second Avenue" won the Lyric Year's poetry prize in 1912, or the warlike song of Charles V. H. Roberts, nothing about the poetry of the Rev. John E. Rothenstein, or the fine lyric note of our own Clark McAdams, or the singing of Mrs. Hilton-Turvey.

The Evening Post man remarks that the goddess of free verse seems to have entirely passed up Missouri. Evidently he had failed to read the Boston Transcript's long article about David O'Neil. Wonder what he thinks of this for free verse:

When you would drive turmoil out,
And let wonder in,
Follow the river;
Drink of the quiet
Of the river,
Till your soul is timed
To the river
Flowing unfettered
By moon and winds,
Broadening to the sea
With never a fear
Of the sea being full.

The Evening Post man recites one stanza, which, he implies, should be the standard by which our muse should be judged. We herewith offer him a better illustration:

The gorgeous canvas of the morn,
The sprinkled gayety of grass,
The sunlight dripping from the corn,
The stars that gold high-vestured mass,
The shattered grandeur of the hills,
The little, leaping, lovely ways
Of children, or what beauty spills
In summer greens and autumn grays.

The library, gentlemen, the library, before again you come a-jousting against the literary fame of the State of Mark Twain, Eugene Field and Gus Thomas! Missouri in poetry! Why, even the shade of Patience Worth could find no better poetic atmosphere in which to hover than that of Missouri.

CHARON: SERVICE!

THE LAUREATE BUSINESS.

NOW that someone has named the poet laureate of Missouri, we want to see the poets lined up and this thing decided in neighboring states. As a starter, we will begin with Oklahoma. If Frank R. Orton of Cherokee, Alfalfa County, isn't the poet laureate of the land of the fair god it is because we don't know the smell of the soil when we find it in verse. Suppose you read his "Save the Food!" and then see what you think:

SAVE THE FOOD.

Are you saving the food,
Either cooked or crude,
Boiled, baked or stewed?
Remember you must do your bit;
You know what it means
To eat more of greens,
For 'twill save the beans,
And beans are now harder to get.

Feed hay to the goats,
And slop to the shoats,
And yourself eat oats;
Then cook a big kettle of mush;
For supper you try it,
For breakfast you fry it,
For its a good diet
When pressed for time in a rush.

Keep the hens laying;
You've heard them saying
That eggs are paying,
When incubators do the hatching;
Then the hens are free,
Laying eggs every day,
Which beats the old way
Having them setting and scratching.

Fry a skillet of fish,
Rounded up on the dish,
And eat all you wish,
And save more of pork and of beef;
It's only a dream
To hook'm from a stream,
Or catch'm with a sein
When the fish warden gives you lief.

Better change your ways,
And save what you raise
With that silo craze;
Then nothing rots down in the stack;
There will be no waste,
For silage has a taste,
Make stock run a race
To be the first one to the rack.

Mr. Taft thinks we shall have to send an army to Russia to keep the Germans from using the manpower of that country against us. It looks as if Gen. Leonard Wood, having the German army between him and those with whom he is not altogether in harmony on the West front, might be permitted to do something of that sort for us.

New York seems to be badly frightened. Maybe we would better send a couple of westerners down to stiffen her morale.

RHYTHMIC RAILLERY AMONG THE NEW ENGLANDERS.

Sir: Dr. Bushnell of Arlington, an enthusiastic Yale "rooter," recently stampeded a Yale dinner in Waterbury, Conn., by repeating this jingle:

"Here's to the city of Boston,
The home of the bean and the cod,
Where the Cabots talk only with Lowells,
And the Lowells talk only with God."

In the course of time the verses reached Dean Jones, who called on his muse, and a little later produced the following, which he sent back to Bushnell with his compliments:

"Here's to the town of New Haven,
The home of the truth and the light,
Where God speaks to Jones in the very same tones
That he uses with Hadley and Dwight."

Rhode Island's contribution was as follows:

Here's to New Haven and Boston,
And the turf that the Puritans trod.
In the rest of mankind little virtue they find.
But they both feel quite chummy with God."

You might be glad to use it in the "most valuable part of the Post-Dispatch." A. L. A.

LIGHT ON GERMAN FINANCE.

From the San Antonio Light.

THOMAS W. LAMONT, one of the partners in the banking house of Morgan & Co., recently returned from Europe with some most interesting information for the Government of the United States. According to Mr. Lamont, the financial condition of Germany and Austria is arousing more and more excitement in both countries. His information was, generally speaking, as follows:

Before the recent attacks ordered by Von Hindenburg in the West, the expenditures of the German Government were about $500,000,000 a month. Now they are double that. The national debt of Germany is now about $31,000,000,000.

A former Vice Chancellor stated in the Reichstag recently that Germany's national debt was now $31,000,000,000, and that the hour of reckoning would come when there would be wailing and gnashing of teeth on the part of taxpayers.

Germany has raised practically all the money to pay for the war by borrowing, and the interest charges on the national debt are now more than 30 times greater than before the war. But increases in taxation have nothing like kept pace with the increases in interest charges. Every day Germany is borrowing money to pay the interest on money already borrowed. Estimates of the deficit show that the figures vary widely—from $1,300,000,000 to $1,800,000,000. The total annual revenues of the Imperial Government before the war amounted to about $850,000,000.

When making his recent speech before the Reichstag, the former Vice Chancellor said that, as a moderate estimate, the annual expenditure that must be met after the war would be about $3,250,000,000. Yet the total receipts estimated in this year's budget are oly $1,800,000,000. On this basis the post war deficit would be almost $1,500,000,000 every year, a sum just about equal to the present interest charges on Germany's debt.

In this connection it is interesting to recall that shortly after the commencement of the war, Dr. Helfferich, Secretary of the Imperial Treasury, said: "We do not desire to increase by taxation the heavy burden that war throws upon the people. Germany's enemies deserve to drag the leaden weight through the centuries."

In pursuance of that policy no new taxations were levied and Germany continued to speculate upon victory and the plan of levying indemnities upon the countries that were to be conquered. It has many times been stated that the German general staff had decided that France was to pay an indemnity of $7,000,000,000.

In addition to other blunders in her financial system, Germany set about the manufacture of credit. Before war was declared she had made preparations for the opening of war loan banks, and these began operations immediately after the troops commenced to move. A man can go to one of these banks, mortgage his property, real or personal, and receive currency for the amount of the loan; that is, paper money issued by the loan banks. He can take his bonds of the first Government war loan and pledge them as security for a loan with which he buys bonds of the second war issue.

This latter in turn he can pledge as security for a loan to buy third war loan bonds. Germany's eight war loans have been issued and laid on that kind of an inflated pyramid. The latest estimates indicate that there are now about $25,000,000,000 in the pyramid.

A tremendous inflation of bank credits naturally brings about inflation in the currency. In December, 1913, the total issues of paper money in Germany were $700,000,000. By the end of 1917 the paper money issues had been increased to very nearly $5,000,000,000, or sevenfold. Although gold reserves had increased by about $250,000,000, the proportion of gold to paper money fell from 47 per cent to 12 per cent.

In Austria conditions are apparently worse. There the Austro-Hungarian bank has simply become an institution for the manufacture of credit for the state. Its holdings of gold have disappeared almost entirely. Meanwhile the notes of this central bank have increased from about $500,000,000 to almost $3,700,000,000 and its floating advances to the Austro-Hungarian Government total nearly $7,000,000,000!

If such a situation does not spell bankruptcy and ruin it never will be possible to spell them in this world.

Girl Graduates and June Brides Occupied Society's Interest During Week Just Closed—Card Party Saturday at Forest Park Highlands for War Relief Is Leading Event Scheduled for This Week.

SELDOM has such an array of brides been seen as the first week of June brought forth. Next to the "Star-Spangled Banner" the wedding march was the popular air of the moment. However, as the prejudice against anything German is so prevalent just now, the American Defense Society has suggested that the Lohengrin and Mendelssohn wedding marches be discontinued at nuptial affairs, and Lieut. John Philip Sousa has been asked to compose a wedding march to take their place. This will make just one more thing "made in Germany" that America can and will dispense with and will add to the aim of being 100% American in everything we do.

THE first bride of the week was Miss Viola Dorothy Brady, whose marriage to Robert J. Hundhausen took place Monday evening at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Brady of 5008 Vernon avenue. Mrs. James R. Bettis was her sister's matron of honor and Edward Kuhn was the best man with the bride's little niece, Jane Helbig as flower girl. Mr. Hundhausen and his bride are on a honeymoon trip and upon their return will be at home after July 1 at 720 Westgate avenue. The bride was educated at Hosmer Hall. Mr. Hundhausen has been making his home at the M. A. A.

THE important wedding of Tuesday was that of Miss Grace Pingree to Russell E. Lortz, which was celebrated at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel S. Pingree of 40 Washington terrace. Mrs. Robert E. Hussey was the matron of honor and the bridegroom's sister, Miss Edna Lortz, was the bridesmaid. Little Mary Jane Hussey was the flower girl. Samuel Pingree, the bride's brother, served as best man and T. R. Ferrenbach and Dr. Earl Conner acted as groomsmen.

The ceremony was followed by a reception and later Mr. Lortz and his bride departed for a trip and will be at home in New York City, where Mr. Lortz is stationed with the naval cost inspection department of the navy. The bride is a Mary Institute graduate and spent some time after her graduation in European travel. She made her debut three seasons ago as a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball. Mr. Lortz is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Lortz of 37 Lewis place.

WEDNESDAY was the most popular day for June brides, three important weddings taking place on that day. The first was that of Miss Angela Burdeau to Louis F. Desloge which was solemnized at St. Francis Xavier's Church at 10 o'clock in the morning. Miss Marie Rose Cain was the maid of honor with Miss Marie Sullivan and Virginia Borgess as bridesmaids. Marcel Desloge was best man and Vincent Ring and Ben Thomas served as groomsmen. A reception took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Burdeau of 16 Hortense place after the ceremony and later the couple departed for a trip. They will be at home upon their return temporarily with Mrs. Desloge's parents. The bride wore a gown of heavy white moire combined with Georgette, the moire being the same material of which her mother and grandmother's wedding gowns were made. Her lace veil was also the same worn by them and was purchased abroad by Miss Burdeau's great-grandfather upon the occasion of her grandmother's marriage. Mr. Desloge is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Jules Desloge of 3847 West Pine boulevard and is related to many of the oldest and best-known families of St. Louis.

THE second wedding of the day was that of Miss Mildred Ashby, daughter of Mrs. Charles W. Massee of 63 Kingsbury place, which was solemnized at high noon at the St. Louis Cathedral. The bridal party consisted of Miss Marie Totten of Chicago, Miss Josephine McCormick of St. Paul, Dr. and Mrs. Jules Brady, Dr. William Glennon, Reid Kinsella, Dr. Henske and A. Imbs. A reception followed the ceremony at the bride's home.

THE third wedding was that of Miss Kyle Adams, whose marriage to George A. Rodenbaeck was solemnized at the Webster Groves Presbyterian Church at 8 o'clock. Miss Adams' mother was her matron of honor and the other members of the bridal party were Mr. and Mrs. Percy Wheeler Tracy, Mrs. Allen Wyman, Miss Virginia Flad, Miss Hazel Spencer, Miss Linda Rodenbaeck of Chicago, the birdegroom's sister with little Betty Wyman as flower girl escorted by the bride's nephew, Lemoine Skinner. The color scheme of yellow and white was carried out in the decorations of the home and the church and also in the costumes of the bride's attendants. Mrs. Rodenbaeck is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert McCormick Adams of Webster Groves and has spent the past two years in New York where she held a responsible position with the Y. W. C. A. Through her mother, who was Miss Jennie Claiborne, she is related to many of the colonial families of Virginia and through her father is related to the prominent McCormick family of Chicago. She was graduated from Mary Institute where she was chosen president of her class. Mr. Rodenbaeck is from Utica, N. Y., where he will take his bride to reside.

THE marriage of Mrs. Judson E. Boughton of 6138 Waterman avenue to Prof. Shirley Howard Weber was celebrated yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock at St. Michael's and All Angels Church with the Rev. George E. Norton officiating. There were no attendants and only the intimate friends were asked. After the ceremony a small reception was held at the residence of the Rev. and Mrs. Norton adjoining the church. Last night the couple departed for the West and will go to Berkeley, Cal., where Prof. Weber will conduct a six weeks' course at the University of California. Prof. Weber is a graduate of Princeton and holds the chair of Greek and Latin at Washington University. Mrs. Boughton is originally from the East but has resided in St. Louis for several years.

THURSDAY morning witnessed the marriage of Miss Ruby Carter to Clark H. Way, which was celebrated very quietly at 10 o'clock at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carter of 6026 Washington boulevard. Only the relatives and a few intimate friends were present. A bridal breakfast followed the ceremony and at noon Mr. Way and his bride departed for a trip to Chicago and the lake resorts of Wisconsin. Upon their return they will be at home temporarily with Mr. Way's mother, Mrs. James Clark Way of 5575 Waterman avenue.

MISS MARGARET GREENHALGH, daughter of Mrs. William Lewis Greenhalgh of Webster Groves has chosen Saturday for her marriage to Robie Lloyd Cone of Toledo, O., which will be solemnized at 4 o'clock at the Emmanuel Episcopal Church at Webster.

THE atmosphere of the social world was redolent with orange blossoms the past week for "the sweet girl graduate" was next in importance to the June bride and exercises at the various schools were largely attended by the relatives and friends of the girls and those interested in their alma maters. At Mary Institute, on Friday, the class consisted of 37 graduates. Miss Margaret Burnet, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William P. Burnet of 5798 Berlin avenue, was graduated with high honors among the nine honor graduates. She also won the Washington University scholarship and the prize in Latin. Miss Katherine Lemoine Perkins was awarded the literature prize and also won the College Club scholarship, and Miss Dorothy Walker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Herbert Walker of 12 Hortense place, won the prize in French.

THE coming week will see only a few weddings in comparison with the number of last week. On Wednesday Miss Ethel Antrim, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Antrim of 25 Kingsbury place, will become the bride of Louis J. Jones, son of Peyton C. Jones of 5255 Von Versen avenue. The ceremony will be performed at the home of the bride's parents at 8 o'clock in the evening and only the relatives and intimate friends will be present.

THE most prominent social patriotic gathering of the coming week will be the card party at the Bogey Club, under the auspices of the American Fund for French Wounded. This means is being taken by this organization to raise funds to carry on the work of making surgical dressings and other hospital supplies for the wounded soldiers of France. If money is not obtained within a short time the American Fund for the French Wounded will be obliged to close here and over 500 women will be thrown out of a war relief work which is of great importance just at this time.

When one takes into consideration the fact that a country has been at war as long as France has, it must be remembered that the women have had to take up the work of the men and haven't the time to devote to war relief that we of America, have and the least we can do in a way of gratitude is to help the French wounded who are so bravely fighting a cause for us. On Tuesday afternoon a special car for the Bogey Club will leave Delmar and De Baliviere avenues at 1:40 o'clock for those who desire that means of transportation. All who are interested in this work are urged to attend, for not only will a worthy cause be assisted but an afternoon of unusual enjoyment is assured. The Bogey Club is ideally adapted for such an affair and it is the first time that such a benefit entertainment has been held at this particular club.. Those who have the party in charge are Mrs. James M. Franciscus, which is the acting chairman of the organization during Mrs. Crunden's absence and her assistants are Mmes. George von Schrader, Samuel Scott, Edward Simmons, Howard Benoist, George Niedringhaus, Leo DeSmet Carton, William Scudder, Stuart Stickney, Russell Gardner Jr., A. J. Lindsay, Edward Hotchkiss, Harry Block, Harvey Mudd, Charles Wiggins, Eugene Williams, Lewis Dozier, Theron Catlin, August Busch Jr., Harold Bixby, John Fowler, Charles Bates, Julia M. A NOTABLE engagement disclosed the past week was that of Miss Nancy Scott to Lieut. Thomas S. Blumer of Boston. Miss Scott is the daughter of Mrs. Henry Clarkson Scott of 31 Westmoreland place and has been one of the belles of the fashionable set since her debut three seasons ago. She is a member of the Imperial and of the Junior League and was graduated from Mary Institute, later attending schoo at Farmington, Conn. Lieut. Blume is the son of Dr. and Mrs. John Alde Blumer of Providence, R. I., and i stationed with the 303d Field Ar tillery at Camp Devens, Mass. Owing to the serious condition of Mr Scott's health the wedding will tak place very quietly at their summe home at Rye Beach, N. H., with onl the immediate families present.

THE Sunset Hill Country Club i planning a Red Cross day fo Saturday, June 29, when a bi benefit fete will be held, the proceeds to be turned over to the loca chapter of the Red Cross. Many o the most prominent women in th social world who are now engross in war work of all kinds will participate. Judge William Dee Becker is chairman of the day. All o the country clubs have been asked t unite in making this the most successful event of the series which i being given at the country club throughout the country at whic Charles ("Chick") Evans, Warren K Woods of Chicago, and Bobby Jone and Perry Adair of Atlanta are giving exhibition foursomes for the benefit of the Red Cross.

THE Red Cross Garden Fair to b given by the girls who sty themselves "Just 16," o Wednesday afternoon and evenin on the lawn of the residence of D and Mrs. Robert E. Wilson of 425 Lindell boulevard, promises to be a affair of unusual interest and th young girls who are interested hav devoted much time and energy t making it a success. The booths representing the allied nations will hav different groups of girls attired i the costumes of the nation and man unique and individual articles wi be on sale. Not a picnic, but a real dinner outdoors

NO one would choose the things that usually go in the picnic basket, if it were possible to have a real meal out in the woods. And no one likes to spend so much time fixing sandwiches and such bothersome things.

Don't you know that you can have a real, hot dinner at your picnics this summer—and prepare it with infinitely less trouble than any picnic lunch you have ever had before?

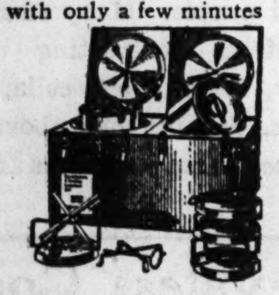
Think how delicious such a meal as this would taste, when eaten in some cool woodland spot! Hot Veal Loaf, Hot Baked Beans, Boston Brown Bread, Strawberry Ice Cream, Devil's Food Cake.

And everything can be cooked or chilled in a Domestic Science or Ideal Fireless Cookstove and kept at the right temperature until you are ready to eat. One of the smaller cookers, with one or two compartments, is just the right size to put into your car. It will keep all the hot things piping hot, or the cold foods thoroughly chilled, for hours. Try it the next time you have a picnic.

Use Fireless Cooking for ALL your hot weather meals

Don't spend hours over a hot kitchen range this summer. Cook your meals in a Domestic Science or Ideal Fireless Cookstove. A few minutes' use of your range to heat the radiators—and all the rest of the cooking done in the fireless. Consider how much cooler your kitchen will be; what immeasurable comfort it will give you in stifling midsummer weather. And think, too, how much fuel it will save, when you do all the cooking with only a few minutes heat. You can bake and roast in this wonderfully economical way, and get perfect results.

Ask your dealer about Domestic Science or Ideal Fireless Cookstoves. He can show you why these cookstoves do baking and browning as no other fireless can. Ask him about the patented water seal, the patented steam valve, extra thick aluminum lining and special insulation.



Domestic Science Fireless Cookstove

Less Attention Paid to Social Affairs at Atlantic City.

Less attention is paid to social affairs at Atlantic City this year than usual. The effort is to provide rest and recreation for men and women wearied with war work. Soldiers and sailors are made especially welcome. Dormitories and rest and recreation rooms have been fitted up for them. The seaside resort will be the scene this summer of numerous conventions and conferences in relation to the war. The hotels, both large and small, are open as usual and prepared to extend welcome to all who come for rest and rejuvenation of minds and bodies.

REVOLVING DOOR DEATH SUIT

Widow of Lawyer, 60, Asks Damages of $10,000.

Mrs. Estelle Estep, 3210 Harper street, widow of Thomas B. Estep, a lawyer, filed suit yesterday for $10,000 against the owners of the International Life Building at Eighth and Chestnut streets, alleging that her husband died Dec. 12, 1917, as a result of injuries suffered a month previous when he was entering the building.

It is alleged that Estep was caught in a revolving door which was carelessly propelled by another man, and that one of his legs was broken in two places. On account of his age and other infirmities he was unable to rally, it is averred. The petition states the owners of the building were negligent in failing to provide a check on the door that would prevent its revolving at more than moderate speed. Estep was 65 years old.

Famous in a Day for Her Beautiful Complexion, Oatmeal Combination Does It

A Free Prescription Does Its Work Overnight. You Can Prepare It at Your Home.

New York: It is my own discovery and it takes just one night to get such marvelous results, says Mae Edna Wilder, when her friends ask her about her wonderful complexion and the improved appearance of her hands and arms. You can do the same thing if you follow my advice, she says. I feel it my duty to tell every girl and woman what this wonderful prescription did for me. Just think of it. All this change in a single night. I never tire of telling others just what brought about such remarkable results. Here is the identical prescription that removed every defect from my face, neck, hands and arms. Until you try it you can form no idea of the marvelous change it will make in just one application. The prescription, which you can prepare at your own home, is as follows: Go to any grocery and get 10 cents' worth of ordinary oatmeal, and from any drug store a bottle of derwillo. Prepare the oatmeal as directed in every package of derwillo and apply night and morning. The first application will astonish you. It makes the skin appear transparent, smooth and velvety. I especially recommend it for freckles, tan, sun spots, coarse pores, rough skin, ruddiness, wrinkles and, in fact, every blemish the face, hands and arms are heirs to. If your neck or chest is discolored from exposure, apply this combination there and the objectionable defect will disappear as if by magic. It is absolutely harmless and will not produce or stimulate a growth of hair. No matter how rough and ungainly the hands and arms, or what abuses they have had through hard work and exposure to sun and wind, this oatmeal-derwillo combination will work a wonderful transformation in 12 hours at the most. Thousands who have used it have had the same results I have had.

Note: To get the best effect, be sure to follow the complete directions contained in every package of derwillo. You have only to get derwillo and oatmeal. You need nothing else, and it is so simple that anyone can use it, and is so inexpensive that any girl or woman can afford it. The manufacturers and druggists guarantee that there will be a noticeable improvement after the first application or they will refund the money. It is sold in this city under a money-refund guarantee by all department stores and druggists, including Wolff-Wilson, Judge & Dolph, Enderle, Pauley and Johnson Bros.—ADVERTISEMENT.

NAME IS DESIRED FOR JULY 4 PAGEANT HERE

Stage Director and Productions Committee to Choose Principals of Cast Today.

The Productions Committee of the Patriotic Pageant will meet at the Municipal Theater in Forest Park at 10 o'clock this morning with B. Iden Payne, stage director, and C. F. Stein and Joseph Solari, two of the assistant stage directors, to select the principals for the cast of the pageant which will be held in the Municipal Theater July 4, 5, 6 and 7.

Joseph Gilman Miller has been asked to take the part of Imperial Russia and is reviewing the part.

Among those proposed by their friends for the role of Abraham Lincoln is Jones H. Parker, an attorney

The Productions Committee is still searching for a name for the pageant. The committee will determine upon the name Monday noon at a special luncheon at the Mercantile Club called for this purpose.

The pageant is in two parts. The first part is the presentation of the "Evolution of Liberty," beginning with the first struggle between Liberty and Autocracy—the Greek camp at the pass of Thermopylae between the Greeks and Persians. The second scene is the signing of the Magna Charta; the third, reading of the Declaration of Independence by Washington in New York, near Washington's headquarters, July 9, 1776; the fourth, the Fall of the Bastile; the fifth, the Emancipation Proclamation. This ends the first part.

In the second part the Herald announces the theme of the pageant and calls upon the audience to follow him to the high court where the allied nations plead their cause—the court of Truth, Liberty and Justice. These three spirits enter and take their thrones.

To the court comes Servia, stating the demands made upon him by Austria. Liberty and Justice bid him draw the sword. Truth warns him that the act will set the world aflame. But Servia may not choose. He draws the sword.

Belgium enters with her orphaned children, her stricken people. She pleads her cause, and to her defense come England and France, and after them Russia, the fires of revolution already smoldering among his people. England calls to his far colonies, and Japan brings his pledge of the defense of the Pacific.

And now, as from a great distance, comes the cry of Armenia. Italy, casting off the bonds of the triple alliance, joins the allies, as do Portugal and Rumania. To the assembled nations Poland, the thrice divided, makes her appeal.

Truth warns the nations of the strength of the enemy, and the nations in antiphonal lament their losses. Liberty and Justice call to America. And now a new tumult arises in the Russian group, the haughty leader is dethroned, and the new Russia gropes her way toward the fires of freedom and war. Her bewilderment falls upon the nations as a pall, and they moan beneath it. Suddenly a new trumpet is heard, and America enters, saluting her allies, and pledging her sword to their common cause.

The committee in charge of the arrangements for the production are: Book, Dr. Arthur E. Bostwick; publicity, Walter S. Donaldson; press, Anita Moore; Speakers' Bureau, Earl R. Britt; advertising, Arthur Siegel; cast, Charles H. Diel; dance, Robert D. Corlett; music, Ernest R. Kroeger; band, Noel Poepping; costumes, Max Koenigsberg; auditorium, Isaac A. Hedges; tickets, W. E. Rolfe; admissions, Eugene R. Cuendet; ushers, Richard H. Calkins; State management, Guy Golterman; setting, T. P. Barnett; lighting, A. M. Branch; properties, A. A. Kocian; organizations, Mrs. J. P. Higgins; community interests, Thomas H. Lovelace; entertainment, Herman Spoehrer; public welfare, John Schmoll; traffic, Charles M. Talbert; police, Chief William Young; sanitation, Dr. G. A. Jordan; first aid, Dr. Rolla Y. Henry; concessions, Otto E. Rugg; program, George W. Coombes; refreshments, Carl Schwartz.

Many Unique Features in New Hotel Broadmoor.

Several unique features in hotel construction are included in the Broadmoor, a new $2,500,000 establishment, that has opened near Colorado Springs, Col., at the foot of Cheyenne mountain.

There are 65 sleeping porches. There are a large number of maisonettes or small apartments in the wings. The living room of each is on the main floor and the sleeping room above. Each has a private entrance. Entrances and exits are so arranged that guests need not visit the lobby or any part of the first floor. There is a separate dining room for children and their nurses. There is a moving picture auditorium within the building.

In the 1640 acres that compose the hotel estate is an 18-hole golf course and mountain streams where rare sport—trout fishing—may be indulged in.

The hotel is built in the style of the Italian Renaissance and is made to conform in color tone to the mountains at the foot of which it nestles. Broadmoor Lake lies before the hotel.

Jim Barnes, western open champion, is in charge of the golf links. There are tennis courts and the mountain trails offer excellent pilgrimages for hikers.

Music for Soldiers at Barracks.

A musical entertainment will be given tomorrow night at Jefferson Barracks under the auspices of the Missouri Division, Woman's Committee, Council National Defense, Department of Health and Recreation. It has been the custom of the department to have an entertainment there every Monday night for several months.

200 LABORERS GO ON STRIKE

About 200 laborers employed by the Arnold Building Co. on construction work at the new Pullman shops on Bircher road west of Union avenue, struck yesterday when their demand for an increase from 30 to 40 cents an hour was refused.

The demand was made Tuesday and the company was given until Saturday to answer. Yesterday evening a notice of 2½ cents an hour increase was posted. This morning a notice was posted that only those signing up to work for 32½ cents an hour would be admitted. A laborer who called at the Post-Dispatch office said that they all refused to sign. Supt. William L. Pringle of the Pullman company refused to make a statement.

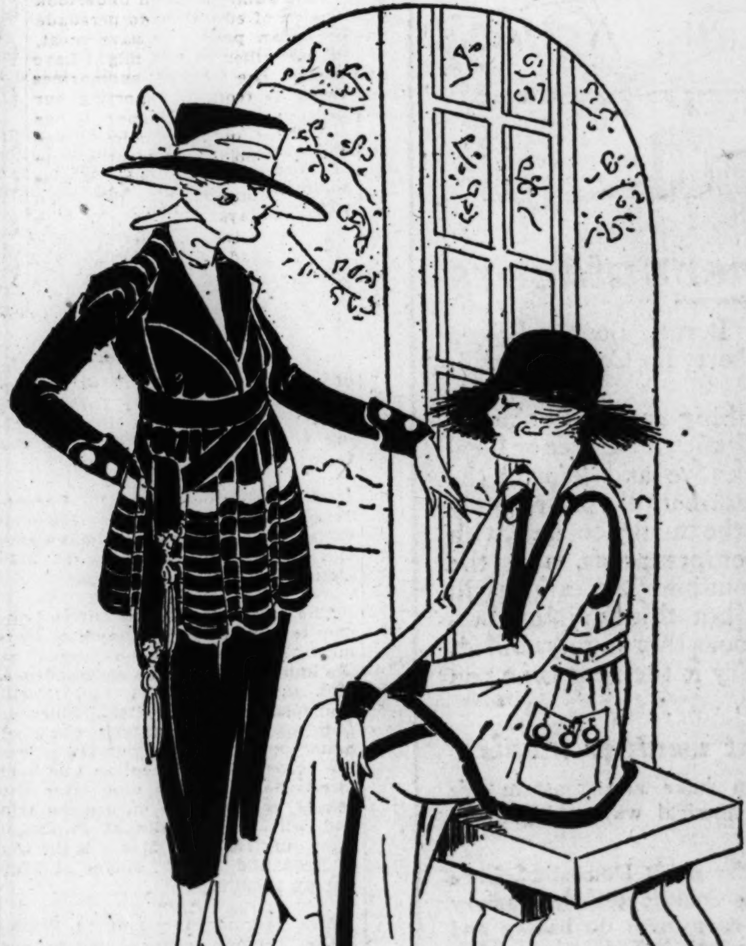
Wool Jersey Sport Suits

A Startling Announcement—Monday



Suit on figure standing is navy wool Jersey, filo floss embroidered in bright red, $25.00.

On sitting figure, rose taupe wool Jersey, peacock blue trimming, $20.00.

The season is just here for Sport Suits of this kind, is what makes an announcement of a sale at HALF PRICE AND LESS sensational. Monday we are going to give

Choice of the House

Any Wool Jersey Suit, whether the former price was $59.50, $39.50 or any price between —Choice in two lots.

$35.00 to $45.00 Wool Jersey Suits $20

$49.50 to $59.50 Wool Jersey Suits $25

We have our own reasons for making such extreme reductions on merchandise that is going to be in big demand for the next month or so—and the fact that we'll have to pay much more than these same Suits cost us when we reorder is not going to be allowed to interfere with our plans.

Colors are rose—blue—tan—green—beet and purple. Many smart, daring combinations—contrasting color embroidery, wide sport collars, sashes, belts, etc., that lift them above the commonplace. Sizes for misses and women.

Silk Coats
Values to $29.50
$10.00

Black and navy only, but they are wonderful coats. Ideal for the car, because they are not warm and they repel the dirt. Hard or soft finish taffeta silk. Some have white or colored silk or satin over-collars, and they're all cut generously large and loose.

Sleeveless Coatees

We have meatless days, wheatless days and various other-less days, why not a sleeveless day. They are very smart, and for comfort, if for nothing else, the sleeveless coatee, is a favorite. See our showing of these smart coatees in silk, satin, velvet and trocadero. Colors are navy, Copen, rose and black. Priced

GRO AID SOCIETY FORMED

t. Louis Gets Branch of National Urban League—Whites on Committee.

The Provident Association has ormed the Urban League of the St. ouis Provident Association to work for the improvement of negroes in the city in matters pertaining to health, employment, education, housing, recreation and delinquency. The action was prompted by the increasing number of negroes migrating from the South to seek employment in industry here.

A committee composed of white and negro members will direct the activities of the league, which will be in direct charge of E. C. Lawrence, who will serve as executive secretary. One of the features will be the maintenance of an employment bureau for the benefit of both employer and negroes.

Lift Off That Corn!

Freezone is magic! Instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift that sore, touchy, bothersome old corn right off with your fingers---root and all---without pain, soreness or irritation.

Hard corns, soft corns, corns between toes and all calluses

Drop "Freezone" on any corn. It works like a charm every time. No humbug! You'll smile—laugh, really! It is so easy, so simple! Why wait?

Tiny bottles of Freezone cost only a few cents at any drug store. Millions of women keep Freezone handy. When a corn comes, just a "drop" and that corn is forgotten. Freezone is the magic discovery of a Cincinnati genius. Try it! Wonderful!

—ADV.

The set embraces the six ten-ounce tumblers and the three-pint pitcher, with inset top. The reproduction of the aster blossom in this cutting is the crowning achievement of a famous designer.

We guarantee that every set will reach destination in perfect condition. Should any piece get broken in transit (which is not likely) we will promptly replace it at our own expense.

Just ask for one of these GENUINE Cut Glass Iced Tea Sets, and it will be shipped from the factory to your home. Send No Money Now.

Would not your life, madam, be fuller and happier, if all those inanimate companions of your home were really good through and through; if you had the consciousness that everything you live with day after day was just as true and just as beautiful within, as well as without, as you yourself want to be?

Yes, among beautiful things the atmosphere of harmony is all-pervasive. In the ancient days, the personal loveliness of the women of Greece was attributed largely to the beauty of their home surroundings.

And you would have it so in your home. Much more genuine, scintillating cut glassware would always have adorned your dining-room if retail store prices had not made its purchase an extravagance.

But this condition no longer prevails. Thanks to our triumphant plan of direct dealing, you don't have to pay retail store prices for cut glassware now. The Iced Tea Set we here offer you sufficiently proves this. Think of it! The entire set precisely as shown in the illustration, for only $5.83, and payable at the rate of only one dollar a month!

And that isn't all. We don't ask you to send a cent in advance unless you want to do so. We are willing to ship it to your home and let you be the judge.

Then, if you find that it is more beautiful, even, than the illustration represents it to be; if you are entirely pleased in every way, remit the first payment; otherwise, return it at our expense any time within 30 days from date of forward shipment.

All that's necessary now is to sign the coupon and drop it into the mail-box. Do it now. This offer is for you and for every other reliable married lady or her husband in the United States.

HOW THE SECRET GERMAN AGENTS CAUSE DISSENSION

been sent about wheat." The figures collected by the Department of Agriculture show that the average prices received by the farmer during the three years previous to war were, roughly, 86.9 cents a bushel for wheat and 66.5 cents for corn, and the average war prices which he has received have been $2.00.6 for wheat and $1.38.8 for corn. The increase over the pre-war prices has been 131 per cent in the case of wheat and only 109 per cent in the case of corn. Difficulties in transportation have altered the relation of these prices in some localities, especially in the East, but for the farmer generally the price of wheat has been consistently higher than the price of corn.

The Truth About Price-Fixing.

It is not true that there has been an attempt "to regulate the prices of farm products." There has been no attempt to regulate the price of any farm product but wheat. The allied Governments in Europe had set up single agencies to buy food supplies in America. Their purchases of American wheat were sufficient to control the price. They could drain America of its wheat and leave our poorer classes to starve. In order that rich and poor might be treated alike, it was necessary to establish a Government control of price and distribution. And the price of $2.20 a bushel for No. 1 Northern wheat, based on Chicago, was agreed upon by an independent commission, appointed by President Wilson, upon which commission the farming community was represented by six members out of 11.

In some instances the food administration has intervened, at the request of the producers, to obtain a settlement in a local dispute about the price of milk. In the case of pork products the food administration, on the recommendation of the producers, undertook to use the purchases of the allied Governments for the purpose of maintaining a minimum price for live hogs in Chicago. Beyond this invited assistance in the case of milk and pork, and the regulation of the price of wheat, the food administration has not interfered with the price of farm products, except in so far as the control of sugar prices has affected the price of sugar beets.

Sample of Lies About Food.

There has been a report in circulation that the food administration has fixed the price of tomatoes. It is untrue. The food administration has not done anything of the sort, nor tried to do it. It sent out to tomato growers an announcement that the army and navy were ready to receive tenders for canned tomatoes based on a stated price per ton for raw tomatoes. No canner was required to bid, and no limit was set upon the price that he might ask. He was simply told that he might make an offer to the army and navy on the basis mentioned, if he wished. The food administration has no power to fix the price of tomatoes and has shown no desire to obtain the power.

The food administration undertook a campaign of education to persuade the American people to save meat, so that our allies abroad might have sufficient. The German submarines prevented us from transporting our increased surplus to Europe. It has accumulated in the cold-storage warehouses, and it backed up on the farms. The food administration has consequently stopped its campaign for meatless days. It has met with the representatives of the livestock associations and undertaken to do everything possible to clear out the "freezers" by hastening shipments to Europe and by increasing the Government purchases of the higher grades of beef. There will inevitably be criticism now of the food administration for having preached the necessity of meatless meals. The propagandists will not blame the submarines. They will blame the food administration in an attempt to divert the farmer's resentment against Germany into a resentment against the Government's measures of food control.

These measures of food control have been directed more against the middle man than the producer. While fixing for the farmer an arbitrated price for his wheat, they have established a system of licensing, by which millers, bakers, grocers and wholesale and retail dealers have been prevented from profiteering on the farmer's dollar. The fuel administration has fixed the price of coal, because the miner would not work for reasonable wages as long as the mine owner was making an unreasonable gain. Profiteering in army and navy contracts and in shipbuilding has been stopped by the power obtained from Congress to fix the price at cost plus a reasonable profit; and the increase in cost has gone to the workman, not to his employer. All profiteering has not yet been ended. The way to end it has not been found in any country. But the tax on excess profits and on swollen incomes confiscates the illicit harvest and pours it into the country's war chest. The grievances that remain are not class grievances. They are chiefly the inevitable common hardships due to a war that has drawn millions of productive workers into the world's armies and increased the cost of the necessaries of life by decreasing the available supply. In that hardship the farmers share, as we all share.

Along with this campaign to set the farmer against the Government's war measures there has been proceeding a twin campaign to arouse feeling against him by accusing his Western farmers' leagues of disloyalty. That is equally a work in aid of the enemy. The Western farmers have contributed their quotas to enlistments and to the drafts as loyally as any citizens. They have subscribed to the Liberty loans and contributed to the war relief work with unfailing patriotism. They have had their quarrels with the men whom they suspected of exploiting them, just as labor has had its quarrels with its employers. But it is an economic quarrel, and as long as it is conducted without interfering with the nation's war work, the charge of disloyalty is itself traitorous. In all these disputes it is certain that enemy agents will be found on both sides. They at once preach violence among the I. W. W.'s, and lead mobs to attack workmen accused of being I. W. W.'s. They play the same game in every quarrel with which they can hope to divide the country. Beware, Mr. Citizen, of any attempt to make you believe that any class of American citizens, as a class, are disloyal. It is a German lie.

THE PRESS AND THE WAR, AS SEEN BY OSWALD G. VILLARD

in order to fight for the Wilson program. Our enlightened editors, fearful of being accused of desiring a pro-German or a premature peace are talking peace aims not at all, whereas Germany, France and England seethe with discussions in the press and at public meetings as to what the terms shall be and what the new order of the world. But vital as this is, it is no more important than the need for intelligent and thoughtful study of our own reconstruction problems, for upon the way we grapple those will depend the development of our own political welfare and whether it shall be worked out in strife and bitterness or by calm and clear-eyed leadership. The spirit in which the press will approach these problems will have much to do with the place it will hold in the future in the esteem of the American people.

Character Most Needed Now.

Let me say here that I have traveled far and observed journalism in many climes, I have yet to find anywhere the professional code of true and honorable journalists better stated than in the creed of the School of Journalism of the University of Missouri. Were that the creed of every newspaper office the ban of popular displeasure which has rested upon the press in America would never have become of any importance whatever. If this, the oldest and sturdiest of our schools of journalism, whose tenth anniversary we are so gratefully celebrating today, had done nothing else than impress this upon the students who have passed through its gates we should surely still be standing here to acclaim this pioneer in its field and to congratulate it upon a maturity which has dispelled all doubts as to its permanency. By its fruits it is known, and when its kind and wise head (Dean Walter Williams) declares that he is proud of the "courage, conscience and high ideals" its graduates "are putting into practice" he tells us the one thing above all others which we wish to hear.

I, for one, care little to know how great their technical skill, how keen their news sense, how polished their style. These can be acquired elsewhere. I want to be sure—that those who profit by such specialized training come forth inspired with the belief that journalism is not merely an interesting business but a learned profession, to be proud of, unparalleled for its opportunity of service to one's country and humanity, which ennobles and enriches all who enter it in order to serve and not merely for pelf. I want to hear that the graduates of such schools come forth not obsessed to be of those who would pander to low taste to build up a large readership, purchasing success at the cost of honor, truth and decency, but that they are of those who would rather be balked in their life's desire to practice journalism than to aid or abet those newspaper makers among us who stoop low for profit and popularity.

An Example of High Ideals.

I am proud of all of our staff of the New York Evening Post and Nation, but I am particularly proud of one who at 26 looked straight into the eyes of the chief debaser of our profession in America as he offered him $20,000 a year to be the publisher of one of his low sheets and then replied: "With all your millions you have not got money enough to buy my services in any capacity." I believe that President Hill and Dean Williams are wishing that I could add that this man is a graduate of Missouri. He is a graduate of no college, but I hope and trust that every graduate from this School of Journalism carries with him or her a similar unswerving determination not to sell his or her soul no matter how great the financial temptation is. I am sure that President Hall and Dean Williams would rather have one such man among their graduates than to be able to lay claim to an editorial writer, however brilliant and powerful, earning $100,000 a year at the hands of a conscienceless newspaper magnate.

Let me confess that I have not always been certain of the need of a school of journalism, as I have not been impressed with all the schools that I have seen. For I have known journalists of shining character and unsurpassed abilities, men like Carl Schurz, Horace White, Edwin L. Godkin, Edward Cary, Samuel Bowles and George William Curtis, of whom not one was a graduate of a school of journalism and, as is but natural, as yet no graduate has had the opportunity to rise to a position in the profession similar to theirs. They prove first and foremost that character is the primary requisite of journalism and next that it is impossible for an editor or a newspaper writer to have too much education. They were men of the world, they had profound knowledge of many subjects, they were possessed of sound principles of life and politics which became the yardsticks by which they measured all men and all events, and, above all, their souls burned to better the world, to teach certain reforms, to advocate democratic changes in our public life. Such men as these are the ideal journalists and they will find their leadership no matter what the difficulties of their early education.

Whatever may be the final form that training for journalism will take, whatever fate has in store for schools of journalism in the future, I beg of all of you to uphold the highest traditions of our journalism, either in the profession itself or as members of the great public which in the last analysis makes the press what it is. It remains the bulwark of our liberties; the only profession which affords opportunity of influencing public opinion, of doing good, of assailing evil, of going to the rescue of the poor and the oppressed, of daily assaulting those intrenched in privilege and wrongdoing, of exposing faithless servants of the republic and of upholding those who are true to its ideals. No other profession offers such rich reward to him whose lance is ever ready for the public enemy. Help it to constructive patriotism, insist that it shall be worthy of the republic in this hour of its crisis; see to it that it stands unyieldingly for the unselfish American program in this war as outlined by our President; free it from its war-fetters as soon as may be.

debris of the ruin we make of it—then on, on to Berlin, the Black Horse Cavalry sweeping the Wilhelmstrasse like lava down the mountainside, the Junker and the saber rattler flying before us, the tunes being "Dixie" and "Yankee Doodle," the cry being "Hail the French Republic—hail the Republic of Russia—welcome the commonwealth of the Vaterland—no peace with the Kaiser—no parley with autocracy, absolutism and the divine right of Kings—to hell with the Hapsburg and the Hohenzollern!"

War Has Its Compensations

The man who is for peace at any price—who will fight on no provocation—for no cause—is apt to be either what men call "a poor creature" or an impostor set on by ulterior considerations. He may have an unworthy motive or a selfish interest, or he may be a victim of the coward's fear of battle or obsessed by the doctrainaire's theory of universal brotherhood. But, craven or chank, or scheming rogue, he dishonors the noble heritage of manhood which, being common to us all, is only prized and extolled in conspicuous cases of sacrifice or prowess.

Pacifism, as it has shown itself in these times of emergency, has been compounded of each of these ingredients. But it would not have shown itself so strong if it had not been definitely organized, nor definitely organized if it had not been sufficiently financed. The Hague Arbitration movement, backed in this country by the Carnegie Foundation—actually started by the dethroned Czar of Russia—proposed a benefaction to humankind which few if any were disposed to question. It built itself upon a generally accepted truth. The gospel of "peace on earth, good will to men" was preached as never before. Professional warriors arrayed themselves in its behalf. Civilized nations flocked to the new religion and raised the benign standard. Many treaties embodying its aims were negotiated. One, and one alone, of the great Powers held out. That was Germany. Why, we now see clearly what we then did not see at all.

How much, if any, of the Carnegie Foundation money has been applied to the recent agitations against war with Germany, we know not. The activities of Mr. Bryan and Dr. Jordan would lead to the conclusion that it has not been idle, or grudging, since neither of them works for nothing. But it is quite certain that it has been cunningly supplemented and enormously increased by money sent from Berlin to maintain a propaganda to divide our people and paralyze our Government. The prosecution of this now becomes treason and the pacifist who adheres to it is a traitor.

The conspirator who, claiming to be a pacifist, engaged in the nefarious business will be at no loss to save his kin. If he be a German emissary sent over for the purpose he has only to slip away. If he be a Kaiser reservist masquerading as an American citizen he can shift his foot and change his coat. If he be a selfish politician of the Stone-La Follette variety, with an eye on the Hyphenated Vote, he can wink his other eye, hoist the flag and sing "The Star-Spangled Banner" as lustily as the rest.

Those who are most in danger and only in danger are the honest simpletons who stick to it that war is crime; that we have no case against Germany, but, if we have, that it will keep; who go around mouthing socialistic and infidelistic platitudes about a paradisaic dreamland which exists nowhere outside their muddled brains. They cannot see that we have pursued peace to the limit and that peace longer pursued will prove more costly than war. Perverse and egotistical, prompted by the half truths of defective education, uninspired by ideas having any relation to the state of the country, or the spiritual needs of existence, they will not stop their vain chatter until, obstructing enlistments, or menacing public works, they land in jail.

It is grievous that this should be so. Yet it were not occasion for serious comment except that there is a middle class of nondescripts who are more numerous than an earnest and luminous patriotism would have them; men, who were born without enthusiasm and have lived to make money; men with whom "business is business;" men who are indifferent to what happens so it does not happen to them; in short, men who recall the citation from "The Cricket On the Hearth," put into the mouth of Caleb Plummer:

> "There was a jolly miller and he > lived upon the Dee.
> He sang to himself, 'I care for nobody and nobody cares for > me,'"

"a most equivocal jollity," as Dickens does not fail to remark.

These people have sprung from the over-commercialism of 50 years of a kind of uncanny prosperity. Their example has affected injuriously the nation's reputation and has trenched perilously upon the character and habits of the people. It needs to be checked. They need a lesson. Nothing short of the dire exigencies which have come upon us would reach a mass so dense and stoic, so paltry and sordid, so unworthy of the blessings which the heroism of the fathers has secured them. That check and lesson they are about to receive. War is not wholly without its compensations.

II.

The woman who is for peace at any price—whose imagination is filled with the horror of war—who, true to her nature, shrinks from bloodshed—is not as the man who skulks from the line and lowers alike the flag of his country and his manhood. Ah, no! Peace is the glory of woman. Not upon the soul-stirring field of battle—the rather in the dread field hospital after the battle—are her trophies to be found.

Well may she stand out against the strife of nations—yet equally with brave men she has her place in the orbit of duty and valor—and, when there is no peace, when war has come, the woman who whines "I did not raise my boy to be a soldier" forfeits her right and claim to be considered only a little lower than the angels, dishonors the genius of womanhood and removes herself from the company and category of the heroic mothers of the world.

War, horrible as war is—"Hell," as a great warrior said it was—is not without its compensations. No man has more than one time to die. In bringing the realization of death nearer to us war throws a new light upon life. The soldier is a picked man. Whether he be a soldier in arms, or a soldier of the cross, his courage, his loyalty, his love and faith challenge the confidences of men and the adoration of women. If he falls he has paid his mortal debt with honor. If he survives, though crippled, he is not disabled. His crutch tells its own story and carries its mute appeal, and there is an eloquence, though silent, resistless, in the empty sleeve.

Christendom stands face to face with the dispersion of some of its cherished ideals. There is much in its Bible that must needs be retranslated and readjusted. Although this will arouse the theologians, they will have to meet it.

Where this present cataclysm will leave us no man can foresee. Our world is, and will still remain, a world of sin, disease and death. This no man can deny. Science is minimizing disease. Death being certain, can creeds or statutes extirpate sin? Can they change the nature of man?

Before all else they must chasten it. For 2000 years theologic con-

The Doctor's Advice
by Dr. Lewis Baker

The questions answered below are general in character, the symptoms or diseases are given and the answers will apply in any case of similar nature.

Those wishing further advice, free, may address Dr. Lewis Baker, College Bldg., College-Ellwood streets, Dayton, Ohio, enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope for reply. Full name and address must be given, but only initials or fictitious names will be used in my answers. The prescriptions can be filled at any well-stocked drug store. Any druggist can order of wholesaler.

I. E. S. asks: "Please relieve me of a coated tongue, foul breath, headache, constipation and general ill-health."

Answer: If habitually constipated you should take three-grain sulpherb tablets (not sulphur) and arouse the organs which eliminate waste material from your body. These tablets purify the blood and improve the health by acting on the liver, kidneys and bowels. Obtain in sealed tubes with full directions.

George E. writes: "I find my natural strength and nervous system failing me. I do not recuperate as of yore. My food and rest seem not to benefit as they should. Am weak, despondent and unable to perform the duties which were assumed earlier in life, while my ambition for work and pleasure is slowly going."

Answer: I think a powerful, harmless tonic and nervine medicine will rejuvenate and restore the functions of digestion, assimilation and elimination by invigorating the nervous system. Obtain three-grain cadomene tablets, packed in sealed tubes, and take as per directions accompanying.

Louise E. writes: "I have tried a number of fat-reducing remedies with no avail. A friend tells me that your prescription enabled her to reduce 24 pounds. Is it (five-grain arbolone tablets) safe for me to use likewise?"

Answer: If the simple directions are followed, five-grain arbolone tablets are safe in the reduction of abnormal fat. Thousands have been benefited that I know of.

W. W. O. asks: "Can you prescribe a reliable treatment to get rid of dandruff, itching and feverish scalp?"

Answer: I know you can get instant relief and permanent results by using plain yellow minyol as per directions which accompany each 4-oz. jar.

Moses T. writes: "Something seems to be wrong with my system, and I don't know what it is. I have huge puffs under my eyes, my eyes are bloodshot in morning and my feet and ankles are swollen. Sometimes I have chills and feel weak and tired most of the time."

Answer: Your eliminating organs, such as liver and kidneys, are in need of treatment. Begin taking balmwort tablets at once. Get them in sealed tubes with full directions of any well-stocked druggist.

NOTE—For many years Dr. Baker has been giving free advice and prescriptions to millions of people through the press columns, and doubtless has helped in relieving illness and distress more than any single individual in the world's history. Thousands have written him expressions of gratitude and confidence similar to the following:

Dr. Lewis Baker, Dear Sir:—For the enclosed coupon and 2c stamp please send me your "Great Guide Book to Health and Beauty." I am not a regularly trained nurse, but have cared for invalids more than forty years and would be glad to learn many things from your book for their benefit. I have cured myself and nearly 50 others with your wonderful prescription for Rheumatism, and am now taking the Balmwort Tablets for liver and kidneys. Thanking you, I am, Yours sincerely,
MRS. M. T. HUDGINS,
Orange, Texas.

(Frank Graham, who has just finished a comfortable dining-car breakfast, sights along the barrel of his cigar and discovers that the man at the wash-stand is none other than his able and sensible friend, Arthur Edwards, salesman.)

Just Where do You Get Off?

Graham: Hello, Edwards! You on this trip—what's that bottle of yours on the window-sill?

Edwards: That—I'll tell you by asking you a question.

Graham: (Amused) That's fair enough—go ahead.

Edwards: What was the first thing you ordered in the dining car this morning?

Graham: Why, let's see—I needed a little mineral water, and—

Edwards: That's it! Mineral water! Well, this bottle here has made me see my last drop of mineral water! That's Nujol. You've seen it advertised, I guess.

Graham: Sure. You troubled with constipation much?

Edwards: I'm not troubled with it at all, but I would be if it weren't for that bottle.

Graham: Good, eh?

Edwards: Life insurance. I've been on the road a long time. You know, taking orders from a time-table. Well, I've got a good system, but it wrecked me. The hours, the fifty-seven different varieties of drinking water, the small-hotel food, all combined to make me careless about keeping clean inside. Then whenever my bowels didn't act regularly I took a pill or some salts, and pretty soon I had the habit.

Graham: The habit?

Edwards: Yes. You know—the "gimme-something-for-constipation" habit; the druggist shoots you a glass of soda with some salts or a box of powerful laxatives. You get action, all right, you feel weak for a day, and next time you need a stronger dose. That habit cost me a three-months layoff.

Graham: As serious as that, eh?

Edwards: Yes sir. The company had just taken on an examining doctor for the sales staff, and when my turn came for examination the doctor said, "You quit, right now, until you're well." "I'm not exactly sick, Doc," I said. "You're going to be exactly sick," he said, "if you don't do as I tell you. You've got a residue or food-waste in your large intestine; it's getting harder to dislodge every day, and what's more it's decaying and breeding disease germs that spread all through your system. You're sick on your feet right now—the third case I've found today. You fellows on the road are just inviting serious disease through constipation.

Graham: Did you tell him about the cathartics?

Edwards: Yes, and he said "More poison—draws all the natural water out of your system—makes it harder to get rid of the waste." He put me on Nujol. And Nujol put me on my feet. And since then it's been keeping me on my feet.

Graham: How do you account for it?

Edwards: Just this: Nujol is harmless—has no effect on the system except a mechanical one—softens and lubricates—so your body goes right on building while the Nujol works. It works slowly and gently—not like a drug. The more regularly you take it the better you feel. I'd no more be without it than my toothbrush. I'm through with drugs. (He pours out a tablespoonful.) Well, Graham—here's your health!

Graham: Your health, I should say! But it's going to be my health in the future. Let me take a good look at that bottle so that I can get some when we get in. I guess you've talked me into insuring my health in a common-sensible way.

For your own protection insist that the druggist give you the genuine Nujol, in a sealed and capped bottle, bearing the Nujol trademark in red—never otherwise. Nujol is absolutely pure and harmless. Inferior substitutes may give unpleasant results. Genuine Nujol sold by all druggists in the U. S. and Canada.

Send 50 cents and we will ship new kit size bottle to U. S. soldiers and sailors anywhere. Write for attractive free booklet on the Nujol treatment: Section 5, Nujol Dept., Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey), Bayonne, N. J.

"THE MIKADO" TO OPEN LIGHT OPERA AT PARK

Company Will Arrive Here Tonight From New York for Final Rehearsals.

With "The Mikado," one of the most popular of the Gilbert and Sullivan works, the Park Theater will begin a season of light opera next Sunday night, with a reputable list of principals, a chorus of 50, a large orchestra and special scenery and costumes.

The company, which was assembled in New York by Matt Grau, has been in rehearsal there at the Amsterdam Theater, and will arrive here tonight for final rehearsals.

John E. Young, a comedian of past favor in St. Louis, will be seen in many of his best parts. Ivy Scott, the prima donna, has sung in grand opera, including "Madame Butterfly," "Carmen," "Lucia" and "Cavaleria Rusticana," and has appeared in most of the Gilbert and Sullivan operas. Arthur Aldrich, tenor, was last seen here in the De Wolf Hopper revivals of Gilbert and Sullivan works. Nelle Fleming will have ingenue parts. Yra Jeanna, mezzo-soprano, has had many years' experience in roles with the Aborn Opera Co. and Klaw and Erlanger productions.

Stevens Sang at Delmar.

A. L. Pellaton, bass, was formerly with the Metropolitan Opera Co. and several Shubert productions. James Stevens, baritone, has sung at Delmar Garden. Pacie Ripple, tenor, sang all of the tenor leads in the Gilbert and Sullivan operas under the direction of Sir W. S. Gilbert at the Savoy Theater, London. Mildred Rogers, contralto, was for several years in "The Chocolate Soldier," "The Waltz Dream," and Aborn Opera Co. productions. Bertram Peacock, second baritone, has had seven years of experience in stock companies.

W. H. Fitzgerald, stage director, held this position with Fritzie Scheff and Lulu Glaser. He produced all-star performances of "Robin Hood" at the New Amsterdam Theater and of "Rob Roy" at the Liberty Theater, New York. He was stage director of the Castle Square Opera Co. in Boston and produced, at the Auditorium in Chicago, Herbert's "Serenade" and De Koven's "Robin Hood."

Fitzgerald and Frank Mandeville, musical director, have produced nearly 100 operas together, the latter having served with the former at Castle Square. Mandeville has had charge of the orchestra in such productions as "Red Mill," "Merry Widow," "Every Woman," "Flora Bella" and "Flo Flo."

Arab Tumblers to Head Week's Bill at Columbia.

The bill for the week at the Columbia, beginning tomorrow afternoon, will be headed by Bobker's Arabs, a troupe of equilibrists and tumblers. Among many other numbers will be a one-act play, "As a Man Sows," presented by Clifford Hipple and a company.

"Makers of History," a patriotic spectacle, will lead off at the Grand. It was designed and is produced by Albert Leroy. It introduces impersonations of celebrated personages in American history.

Five acts in 60 minutes is the speed schedule to be attempted in the week's vaudeville bill beginning this afternoon at Forest Park Highlands.

troversy has not only kept the world at war, but has driven its inhabitants further apart. It may be that this world war has come to cleanse the earth and to bring all tribes and races to a better understanding of what Christendom is, since there is no reason to doubt that the essential principles of Christianity will continue to dominate the universe.

'Tis a long way, we are told, to the Tipperary of Hibernia, but yet a longer to the Milennial Tipperary of Scriptural mythology. The Christchild must be born again in the heart of man. At this moment it is not the star of Bethlehem that shines. It is the luminary of the war god. The drums beat as for the men of old. "To your tents, O Israel," comes the word out of the deeps of the far away, and from highway and byway, as if in answer, the refrain, 'Tramp, tramp, tramp, the boys are marching."

Yet the Associated Press dispatches carry the following:

"Washington, April 7.—Continuation of the pacifist fight on President Wilson's war program was forecast today when the 50 Representatives who voted against the war resolution received the following identic telegram from Lelia Fay Secor, secretary of the Emergency Peace Federation:

"'On behalf of the Emergency Peace Federation I thank you for your patriotic stand in opposition to war. May I request that you communicate at once with Representative Kitchin, to whom I have written a letter suggesting co-operation between ourselves and the pacifists in Congress.'

"Mr. Kitchin is at his home in North Carolina and details of the scheme outlined in the letter to him could not be learned. He announced before leaving Washington that his opposition to the war program would end with his vote against the resolution."

"Scissors!" shrieks Lelia Fay.

"Scissors!" cries good Mrs. Garrison Villard.

And away off yonder from the limb of a tree the Dickey Bird, impersonated by Claude Kitchin, responds, "Not on your life, ladies!"

Daring Scheme to Foment Balkan Revolt Scientifically, Outlined

Andre Cheradame, Asserting That There Are 60,000,000 Malcontents in Pan-Germany Who Favor What Allies Are Fighting for, Tells How They Should Be Equipped and Aroused to Open Rebellion.

By Rowland Thomas,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WHEN Andre Cheradame states facts about Middle Europe and the Balkans he speaks as a very high authority on such questions. Also, when he suggests a practical course of action based on those facts, he demands most serious attention as a man whose previous foresights, enunciated in minute detail through more than two decades, have been strikingly and completely borne out by the course of events.

THE Secretary of State desires to announce that the proceedings of the Congress of oppressed races of Austria-Hungary, which was held in Rome in April, have been followed with great interest by the Government of the United States and that the nationalistic aspirations of the Czecho-Slovaks and Jugo-Slavs for freedom have the earnest sympathy of this Government. From an official announcement by Secretary Lansing at Washington May 29.

Thirteen years before the war came, Cheradame, from investigations made on the ground, not merely predicted its coming, but in his book, "Europe and the Question of Austria on the Threshold of the Twentieth Century," foretold precisely the strategy which Germany would pursue to bring her to the position she holds today, with her pre-war aims more than nine-tenth attained. Ten years before the collapse of Russia, Cheradame, from studies made on the ground, pointed out in his book, "The World and the Russo-Japanese War," that Russia was eliminated for at least a generation as a military Power and would crumble if put to the test.

Pan-Germany Laid Open.

Now, in this interview, he turns his attention, backed by his enormous fund of information, to the present and the immediate future. What he has to point out and suggest is startling in its novelty.

Pan-Germany laid square open through the middle, as a man's head might be by a powerful saber stroke. Austria-Hungary in the throes of a revolution, torn apart into her component nationalities—Czeches in Bohemia, Slovaks in Galicia, Jugo-Slavs in Herzegovina, Rumanians in Transylvania and Bukowina—all turned in strife to the death again at the Teuton and Magyar. North of them, patient Poland, roused and unified at last, fighting with equal ferocity for the precious right of nationality. To the south, all through the Balkans, ringing traitorous Bulgaria with an advancing wall of steel, backed and based on liberty-loving Greece and the Aegean, all the Jugo-Slavic and Latin races of the Balkans—Serbians, Rumanians, Montenegrins. North of all, her supply arteries to south and southeastward squarely cut across, isolated from Turkey and Asia Minor, from the granaries and supply field of the plain of Hungary, of Rumania and the Ukraine, an isolated Germany compelled to fight the flame in her rear as best she may, a desperate Germany, knowing that if she cannot master this overmastering crisis all is finished—the war ended, and with it every last hope for realization of the long-cherished Pan-German dream, vanished along with the geographical fact of a solid Middle Europe, Germanically dominated.

"No Political Strategy."

A revolutionary conflagration of riot and civil strife on the hugest scale humanity has even seen—a caldron of human flame stretching through all the enslaved non-Teutonic regions of Pan-Germany—a molten outburst of the passions of 60,000,000 German-hating rebels. And over all this, fanning it, as it were, with their mighty rushing wings, squadron after squadron of giant burden-bearing airplanes, hundreds on hundreds of the huge Caproni-type things with their effective action radius constantly increasing. What are they doing? Carrying ammunition and explosives to those 60,000,000 revolutionaries, just as before the outburst they carried riot-guns and rifles.

What could Germany do about that?

"That," he ended, "is the sure way to end the war. And the sole way," he added, "to quickly win a lasting peace. Blow up, disintegrate, the solid German block of Middle Europe, cut forever square across the Hamburg-Persian Gulf program, and the unautocratic world is safe. Fail to do that, and comes for another generative militarism this time, to guard against the world-wide German insanity—and eventually another war, a worse war than this one. For Germany will be stronger next time, if we leave a next time for her.'

"But what proof is there that such a conflagration could ever be brought about?

"The same proof there was before the war," he said, "that the submarine could be brought to such a stage of efficiency as to be the sea's deadliest menace. The proof of trying. The proof of applying all our imagination, just as our enemies do. We have much to learn from the Germans.

"Remember," he went on, "so far in this war we allies have used only a military strategy. Our enemies have been using both a military and a political strategy. This matter we are speaking of will illustrate the point.

"If the conditions were reversed—if it were the Germans who had an almost solid group of 60,000,000 friends at the most vital point inside the enemy fortress, 60,000,000 people who earnestly hated the enemy and ardently longed for the application to themselves of the very principles the Germans were fighting for—we know very well that the Germans would contrive to do something for themselves with those 60,000,000 friends. They have already contrived, by the application of political strategy, to do a great deal for themselves with much smaller groups of friends who were much harder to come at. Look at what they have done in Ireland among the England-haters. Look at what they have done in Mexico—in the United States among the hyphenates and the social revolutionaries and the negroes—in Africa and Egypt and India among the religious and racial bigots. That they have not accomplished more is the fault of conditions, not of their lack of perception and initiative. They always try everything they can see to try.

"Quickly and thoroughly they seize all chances. Do you know what is happening in Russia and Central Asia now? From the moment of Russia's collapse that whole vast region has become a hotbed of pan-Islamic propagandists, sent in there by the Germans, with the enormous prestige of being backed by the Sultan, the commander of the faithful. And do you realize what that activity may result in? I do not say what it will, but what it may result in. In Russia alone there are 18,000,000 Moslems. In Persia, in the Caucasus, in Afghanistan and Turkestan, there are other millions more, all the raw material of very excellent troops. Suppose that from among them, and from among the millions of Russians in the Ukraine which she now dominates, Germany should succeed in organizing a part into fresh troops. That would neutralize all the man contributions of the United States. I do not say Germany will do that. But she is already taking steps to try to do it. It is a possibility. It is a danger remote still by some time. While it is still remote is the time political

The Battle for Paris and Its Lessons

Frank H. Simonds Says Allies Must Quickly Find New Methods to Meet Other German Thrusts

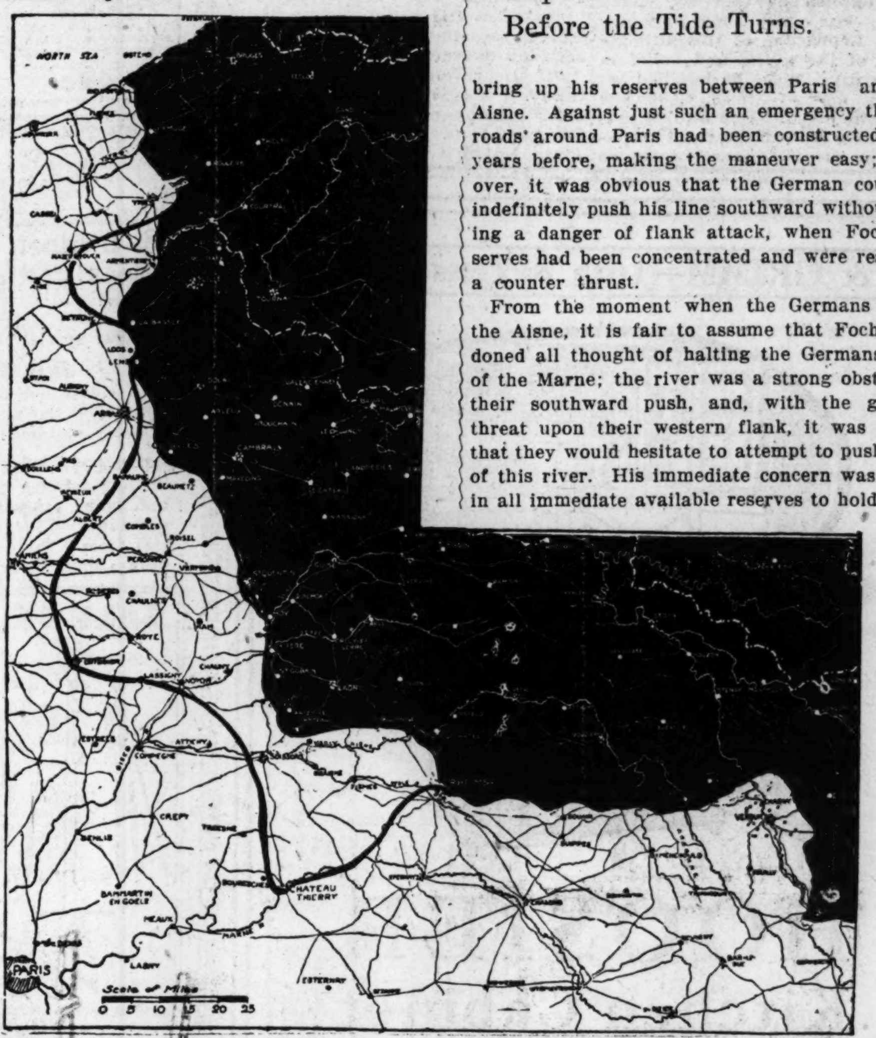
The Post-Dispatch's Military Expert Believes New Blow Will Come Shortly Somewhere Between Verdun and Lille, for Germans Will Stake All to Win Before We "Get In" in Sufficient Force to Turn Them Back.

Worst for 1918 Campaign Is Far From Over and, Since We Have Elected to Give the Enemy the Offensive Temporarily, We Must Expect Other Periods of Anxiety Before the Tide Turns.

By FRANK H. SIMONDS
Author of "The Great War"

THE THREE GERMAN THRUSTS

The black shows the territory occupied by the Germans prior to March 21, last. The heavy black line shows their advance in the three great thrusts since Marsh 21. Note, by following it, the dislocation of the allied front from Rheims to Ypres.



THE struggle which the French military commentators, with an eye to the picturesque rather than the accurate, have named "the battle for Paris" sees the Germans checked on the whole front between the Oise and the Marne. The French reserves have arrived and intervened, the mission of the holding divisions, which fought to delay the German advance against the coming of the main reserves, has been completed, the Germans have now to choose between an attack upon a concentrated enemy and the refusal of battle on the present front and the subsequent attack upon some other front. In the same situation on Picardy in the first days of April and in Flanders in the last the Germans declined battle.

We have, then, in a sense, a finished episode. With their attack on Monday, May 27, the Germans broke the Anglo-French line north of the Aisne, practically destroyed the troops immediately on these lines, crossed the difficult Aisne, passed the Vesle and by Saturday reached the Marne between Dormans and Chateau Thierry, but midway on the roads from the Aisne to the Marne their main mass shifted its direction and began marching, not toward the Marne and the fields south of the river, where the main engagements of the battle of the Marne were fought in 1914, but toward Paris; in a word, they turned west, after having moved south for a little less than 20 miles and the real action, thereafter, was along a front running north and south.

In my article of last Sunday I promised to discuss this whole operation in some detail and I now purpose to do this, bearing in mind the fact that while the first phase is over the venture as a whole is not necessarily terminated as yet and that the Germans may still elect to put in the balance of their very great reserve—they have used not more than 50 divisions out of a possible hundred, so far—and that the consequences may be a long-drawn-out struggle between the Marne and the Oise, close to if not on the old fighting ground of the battle of Ourcq, in September, 1914.

Fought Over Famous Battleground

To start at the beginning, the Germans, on Monday, May 27, attacked on a 30-mile front along the high ground which lies between the tiny Ailette River and the more considerable Aisne. Their attack was based upon Laon, the center of various railways coming down from the north and the objective of Nivelle's ill-starred offensive in 1917. Roughly speaking, the Anglo-French lines rested upon the plateau between the Aisne and the Ailette from the angle between the Oise and the Aisne north of Compiegne, to the plain due north of Rheims, which is traversed by the famous Chemin des Dames.

All the way from the hills north of Soissons to Rheims this battleground had been famous in many struggles between 1914 and the present hour. It saw the stand of Kluck's army after the retreat from the Marne, which constituted the first battle of the Aisne. It saw the French push for Laon last spring and the later German bid for the Chemin des Dames, northwest of Rheims. Finally, it saw the brilliant local victory of Petain last year, which cleared the south bank of the Aisne.

On a front of rather less than 30 miles the French and British occupied admirable high ground, commanding the Ailette Valley before them and a wide sweep of country to the north. No portion of the whole front seemed stronger and their faith in the strength of the position seemed justified by the fact that last year a German offensive against the Chemin des Dames had failed to net a half-mile gain in a month of the severest possible fighting. So sure did the allied commanders feel of their position that they had allotted to defend it only a few British and French divisions, which had fought in the March struggle for Amiens and had suffered great losses. These had been sent to the Aisne sector to rest and refit.

Once more, as before St. Quentin and along the Lys, the German attack was immediately successful. A very brief but intensive bombardment was followed by a rush of many divisions, somewhere between 20 and 25, upwards of a quarter of a million of men, which promptly and completely broke the whole line on the Aisne hills, from the region of Craonne to the high ground 10 miles or more north of Soissons. We had again, as at St. Quentin in March, not merely the bending of the line, but a break through, the abolition of at least 20 miles of allied front. Into this gap the Germans now pushed still further divisions, their total rising steadily in the next few days, until it reached 50.

Allied Hopes Were Disappointed

Despite the initial defeat, it was to be expected that the allies would be able to hold the south bank of the Aisne from Berry-Au-Bac to Soissons. Kluck had held the north bank after his retreat from before Paris, and the river constituted a military obstacle of real value. Behind it, too, a few miles to the south, was the Vesle, smaller, but also an obstacle that would materially aid a powerful defensive. But just as the similar advantages offered by the Somme between Ham and Peronne in March were lost to the allies, with no considerable effort at defense, the crossings of the Aisne and the Vesle were surrendered with only local resistance.

The problem then became simple. The Germans had breached the allied line on a 30-mile front, the resistance about Soissons and Rheims promptly narrowed the gap to 20, but on this 20-mile front the Germans now were free to advance, with little before them save the wrecks of the divisions beaten in the first attack. The question of how far they could get south before the allied reserves arrived was debated for several days, during which the German line steadily moved southward.

Foch, on the contrary, had to face this situation: His line had been broken at a point where, so far as one can judge, he had no local reserves behind, to throw in. His task was, therefore, to assemble reserves and put them in, first, to slow down the pace of the German advance, and, second, to check it when the number of French troops had increased to the proper proportion. But in doing this he had always to reckon with the possibility that if he withdrew any large mass of reserves from any point of his line, the Germans might assail this with their remaining 50 divisions, just as they had attacked in Picardy, and then, when British reserves had been drawn down from the north, struck again in Flanders. At no time could he be sure that the Aisne blow was the main or the only blow contemplated by the Germans.

Foch also had to recognize the distinct threat to Paris contained in the German advance, which, while originally directed from north to south, was bound to tend more and more in the direction of the French capital. It was impracticable, therefore, to bring reserves and throw them in front of the German push toward the Marne, because this would mean moving them up south of the Marne, and if the German presently extended the front of his attack between the Aisne and the Oise, these troops would be far out on the side of the main struggle.

Foch's Aims Have Been Attained

The allied commander in chief had in any case to assure the safety of Paris, and therefore to bring up his reserves between Paris and the Aisne. Against just such an emergency the railroads around Paris had been constructed many years before, making the maneuver easy; moreover, it was obvious that the German could not indefinitely push his line southward without risking a danger of flank attack, when Foch's reserves had been concentrated and were ready for a counter thrust.

From the moment when the Germans passed the Aisne, it is fair to assume that Foch abandoned all thought of halting the Germans north of the Marne; the river was a strong obstacle to their southward push, and, with the growing threat upon their western flank, it was certain that they would hesitate to attempt to push south of this river. His immediate concern was to put in all immediate available reserves to hold to the two anchorages upon which the broad line had rested, namely, Soissons and Rheims, thus confining the Germans within a narrow pocket and preventing a wider dislocation of the allied front, which might extend as far as the Argonne, or even to Verdun.

The region between the Vesle and the Marne, therefore, ceased to have immediate importance, once the Germans had passed the Vesle. Foch accepted as an inevitable consequence of the initial German success the loss of the country to the north bank of the Marne, although it involved the cutting of the very important Paris-Chalons-Nancy railroad. It was a heavy sacrifice, but it had been made by the first defeat. Henceforth the German advance and the French defense in this district were conducted by relatively insignificant numbers. What Foch was trying to do was (1) to strengthen the front between Soissons and Chateau Thierry, that is, between the Marne and the Aisne; and (2) to hold the line between Rheims and the Marne, in the rear of the German push. He was thus, while preparing to dispute every foot of the road between the Germans and Paris, striving to keep in his hands positions between the rear of the German push toward Paris which might enable him to strike a blow in the future.

In both of these enterprises Foch was substantially successful. He did hold Rheims, despite the grave threat to it constituted by the German rush south, and he did hold what was even more important, and that was the high ground south of Rheims, the Montagne de Rheims, which is the military position. And he also delayed the German push toward Paris, while his reserves were coming up, although he could not at once check this push and the Germans were able to advance astride the Ourcq in the direction of the great forest of Villers-Cotteret, which is one of the natural obstacles covering Paris at a distance of some 40 miles.

German Objectives Were Blocked

Meantime, the Germans' purpose was twofold—to widen the original break as much as possible and, having securely established his southern flank upon the Marne, to drive westward along the roads to Paris, along which Kluck had retreated after the battle of the Ourcq.

The first of these purposes was accomplished, with little real opposition, so far as advancing to the Marne was concerned, but was not accomplished so far as any substantial widening of the salient was concerned. As to the second, there was no real achievement along this line, because by the time the Germans had begun to change direction and move west, not south, toward Paris and not toward the Marne, that is, as soon as their main push had been redirected, French reserves began to arrive and to check the drive toward Paris. By the end of the first week this operation had become almost blocked, although

British Officer Describes His Visit to U. S. Battle Squadron "Over There"

"I Came Nearer Feeling Sorrier for the Hun Than Since the War Started," He Writes After Looking Over Our Highly Efficient Men and Ships.

By BARTIMEUS,
A British Naval Officer, Who Served Until Recently With the British Grand Fleet Under Admiral Jellicoe, but Now Invalided From Active Service.

NO propaganda poster artist with an eye to lurid backgrounds could have secured such an effect. Great buttresses of cloud, inky black with their burden of unshed snow, were banked about the sunset. The snow that had fallen during the past week rested like a shroud upon peak and headland promontory and clifftop, encircling the sumber waters of Ultima Thule with a dazzling white girdle. Against this background lay the Grand Fleet, an agglomeration of tripod masts and superimposed structures, as familiar a feature of the scene as the surf that broke endlessly about the cliffs, or the unappeased calling of the gulls.

A little to the westward, however, where the cloud-masonry was split and reft by crimson shafts of light, an outstretched wing of the vast battle fleet struck an oddly unfamiliar note. Instead of the tripod masts and hooded control-tops, slender towers of latticed steel rose in pairs from each hull. Against the black clouds, every ensign in the fleet was clearly discernible; but it was not the White Ensign that showed up so vividly above the strangers. It was the 'Stars and Stripes' painted with the glory of a Northern winter sunset.

Great Welcome by the Grand Fleet.

Only a few weeks had elapsed since they arrived, rust-streaked and travel-stained, as ships might well be that had battled through one winter gale after another from Chesapeake Bay to Ultima Thule; and at the sight of them the gray, war-weary battle-fleet of Britain burst into a roar of welcome such as had never before greeted a stranger within its gates in either peace or war. For—and herein lies the magic of the thing—these were not merely allies swinging up on the flank of a common battle-line, but kinsmen joining kinsmen as an integral part of one fleet. The rattle of their cables through the hawse pipes was drowned by the tumult of cheering, and forthwith the American Admiral dispatched a telegram to Washington, whose laconic business-like brevity alone did justice to what may prove the most significant message of history: "Arrived as per schedule," it said.

This linking of the two navies may need an explanation. It may be asked (it will be asked if I know anything of the talkers in this war): Could not the American fleet co-operate in the war without merging its identity in that of the British? The answer is this: Victory in modern naval warfare demands more than mere co-operation between allied squadrons. Navies fight otherwise than armies, whose Generals can meet and confer even during the crisis of a battle. Squadrons working in unity afloat require one controlling intellect, one source of orders and information; one pair of shoulders and one only to take the burden of final responsibility.

Hence, to the Sure Shield of Civilization and the allied cause has been added a formidable Buckler. The Grand Fleet has had grafted into its side a new rib and a stout one.

Learning Each Other's Signals Hard Work.

It must be realized, however, that a common speech between two nations does not necessarily mean that their respective navies talk in the same tongue. The system of signalling in the American Fleet, the significance of flags, the arrangement of codes and cyphers, are peculiarly and completely theirs. The meanings of the flags had nothing in common with the British. Their system has been evolved through generations; is, so to speak, their navy's mother tongue. The signalmen of the —th Battle Squadron, blowing on their numbed fingers amid the snows of Ultima Thule, had to forget in 24 hours what had been laboriously taught them for years. They had to master a different colored alphabet as it is glimpsed two miles away tangled up in halliards or half obscured by funnel (and mayhap) battle smoke. Maneuvers on a scale they had hitherto regarded as exceptional, fleet exercises and squadron competition, intership signalese (whereby the movement of a semaphore arm through fifteen degrees of the arc meant things undreamed of in their philosophy), tricks which Northern visibility plays with daylight signaling—these things were their daily and nightly portion.

In the words of one of them, "it was a tough proposition," and they tackled it like tigers. In a fortnight they were through with it. In a month the British Signal Boatswains rubbed their telescope lenses and said they were damned.

But the communication problem didn't end there. Wireless plays an even more important part than visual signalling in naval warfare. It is important enough in peace, and the American Fleet had by no means neglected the subject. But aerial conditions in the region of Manila differ considerably from those in the North Sea. Speaking radiographically, the North Sea is the most crowded thoroughfare in the world. All through the 24 hours ships and submarines and shore wireless stations are talking, talking, talking. British warnings to shipping on its lawful occasions, streams of lies from Berlin (branded at the outset "German Press Message"), cypher cryptograms from three admiralties, destroyers bleating in a fog, appeals from a hunted merchantman, all these interspersed with the gibbering Telefunken of the German submarine.

Serious Problems for the Wireless Outfit, Too.

Now the American wireless experts have been concerned principally with covering long distances. The development of "spark" and power in a comparatively undisturbed ether was the main preoccupation of their operators. From this serene condition, ships and silent cabinets passed into the windy parrot-house of the North Sea. Here, power, as they understood the term, was negligible. The greatest distance required of either Hertzian waves was a preposterous 400 miles or so. But not only had they to thread a way unbroken through this aerial babel, but, what was even more difficult, the operator was required to detect and read messages on one tune in a vast discord of diverse and unfamiliar notes. It is even said that an Englishman's touch on a sending key differs from that of an American as radically as the spoken accent differs. Yet, after a month of assiduous practice, the former are in a fair way to presenting as few difficulties to communication as the latter.

So much for the technical aspect of the affair. But there is another to consider; each nation having evolved, perfected and adopted a system, considers it, ipso facto, the best system in the world. To ask a segment of that nation to dump the cherished thing overboard and adopt the theory and practice of another nation "likely not so good" is demanding much. That the order was obeyed instantly goes without saying. But let it be noted that it was obeyed in a spirit of uncritical loyalty and whole-souled enthusiasm by every man concerned from Admiral to signal boy. To this the British Commander in Chief has testified.

But after all, these matters are merely externals. In adopting British strategy would indicate our taking strong steps to offset it. How?

"Can you think of any directer step than to make use of those 60,000,000 friends who are not only ready-made for us, but who are placed in the very heart of the enemy's fortress, in what should be his final and securest citadel? And which is instead the only real cause of anxiety which besets Germany at the present moment. For Germany knowns the full danger of the internal Austrian situation.

"Austria is the weak and vital point in the pan-German position. If Austria gets out of German control, pan-Germanism is destroyed. Therefore, Austria is the point to strike at, and by political as well as military strategy. This coincidence of opinion is not, of course, absolue proof that we are right. But it is suggestive. How often do we see 12 surgical specialists, for instance, gathered round the bed of a patient able to agree unanimously on what ails him.

Allies Weak on Propaganda.

"Their intellectual—or rather, unintellectual—conduct of the war has been the weak point of the allies, and nowhere more than in their miscomprehension of the Austrian situation. If it had not been for their mistakes, I believe a revolution of the prepondering Slavic and Latin element in Austria's population would long since have erased the dual monarchy and brought Germany to her knees.

"Instead the allies have actually taken steps which strengthened the Teutonic position. As when, for instance, at Italy's entrance into the war, England and France made with her a treaty—recently ratified, one is glad to observe—pledging territorial adjustments of such a sort as to alienate a great Jugo-Slavic population on the eastern coast of the Adriatic. Another unfortunate step was when, after Bohemia had broken into open revolt, Lloyd George stated in the House of Commons that it was not the intention of the allies to disturb in any way the existing organization of the Austro-Hungarian monarchy. Germany had but to circulate copies of this speech among the revolutionaries and prove to the latter that they stood utterly friendless and hopeless of the future, drowning in a sea of Teutonism.

"Such mistakes are typical. We have not used political strategy; the Germans have used it. We have tried something well-meant and vague with Bulgaria, with Turkey, with Austria herself. The attempts have proved fruitless. They are bound to prove fruitless. But there we have those 60,000,000 friends inside Pan-Germany. We must do something with them. We must utilize the principles of democracy and nationality not only for peace and peace talk, but for war-winning. We have said we want to do something for Russia. To do something effective in Middle Europe is the best, I think the only, way to help Russia at present."

"But what," I asked him, "can we do? To be sure there are those 60,000,000 slavs and Latins in Poland. Austria and the Balkans who desire freedom from the German yoke and would fight hard for it, if they could fight. But they are in the midst of Germany. They are unorganized. They have no munitions. What would a revolution under such circumstances be but an invitation to a general massacre which would permanently solve the Middle European question in a deadly way by eliminating all but the German population? All conditions considered, what is there we could do to help them revolt successfully?"

"To strike the blow at Austria which considerations of political strategy reveal as the sure way to establish permanent world-wide peace on a democratic basis," said Andre Cheradame, "these steps are necessary:

"First: A final, definite and unequivocal announcement on the part of the allies that the artificial conglomeration of territories under the name of Austria-Hungary is to have no future political existence; that the right of the various nationalities inhabiting those territories to have a national existence is fully recognized and will be fully supported now and in the future.

"Similar declarations in regard to Slavic and Latin peoples living outside Austria-Hungary, that is, in Poland and the Balkans, must similarly assure these peoples that the rest of the non-Teutonic world is with them in their fight against Teutonization.

"Second: By a propaganda carefully worked out and as thoroughly applied as that by which Germany has established her own position, knowledge of this ultimate decision of the allies, and belief in their sincerity, must be instilled into every one of those 60,000,000 people who are to flame into revolution. Along with that mental preparation for successful revolt must go an equally vigorous physical preparation. All those individuals must be to some extent organized and trained for the work they have to do. In saying this, I do not fail to recognize the hugeness of the task. Not weeks, but months, will be necessary for it. But to a sufficiently fixed determination, most things are possible. And we must not forget that in France and Italy, at the present moment, are thousands of men fully equipped to act both as our missionaries of freedom and our military organizers and trainers inside the enemy lines. They are the thousands of officers and soldiers, German drilled but of Slavic and Latin blood, speech and sympathies, who deserted from the German and Austrian armies and are now fighting in our trenches and burning to strike a fatal blow at the men they hate beyond your conception. These men are ready and willing to do and dare anything to destroy Pan-Germanism. They speak the languages of the country. If Germany can manage to maintain her agents throughout the world, we can manage to maintain these men inside their own home lands.

We Must Supply Munitions.

"Third: We must manage to supply those 60,000,000 German haters inside Pan-Germany with abundant working tools of revolution—small arms to fight with ammunition for them, bombs and explosives. For preparation and action on a vast scale is essential in this attempt. Everything depends on that.

"If the revolt breaks out prematurely, if it is local or sporadic, Germany might cope with it through the massacres and terrorism you forecast. But if it is universal, of enormous extent, what can Germany do? All the fire departments in the world could not quench a volcano. And all the terrorism even Germany is capable of would have its hands more than filled with the passions of 60,000,000 desperate people who knew they had the support of the rest of the world behind them.

"On the vastest scale, then, this revolt must be prepared and carried through. How? There is the place for using all our imagination and all our will. It has been a fatal fault of the allies all through that they tended to turn their eyes aside from the exigencies and fix their gaze full on the difficulties. Whereas Germany, when each new problem rose, turned all her energies to find some new way to solve it.

"We must do the same here. Organizing and supporting a revolt of 60,000,000 people is an entirely new thing. There are no rules from the past—no precedents. We must use

BE CAREFUL IN USING SOAP ON YOUR HAIR

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulsified cocoanut oil, for it is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats the most expensive soaps or anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.—ADV.

DARING SCHEME TO FOMENT REVOLT IN BALKANS OUTLINED

the most modern means the most modern science can contrive. These 60,000,000 people are so placed geographically that penetration to them by land is unfeasible. Between our borders and their borders only the air affords an open passage.

"Very well; use the air, then! Modernest science has already pointed the way. The new heavy duty airplanes—the planes of the Caproni type, for instance—do you know what they are doing already? They are carrying two tons burden, and their radius of action is constantly on the increase. They are ready to our hand. Give us enough of them and we can spread the necessary small arms and explosives through the most parts of the territories where those 60,000,000 German haters live. Here is where the intervention of the United States in the war can count uniquely. You and you only—once your airplane industry is fully developed, as it soon will be—can furnish enough planes for this coup with sufficient promptness.

"And what will the result of all this be? A revolutionary conflagration much too fierce and widely spread to quench with any means at Germany's command. Her vital lines of food supply and military communication cut. Austria-Hungary annihilated—the Hamburg-Persian Gulf dream shattered, and with it the whole pang-German program. A basis created for a United States of Middle Europe and the Balkans. Autocracy—the autocracy alike of Prussian junkers and Hungarian feudal landlords—crushed beyond retrieving. Democracy established firmly on the earth which is its birthright.

"But this, remember, is a undertaking the success of which depends on its being prepared and executed on a vast scale. I emphasize that condition. But it is not one which should discourage us. The means for scientifically creating insurrection in Central Europe are absolutely within the limits of our resources. It is simply needful to apply them energetically and methodically.

"I wish to add one point. This operation would also be wholly advantageous to the existing operations on the western front. It is clear that if an insurrection in Central Europe could have been brought about six months ago the present German offensive in the West would have been impossible."

SIMONDS REVIEWS BATTLE FOR PARIS AND ITS LESSONS

minor changes in favor of the Germans were still taking place. But, in the main, the front was stabilizing itself.

We see, then, quite clearly what occurred. First, the German broke through the allied front by a swift attack in overwhelming numbers, as immediately successful as that of March 21. Second, he followed up this original advantage by an advance so rapid as to prevent the allies from defending the crossings of the Aisne or the Vesle. The consequence of this was the loss of the whole region between the Marne and the Aisne, a square with Soissons, Rheims, Chateau-Thierry and Dormans marking the conners, although Rheims remained in French hands.

This was the exact reproduction of what happened in Picardy in March, but again, as in March, when the Germans endeavored to take the road for Paris, after breaking the lines, they were checked by the arrival of French reserves, which took their stand between the Oise and the Marne as, in March, other reserves had taken their stand between the Oise and the Avre. In cutting the Paris-Nancy railroad by shell fire, if they did not quite reach it, the Germans had accomplished something even more useful than their success in cutting the Paris-Amiens railway in March, and by the same method, but this was the most important detail in their achievement, aside from their capture of some 35,000 prisoners and many guns, a bag about a third as great as that collected in Picardy two months earlier.

Transitional Warfare Stage Reached.

So much for the German achievement in the first nine days; now what does it mean in terms of the present campaign? First of all, it would seem to mean that we have come to a transitional stage in warfare. The German has devised a method of attack which it at least temporarily so superior to the allied defense that he can win through the trench positions of his foes and take a 20 or 30 mile advance on a front of equal extent whenever he brings sufficient men and guns to bear to produce his effort. Each of his three major attacks has succeeded beyond all possible calculation on the allied side, and the results of these leave little doubt as to his ability to repeat the success, so long as he shall have the men and guns in reserve for such enterprises.

Unless all signs fail, therefore, we are likely to see a profound modification of defensive tactics. The French and British, still following the methods developed during the war and used with complete success by the Germans in the three campaigns in which they accepted the defenses in the west, in order to deal with Russia in the east, have undertaken to hold their lines lightly and retain in their rear large reserves, which are to be used at the point attacked by the Germans.

But this theory rests upon the assumption, now proven false, that the weakly held front lines can be defended until the reserves are able to intervene and restore the balance. This was the case on the German side when the French attacked in Champagne in 1915, it was true on the French side when the Germans attacked Verdun in 1916. The method sufficed to defeat Nivelle at the Aisne a year ago and led to the bloody failure in Flanders a few months later.

We are bound to conclude, however, as a result of less than three months of experience in the present campaign that the allies must abandon the theory which formed the base of their calculation for this year, and either adopt some new policy or some material modification of their present system. It is inconceivable that they can consent to run the risks incident to several more German successes like the last three, two of which have held out a real possibility of disaster, in the opening hours, owing to the completeness of the rupture of the allied lines.

On the other hand, while the results of the past three months have been unmistakably depressing, we are bound to recognize that the losses in territory have not been accompanied by proportionate losses either in men or in chances of maintaining defense. We are all of us more or less hypnotized by the man and by the sentimental value or the fancied military value of certain cities which they do not actually possess. The issue of the present campaign does not turn upon geography, but upon numbers. The fall of Paris, to take an extreme illustration, would not have a military value unless it were accompanied by a disaster which would insure German victory. The moral effect of the fall of Paris is quite another consideration.

We may say that Foch is bound to defend Paris to the last, because of the moral value, but this is true of no other geographical point. It seems to me far from unlikely that the British may have ultimately to come back south of the Somme and abandon the channel ports. This seems possible, because I can think of not other way during the next three critical months that the allies can hope to lay hands on sufficient reserves to meet the various German thrusts promptly and thus limit their advance. A retreat behind the Somme would supply these reserves, because the line would be shortened by such a retreat more than a hundred miles and almost all of the British army would be released.

Campaign Back to 1914 Conditions.

By reason of his new tactics and his interior position the German has opened the present campaign with almost the same advantages with

An Editor Recommends "5-DROPS" To Rheumatic Sufferers

Mr. L. P. Hill, editor Enterprise, Ensley, Ala., writes: "I want to tell you that I have been living in this district for the past 27 years and there is no man that is better known than I am. I tell you this because I want you to know that I am no stranger to the people. About twenty days ago I was down on my back with the worst case of rheumatism and I began to use your medicine and in about a week I was on my feet again. People all over Birmingham and Ensley were astonished to see me get well so quick and wanted to know what medicine I took. I told them '5-DROPS' and every man who has the rheumatism knows of your medicine and say they will use it. I am telling every one of the virtue of your remedy and I am sure it will increase the sale of same."

Such evidence as this should be sufficient to prove to any person the value of "5-Drops" in rheumatic troubles.

"5-Drops" is sold by the leading druggists in every part of the United States and Canada.

Just One Application and the Hairs Vanish

(Toilet Talks.)

Any woman can keep her skin free from unsightly hair or fuzz if she will follow these simple instructions: When hairy growths appear, apply a simple paste, made by mixing some water with powdered delatone. Apply this to hairy surface and after 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. This is a harmless treatment, but be sure you get the real delatone.—ADV.

which he opened the campaign of 1914, and it was not until the French had achieved a counter concentration that the Germans were decisively defeated at the Marne and their threat to France abolished for nearly four years, since they were never able again to gain a decisive advantage in concentration against their enemy. They have achieved their former advantage again, because the allies rested their plans upon the faulty major premise that no German advance against trench systems could be sufficiently successful at the outset to preclude the intervention of allied reserves in time to localize the German gain. Three times the Germans have proven the fallacy of this theory, and the result of their demonstration has been a dislocation of practically all the allied front between Rheims and the sea. Twice this dislocation has carried with it the possibility of grave disaster, and in Picardy nearly three months ago the peril was greater than the western allies have known since the far-off Marne days.

But having emphasized the opening successes of the Germans and the evident confusion they have wrought in allied plans, it is necessary to point out that what the Germans have so far accomplished does not carry with it the promise of final victory for them. The great battle is not for positions, but for the destruction of reserves. So far we may calculate that each side has lost something less than 500,000, perhaps 450,000; that the difference between the two casualty lists is not great.

Now unless all reports are wrong, the United States has already sent to Europe more than enough fighting men to replace allied wastage immediately—that is to supply 450,000 men, all of whom should have been available this year—while the Germans have had to find in their own population the reserves to mend their lines. They are seeking to reduce allied numbers and morale so as to be able before their own striking power is exhausted, to deal one more blow, such as they attempted at the Marne, and winning this time, to end the war. And so far they have conquered valuable but not decisively valuable territory, at a cost of at least equal casualties.

Meanwhile America Is "Getting In."

They have consumed more than 10 weeks, during which we have sent at least 300,000 troops to France, and these 10 weeks bring the hour nearer when all of our troops will be ready to intervene. The Germans must win this campaign before we can put in 500,000 men or they cannot win it at all. And they have not yet made any great step toward winning it, since they have not destroyed any substantial portion of the French and British armies before them.

We are bound to see the allies lose more ground, and possibly submit to other periods of great strain. We are prepared to see them relinquish large areas of northern France, as Joffre did in 1914, but we are bound also to recognize that this change in strategy is due to a return to the war of movement and a conseqquent return to those methods by which Joffre won the greatest battle in military history before trench war came. And we must not attach to ground a value which it didn't have in 1914, and has not now, although it may have possessed that value in the intermediate period.

In 1914 as in 1919 the German is staking all on a great effort which can only succeed if it breaks the power of resistence in his enemy and this must be determined before the Americans intervene in great number, just as in 1914 it was essential to win before Russia became dangerous; and we are likely to see Foch follow the course of his old chief, Joffre, and wait the right moment, sacrificing territory against that even more valuable commodity, time. And we owe it to the cause to perceive the conditions of the struggle and not accept the German estimate of success, which, although considerable, are not sufficient, and cannot, unless enormously increased, make his last bid for military decision successful.

And once more it is essential to emphasize the fact that up to June 4 the German in his Aisne offensive had used not more than 50 divisions—almost no more than half of his immediate available striking power. We must then expect with little delay a blow somewhere between Verdun and Lille.

When that blow is parried another is inevitable, but before it is parried we may have another bad quarter of an hour of anxiety. The worst is far from over in the campaign of 1918, but so far we have survived three blows with our military organization unbroken.

BRITISH OFFICER TELLS OF VISIT TO OUR BATTLE FLEET

methods of communication and staff work for the smooth working of the whole, the American ships have not lost a jot of their identity. Their customs remain, with their traditions, American; indeed, they are but thrown into stronger relief; and the British fleet around them is noting; drawing comparisons with intense interest, as two scions of the same family might meet and study gesture or physiognomy, searching eagerly for kindred traits. And daily the bonds are tightening.

The Admiral commanding the force of American battleships which constitutes the battle squadron of the grand fleet stood and thawed before the burnished radiator in his cabin.

"Now," he said, "you've spent a day on board this ship. What struck you most? What remains your most vivid impression?"

I had been waiting for the question and wondering what the deuce I was going to say. A man who spends 10 crowded hours in unfamiliar surroundings, trying to draw comparisons between them and his accustomed environment, finds his impressions at the end of it like a jigsaw puzzle that has been upset.

I looked at him as he stook taking me in, and in the quizzical, humorous smile hovering about his eyes, in the set of his very imperturbable mouth, in his wholly comfortable attitude before the radiator, I read my answer. It was something that had been struggling for expression at the back of my brain all day.

"Well, sir," I said (and then wished I could have embarked on my explanation as our sailors do, with, "It's like this 'ere, sir). "To all intents and purposes, you've dropped out of the skies plop into the middle of the grand fleet. It's a fleet that has been three and one-half years at war. It belongs to the oldest and most conservative—if not the proudest—navy in the world. It's got the Armada and the Nile and Copenhagen and Trafalgar and Jutland to its credit, and, I fancy, it takes a largish size in hats on the strength of it. It certainly had a standard by which to judge strangers."

Americans Live in the Limelight.

"Sure," said the Admiral softly, with his eyes on the far-off snowy hills. I'm not used to making stump speeches to Admirals. I took a long breath. "Well, from the moment your ships rounded that headland, the British fleet has been sizing you up. Every boat that was manned and left your ship, every officer or or men who moved about your decks is being watched and criticised and studied by several thousand pairs of eyes. You live in the lime-light."

"Sure," said the Admiral so softly that it was hardly more than a gentle expiration between his teeth. He may have been wondering when I was coming to the point.

"Well, sir," I continued. "All that is apt to make a good man indeed self-conscious. I came over on the look-out for self-consciousness Like a lady visitor looks out for wet paint on board. I've been ten

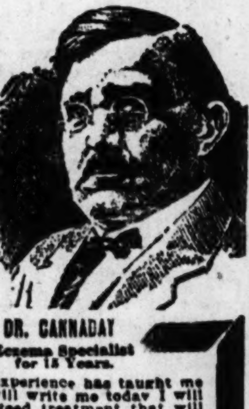
ECZEMA

Also Called Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Water Poison, Weeping Skin, Etc.



DR. CANNADAY
Eczema Specialist for 15 Years.

For fifteen years I have been treating one disease alone. ECZEMA. I have handled over one million cases. I do not pretend to know it all, but I am convinced the disease is due to an excess of acid in the blood and closely related to rheumatism and cancer. This acid must be removed.

Eczema is called by some people itch, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Weeping Skin, etc. I am fully convinced Eczema is a curable disease, and when I say it can be cured, I mean just what I say—C-U-R-E-D and not merely patched up for a while to return worse than before. It makes no difference what other doctors have told you, or what all you have tried, all I ask is just a chance to prove to you that this vast experience has taught me a great deal that would be of help to you. If you will write me today I will send you a free trial of my mild soothing guaranteed treatment that will do more to convince you than I or anyone else could in a month's preaching. It's all up to you. If you suffer any more with eczema and refuse to merely write to me for free trial, just blame yourself. No matter where you live, I have treated your neighbors. Merely dropping me a postal today is likely to give you more real comfort in a week than you ever expected to enjoy again. Do it right now, your very life may be at stake.

BRITISH OFFICER TELLS OF VISIT TO OUR BATTLE FLEET

hours in your flagship, and I've talked to samples of every rank and rating. I've only seen one person self-conscious under friendly scrutiny.

"Ah?" said the Admiral. His eyebrows lifted a shade.

"I caught sight of myself in a looking-glass," I explained. * * *

Not that this absence of self-consciousness is the outcome of indifference. The American Squadron is keenly alive to the intent observation it is undergoing. Its method of showing how aware, was perhaps the most graceful imaginable. For a few days it visited one of the fleet's more southerly bases, and the ship's companies were given leave to visit a great town. 6500 men availed themselves of this permission. They were greeted by the inhabitants with an enthusiasm that might well have thrown a staider and older set of men off their balance. The traditional British methods of extending hospitality were thrust upon these youngsters fresh from a long and arduous voyage. It might have resulted in a tamasha that would have made the memory of Mafeking night seem like a temperance revival by comparison. Yet when those 6500 mortal men returned to their ships and the bonds of discipline—nine only were slightly under the influence of liquor. Nine all told.

Why Flagship Is Christmas Ship.

Apropos of this visit, it may be added that it occurred at Christmas time. Now, the flagship of the American squadron is, I believe, known in the United States as the "Christmas ship." Americans are all probably familiar with the origin of this name; but for the benefit of my own countrymen, I must relate their pretty tradition. Every Christmas day this particular ship lies in New York Harbor; on Christmas eve the crew goes ashore into the slums and Bowery, and every man invites a child to a dinner on board the following day. The little guests are carefully chosen. They are the type of child that would not otherwise eat a Christmas dinner, would not probably eat a dinner at all. The poorest of the poor from gutter and dive and archway. And not only do these pathetic little guests get dinner, but also a suit of clothes, a toy and a present of money.

For the first time, the Christmas just passed found the "Christmas ship's" moorings in New York Harbor empty. She was lying at the base I have referred to, within reach of a great British city. But the tradition remained the same. They had 48 hours in which to arrange the whole thing, but they did it. They added one stipulation that has not been laid down in New York. Preference was to be given in the matter of selection to those waifs whose fathers haid laid down their lives in battle.

Britannia, noting this story, may remember and echo the words of the greatest of all child lovers: "Inasmuch as ye do it unto the least of my little ones" * * *

To the naval officer a ship's personnel is necessarily an absorbing study. The human element is one in which he works and lives, and whatever the development of the machine, man and his ways afloat must ever remain the primary factor in a navy's efficiency. It goes without saying that when the personnel belongs to the ship of another nation the interest is largely charged with curiosity.

I attempted to convey something of this interest to the Captain of an American battleship, who was my host for the day. We were sitting in his cabin; and the talk had ranged from the Yukon to Brooklyn yard, and was what a certain weekly paper would call "Mainly About People."

Inspecting a Great American Ship.

I hinted at my interest in the men, not without diffidence, because to ask the Captain of a man-of-war if you can go and look at his ship's company as a matter of curiosity, is tantamount to demanding leave of a stranger to go and smoke a pipe in his nursery while his children are being bathed. A messdeck is an intimate place.

"Want to see the men?" he echoed, and thrust on his cap. "I'll show 'em to you." He was a mighty man possessing volcanic energy, and a voice designed to carry orders through a gale. "Come right along."

We plunged straightway into the seething life of the messdeck and living spaces of the great ship, the Captain leading, and as we threaded a path forward, men stepped aside, stood quietly to attention until we passed, and resumed their tasks or leisure. Workshops, kitchens, laundry, bakeries, dental surgery, sick bay, messrooms, round we went in a swift, slightly bewildering rush while the "owner" jerked explanations over his shoulder. He displayed a familiarity with the details of it all that was to say the least of it, interesting to one of another navy, whose Captains claim to be not indifferent "ships' husbands."

Our whirlwind tour carried us into a speckless electric bakery piled high with fragrant loaves. The Captain had flung open and closed the door of an oven secured by an ingenious but rather complicated latch. As we emerged I commented on his evident familiarity with the internal fitting of his ship's bakery. "Built her," he explained, and plunged, doffing his cap, into the sick bay. There were over a thousand men on board, and about half a dozen of them had found their way here.

"Well, T——," said the Captain, addressing by name an able seaman of a stature wellnigh equaling his own, "how's that hand getting on?"

The man stood up and met his Captain's eyes without embarrassment; just, in fact as one citizen regards another.

"Nicely, thank you, sir," he replied.

"Hit your man in a softer place next time," said the Captain, and the

THE GENUINE PIANOLA
Now Only $485 - - Convenient Terms

There Is Only One Real Pianola

The Pianola is manufactured by the Aeolian Company—the world's largest producer of musical instruments. Of course there are other player-pianos. These players produce music of a sort; but the Pianola is the only player that satisfies musicians. Paderewski says: "I cannot conceive why the Pianola should not be in every home. For the development of the understanding of good music, it is the only perfect and really great medium." You can afford a Pianola. You can have in your home the genuine Pianola—the one player-piano that makes you a master musician. You can now buy a genuine Pianola for as little as $485, payable on convenient terms.

WAR CREATES A SPECIAL NEED TO SAVE THE BABIES

It is not a pleasant truth, but one to which the eyes cannot be closed, that the babies of today are needed to take the places tomorrow of the men who are being killed in the war for world liberty; and that for this reason, if there were no other, increased efforts to save the lives of the infants are demanded. The point was expressed with a clearness and a sympathy which scarcely could be exceeded by Dr. Edward Saunders in an address a few days ago in connection with the observance in St. Louis of National Baby Week.

"While a baby's life could not possibly be more valuable in the sight of God or its mother's," the child specialist said, "still, in the sight of the nation, babies' lives are more valuable than ever before."

Dr. Saunders pointed out in the course of his address the menace to the lives of children from polluted water, milk, or other food.

The annual report of the St. Louis Pure Milk Commission for 1917, which was issued in March, set forth what is being accomplished in saving the lives of babies by the free distribution of pure milk to parents too poor to buy it. It called attention to the remarkable decrease in the mortality of infants under one year of age, the proportion of deaths in 1917 having been only 89 out of 1000, against 134 in 1000 in 1916. The report expressed the belief that the decrease had been chiefly due to the work of the Commission through its 17 milk distributing centers and clinics in the poorer districts of the city.

The largest single contributor to the work of the St. Louis Pure Milk Commission is the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice League, which, out of the $5000 fund that it raised last year, spent $2924.80 in supplying the commission with pure milk. The remainder of the fund went for ice for the poor families to preserve the milk and other foods.

Because of a late start, the Red Cross campaign being ahead of it, the Milk and Ice Fund is $500 or more behind its total at this time last year, and with a prospect of more difficulty than usual in raising the money needed this year, with the war creating so many demands upon the people. But those connected with the work of the Fund believe the friends of the babies will rally to their cause, and that a Fund of perhaps even more than $5000 will be forthcoming, so that the efforts in behalf of the tenement infants can be broadened.

$50 CONTRIBUTION TO BABIES' FUND

The second largest direct cash contribution to the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund so far this season has been received from the De Luxe Automobile Co., P. H. Brockman, proprietor, sent the company's check for $50 with a note in which he said: "Such causes as this are worthy, in our opinion, of everyone's support."

Mrs. M. Littman of 4904 McPherson avenue, one of last year's contributors, sent her check for $5.

A second out of town donation has been received. Mrs. Louis P. Zerweck of Belleville, Ill., forwarded $5 in the name of Dorothy Ruth Zerweck.

Frieda Hyman of 2701 Dickson street earned $2.21 which she contributed to the Babies' Fund.

Henry B. Kamp of 2020 Cass avenue, who for several years, since he was 3, has been a Milk and Ice Fund worker, brought a preliminary contribution of 25 cents to the Post-Dispatch office.

The children are asked not to hesitate to give small affairs or to contribute small sums to the Milk and Ice Fund. At least half of the fund each year is made up of small contributions.

seaman laughed, nursing his bandaged hand.

"I will, surely," he said. A chuckle ran round the sick bay. I had the sensation of a stranger left trying to fathom a family joke.

The Captain Knew His Crew's Names

"Want to talk to 'em?" asked the Captain a minute later, as we stopped to watch a veteran superintending the splicing of a five-inch wire by two ordinary seamen. "Here B"—— he called one of the youngsters, again by name. The boy dropped his marlinspike and responded smartly. "Where were you raised?" asked the Captain.

"Kentucky, sir," came the reply in the soft Southern drawl. The lad stood before us without a trace of sheepishness, not apparently aware of any distinction in being thus singled out by his Captain by name from amongst a thousand other men. The Captain nodded. "Trade?" 'A farm-hand, sir."

It was my turn, and I asked him the question no sailor has ever been able to answer: "Why did you come to sea?" He grinned, showing two rows of perfect teeth. "Him," he said, and jerked his head over his shoulder at the other ordinary seaman wincing beneath the whispering exhortations of his instructor. "Him an' me"—— adding, "He's my chum"—— strong men have tried to write books on all that was contained in these two sentences; most have died with the task unfinished.

HAVE YOU BEEN OVERWORKED?

Do You Want Help Until Naure Catches Up? Are Your Nerves Ill?

Cadomene Tablets Help Nervous Men and Weak, Impoverished Women Back to Strength, Health and Energy

In these strenuous, exacting times many men and women overwork their nerves. They do not take enough rest. They are not careful when and what they eat. Soon they get nervous, irritable, suffer from aches and pains, are tired all the time, have no ambition, lose strength and energy and then become sleepless, worn out and sick. Never take to drink and false stimulants—they are temporary makeshifts. But do act wisely, and begin the use of Cadomene Tablets, which act as a powerful tonic for digestion, nutrition, and elimination. They help nature to perform the functions of the organs of the body and nature will in turn restore strength, red blood and health. Sold by druggists everywhere—and guaranteed to be satisfactory in every sense by the manufacturers. — ADVERTISEMENT.

WOMEN TO GIVE CARD PARTY FOR FRENCH WOUNDED BENEFIT

A card party is being arranged by a number of women to be held at the Bogy Club Tuesday afternoon, beginning at 2:30 o'clock, to raise funds to carry on the war relief work of the American Fund for French Wounded, with headquarters at 3621 Washington boulevard.

The money will be used principally to buy material for making surgical dressings and hospital garments and for other forms of relief for the injured French fighters. The workroom, where about 500 women spend much of their time making needed articles, is provided free of cost.

Those in charge of the card party are Mrs. Julia Walsh, Mrs. Charles Wiggins, Mrs. Charles Bates, Miss Emily Maffitt, Mrs. J. M. Franciscus, Mrs. Samuel Scott, Mrs. Edward Simmons, Mrs. William Scudder, Mrs. Thomas McKittrick, Mrs. William Barnett, Mrs. James L. Ford, Miss Lulu Hopkins and Mrs. John Fowler.

A special car for the club grounds will leave De Baliviere avenue and Delmar boulevard at 1:40 p. m., Tuesday. Ample arrangements will be provided at the club for as many women as wish to play and tables will be reserved for men, some of whom have signified their intention of joining the party about 4:30 p. m.

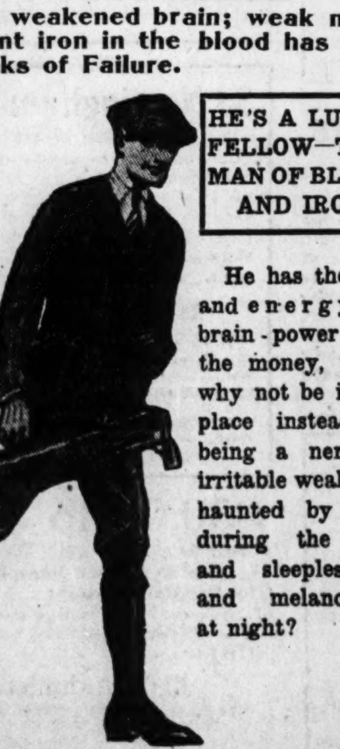
Physician explains How to help Build up Great Strength, Energy and Endurance

Cites Cases of Men Even 60 and 80 Years of Age Who Have Gained in Strength and Energy and Thereby Greatly Increased Their Mental Powers From Taking Nuxated Iron.

Says a weak body means a weakened brain; weak nerve force means weakened will power, lack of sufficient iron in the blood has ruined many a man's nerves and cast him upon the rocks of Failure.



HE'S A LUCKY FELLOW—THIS MAN OF BLOOD AND IRON

He has the vim and energy, the brain-power and the money, too—why not be in his place instead of being a nervous, irritable weakling, haunted by fear during the day and sleeplessness and melancholia at night?

Commenting on the alarming prevalence of iron deficiency in the blood of American men and women, Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly Physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept), New York and the Westchester County Hospital, said: "I have strongly emphasized the great necessity of physicians making blood examinations of their weak, anaemic, run-down patients. Thousands of persons go on year after year suffering from physical weakness and a highly nervous condition due to lack of sufficient iron in their red blood corpuscles without ever realizing the real and true cause of their trouble. Without iron in your blood your food merely passes through your body something like corn through an old mill with the rollers so wide apart that the mill can't grind."

As proof of this, take the case of General Horatio Gates Gibson, U. S. A. (retired), who says that Nuxated Iron has brought back to him in a good measure that old buoyancy and energy that filled his veins in 1847 when he made his triumphant entry with General Scott into the City of Mexico.

Then there is former Health Commissioner Wm. R. Kerr of Chicago, who is past the three-score-year mark, but still healthy, active, full of life, endurance and energy. Former Health Commissioner Kerr says he believes his own personal activity today is largely due to his use of Nuxated Iron, and that he believes it ought to be prescribed by every physician and used at every hospital in the country.

While former Health Commissioner Kerr is not himself a physician, still his experience in handling public health problems must give his opinion more than ordinary weight.

And then there is former United States Senator Chas. A. Towne. Senator Towne says: "I have found Nuxated Iron of the greatest benefit as a tonic and regulative. Henceforth I shall not be without it. I am in a position to testify for the benefit of others, to the remarkable and immediate helpfulness of this remedy, and I unhesitatingly recommend Nuxated Iron to all who feel the need of renewed energy and the regularity of bodily functions. But, in my opinion, you can't make strong, healthy, successful, sturdy iron men by feeding them on metallic iron. The old forms of metallic iron must go through a semi-digestive process to transform them into organic iron—Nuxated Iron—before they are so ready to be taken up and assimilated by the human system. Notwithstanding all that has been said and written on this subject by well-known physicians, thousands of people still insist in dosing themselves with metallic iron simply, I suppose, because it costs a few cents less. I strongly advise readers in all cases to get a physician's prescription for organic iron—Nuxated Iron—or if you don't want to go to this trouble, then purchase only Nuxated Iron in its original packages and see that this particular name (Nuxated Iron) appears on the package. If you have taken such preparations as Nux and Iron and other similar Iron products and failed to get results, remember that such products are an entirely different thing from Nuxated Iron."

Dr. A. J. Newman, late Police Surgeon of the City of Chicago and former house Surgeon Jefferson Park Hospital, Chicago, in commenting on the value of Nuxated Iron, said: "This remedy has proven through my own tests of it to excel any remedy I have ever used for creating red blood, building up the nerves, strengthening the muscles and correcting digestive disorders. The manufacturers are to be congratulated in having given to the public a long-felt want, a true tonic, supplying iron in an easily digested and assimilated form. A true health-builder in every sense of the word."

MANUFACTURER'S NOTE—Nuxated Iron, which has been used by Dr. Sullivan and others with such surprising results, and which is prescribed and recommended by physicians everywhere, is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed in this city by Judge & Dolph Drug Co., Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Keiffer Drug Co., Johnson Bros. Drug Co., Pauley's Drug Stores Co., Enderle Drug Co. and by all other druggists.—ADVERTISEMENT.

Commenting on the alarming prevalence of iron deficiency in the blood of American men and women, Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly Physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept), New York and the Westchester County Hospital, said: "I have strongly emphasized the great necessity of physicians making blood examinations of their weak, anaemic, run-down patients. Thousands of persons go on year after year suffering from physical weakness and a highly nervous condition due to lack of sufficient iron in their red blood corpuscles without ever realizing the real and true cause of their trouble. Without iron in your blood your food merely passes through your body something like corn through an old mill with the rollers so wide apart that the mill can't grind."

As proof of this, take the case of General Horatio Gates Gibson, U. S. A. (retired), who says that Nuxated Iron has brought back to him in a good measure that old buoyancy and energy that filled his veins in 1847 when he made his triumphant entry with General Scott into the City of Mexico.

Then there is former Health Commissioner Wm. R. Kerr of Chicago, who is past the three-score-year mark, but still healthy, active, full of life, endurance and energy. Former Health Commissioner Kerr says he believes his own personal activity today is largely due to his use of Nuxated Iron, and that he believes it ought to be prescribed by every physician and used at every hospital in the country.

While former Health Commissioner Kerr is not himself a physician, still his experience in handling public health problems must give his opinion more than ordinary weight.

And then there is former United States Senator Chas. A. Towne. Senator Towne says: "I have found Nuxated Iron of the greatest benefit as a tonic and regulative. Henceforth I shall not be without it. I am in a position to testify for the benefit of others, to the remarkable and immediate helpfulness of this remedy, and I unhesitatingly recommend Nuxated Iron to all who feel the need of renewed energy and the regularity of bodily functions. But, in my opinion, you can't make strong, healthy, successful, sturdy iron men by feeding them on metallic iron. The old forms of metallic iron must go through a semi-digestive process to transform them into organic iron—Nuxated Iron—before they are so ready to be taken up and assimilated by the human system. Notwithstanding all that has been said and written on this subject by well-known physicians, thousands of people still insist in dosing themselves with metallic iron simply, I suppose, because it costs a few cents less. I strongly advise readers in all cases to get a physician's prescription for organic iron—Nuxated Iron—or if you don't want to go to this trouble, then purchase only Nuxated Iron in its original packages and see that this particular name (Nuxated Iron) appears on the package. If you have taken such preparations as Nux and Iron and other similar Iron products and failed to get results, remember that such products are an entirely different thing from Nuxated Iron."

Dr. A. J. Newman, late Police Surgeon of the City of Chicago and former house Surgeon Jefferson Park Hospital, Chicago, in commenting on the value of Nuxated Iron, said: "This remedy has proven through my own tests of it to excel any remedy I have ever used for creating red blood, building up the nerves, strengthening the muscles and correcting digestive disorders. The manufacturers are to be congratulated in having given to the public a long-felt want, a true tonic, supplying iron in an easily digested and assimilated form. A true health-builder in every sense of the word."

MANUFACTURER'S NOTE—Nuxated Iron, which has been used by Dr. Sullivan and others with such surprising results, and which is prescribed and recommended by physicians everywhere, is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed in this city by Judge & Dolph Drug Co., Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Keiffer Drug Co., Johnson Bros. Drug Co., Pauley's Drug Stores Co., Enderle Drug Co. and by all other druggists.—ADVERTISEMENT.

PLANS A SUPREME ECONOMIC DICTATOR FOR THE ALLIES

Secretary of Agriculture Said to Be Chiefly Responsible for Idea to Pool All Resources.

PLAN WOULD BRING ABOUT TEAM WORK

Equal Distribution Could Be Effected Through a System of Survey and Checks, It Is Pointed Out.

By HERBERT BAYARD SWOPE,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and the New York World.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—And now for a supreme economic dictator for the allies and America!

One man—perhaps it would be better to say superman—to sit in Paris, London, or Washington and there marshal the economic forces of the nations aligned against the Central Powers, together with the neutrals whose strength is available to use. One man to demand from each country the fullest production of which that country is capable, and then, having pooled the resources of all to distribute to each according to its needs.

That is the plan. It is, in brief, a world-wide socialistic communism which shall last for the duration of the war and as much longer as may be necessary for the defense of our allies and ourselves against Germany. It might even mark the beginning of a broader, wider, deeper leageu of nations than heretofore discussed, a league that shall be effective in preserving peace through removing the fruitful sourec of war-commercial rivalry.

The idea belongs mostly to David Houston, the Secretary of Agriculture, who has been a close student of war conditions. It has aroused the interest of the British and French high commissions and has been submitted to the President and to the War Industries Board, and the other bodies charged with the business of handling problems related to the plan.

The subject is still in the discoursive stage, but so marked is the need for a more intensive co-ordination of the various elements underlying the question of raw and manufactured materials that sentiment is being crystallized in such a way as to make reorganization of some sort certain, even though it may not be wholly along the lines laid out.

Next Great Step.

As Secretary Houstou visualizes the situation, the war is being fought on less with material than with men. The world allied against the Kaiser has unified the military operations under one hand. He believes that the next great step is to unify the economic and industrial forces. It was America that finally brought order out of chaos in putting through the single-headed military control, and now it may be America whose business ingeunity and breath of vosion shall evolve a new system of regulating the wide-reaching and always perplexing problem of world supply.

To bring about thorough industrial team work, necessary to the support of the allied armies and the countries behind them, the backers of the plan believe there must be a supreme council or director-general of the international resources. Such a body or such a man would be primarily charged with the collection and distribution of the raw materials, suc ha scoal, copper, iron and other minerals and oils.

Through a system of surveys and checks he would be able to say to anyone country that it would be expected to furnish so and so much material of a certain nature and that the difference between its output and its needs would be supplied by a sister land, which had a surplus of the commodity, but would probably be facing a lack in something else.

In a way this method is being followed now by the various high commissions of the different countries in the alliance. But a supreme head, be it one or several, could put itself i na position to check off the actual needs as against questionables. There could be vast saving in time and money effected by systematizing de-

DARKNESS "AS OF NIGHT" ENVELOPS EARTH WHERE SUN IS COMPLETELY OBSCURED

Birds Seek Their Nests, Chickens Go to Roost and Electric Lights Are Turned on for Brief Period.

By the Associated Press.

BAKER, Ore., June 8.—The predicted phenomenon of the sun's eclipse today found scientists ready for it here. Glasses were trained to study and photograph the sun's corona and spectrum. Definite conclusions drawn from these observations will be available only after comparison of results obtained and deductions as to their significance. The observations were declared to be successful, a slight cloudiness being the only drawback.

The expected results of plunging the world into darkness as of night were observed. Birds sought their nests and chickens went to roost. A gloom as deep as that at 10 o'clock at night enveloped the favored strip of country at the moment of totality. Electric lights were turned on indoors and street cars and automobiles had their headlights burning.

Within a few minutes after the total eclipse, daylight rapidly returned.

Wonderful Colored Glow.

Those devoting their time to study of the corona were amply rewarded by the wonderfully colored glow of the inner circle with its moving multi-colored shafts of light. It was of maximum sun-spot type, with the glowing and pulsating light nearly equally diffused about the sun surface, whose prominences also were plainly visible.

Those watching for effects on nature were also rewarded, for crescent-shaped shadows on the ground were seen and in some cases where cloth was spread mysteriously and unexplained shadow bands were observed.

Scientifically the "Baker eclipse," as the solar phenomenon observed today will be known in records of the United States naval observatory, was successful. It is expected that the photographs made will tend to solve the problems as to solor atmosphere and distance from sun surface.

"We secured fine results, undoubtedly," said J. C. Hammond, head of the naval observatory party. "The thin clouds hindered little if any."

First Contact Reported.

The first contact reported from the five-inch equatorial by Mr. Hammond and flashed to the naval observatory at Washington, was at 46 minutes and 55 seconds past 3 o'clock, five seconds earlier than figured, due to a slight error in computation of the moon's position.

"A solar mountain has taken the first bite out of the moon," said Mr. Hammond when the contact appeared.

The naval observatory work was under the direction of J. C. Hammond, assisted by C. C. Wylie and W. M. Conrad, solar atmospheric composition and extent from the sun surface being their objective.

Government Scientists View Eclipse at Kansas Point.

By the Associated Press.

LAKIN, Kan., June 8.—Scientists representing the Government and the Smithsonian Institution of Washington, observing the eclipse of the sun here today, stated that their observations were successful. The sky was clear and they said the corona was plainly discernable. The darkness lasted for one minute and 30 seconds.

A special observatory had been erected here by the Smithsonian Institution from which the eclipse could be studied and it was the scene of great activity durring the short time the face of the sun was obscured. Owing to the cloudless sky, it was said, unusual opportunity for study of the phenomenon was afforded especially for observation of the corona. Many people from various sections of the state came here today to be in the path of totality. This town was practically in the center of the shadow cast by the moon and for that reason was selected by scientists as an observation point.

MUSICIANS' UNION TO FINE MEMBERS WHO SPEAK GERMAN

Name of Aschenbroedel Club Is Removed From in Front of Quarters on Pine Street.

The Musicians' Mutual Benefit Association, an organization of 1150 musicians, yesterday voted to fine any member $25 who speaks German on the premises of the association's club at 3535 Pine street or on any professional engagement.

Guy Dailey, chairman of the executive committee, estimated that at least one-third of the membership can speak German.

The club went further in its self-Americanization by removing from the front of the building the name "Aschenbroedel Club," which has been there for 31 years. Changing of the name to the St. Louis Musicians' Club already is in legal process.

The name Aschenbroedel was adopted after "Aschen," the first president of a musician's club in New York and the German word "broedel," meaning "mixture." The "broedel" was thought appropriate at the time of organization because there was a mixture of players of many kinds of instruments in the club.

PRESIDENT AT BASEBALL GAME

Watches Contest Between Republicans and Democrats of House.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—President Wilson laid aside the cares of state today to see the Democrats and Republicans of the House of Representatives struggle through their annual baseball game, which went for six and one-half innings and was staged for the benefit of the American Red Cross. For once there was no debate as to the winner. The official scorer said the minority representatives had 19 runs to 5 for the majority party players, and nobody disputed him.

Besides the President, Vice President Marshall, Speaker Clark and many high Government officials were gathered at American League park and they appeared to enjoy the game. Mudd of Maryland pitched for the Republicans and Delaney of New York and McClintock of Oklahoma for the Democrats. Miss Jeannette Rankin, Representative from Montana, was mascot for the Republicans.

Kaiser Speaks of "Giant Deeds of My Brave Troops"

By the Associated Press.

AMSTERDAM, June 8.

"WITH pride and thankfulness I daily watch the giant deeds of my brave troops which will secure respect for the German name for all time."

This is one of the phrases used by the Kaiser in sending a contribution of 50,000 marks ($25,000) to the Ludendorf fund, initiated by the National Committee for the Care of Disabled Soldiers.

"I also see sufferings," the Kaiser said, "borne by the German soldier in a manly and resolute manner; I see him bleed and die for the fatherland's greater honor; I gain an insight and knowledge of the innermost life of the wounded old warriors."

HEAVY LICENSE TAX ON AUTOS PROPOSED

Increases on Moving Pictures Also Suggested at Hearing Before House Committee.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—Hearings on the new war tax legislation before the House Ways and Means Committee will continue to June 20. The committee today extended the time limit 10 days because of the large number of requests for hearings which have been received.

Secretary McAdoo, Internal Revenue Commissioner Roper, Chairman Baruch of the War Industries Board and other officials are yet to be heard.

Suggestions made to the committee at today's hearings included an increased tax on moving pictures and a heavy license tax on automobiles to be paid by owners of the machines.

NIGHT TENNIS COURTS OPENED

Big Attendance Expected This Year at Forest Park.

Fourteen night tennis courts in Forest Park will be lighted each evening, beginning tomorrow, until the close of the season in September, Park Commissioner Cunliff announced yesterday. It is believed that this year the attendance at the night courts will be almost double that of last summer because of the additional hour of daylight.

MOON'S EFFORT TO MUSS UP DAYLIGHT BLOCKED BY SUN

With 88 Per Cent of Surface Obscured, Old Sol Makes Good on Lighting Contract in St. Louis.

WARMTH LOSS IS ONLY 2.4 DEGREES

Eclipse Starts on Schedule Time and General Public Was Ready With Variety of Eye Protectors.

The sun, 93,000,000 miles from St. Louis, set an example of efficiency yesterday afternoon, and successfully resisted the moon's attempt at daylight spoiling.

Working on a 12 per cent basis, with 88 per cent of its surface cut off by the moon, the sun continued to light and to warm St. Louis very much as if nothing had happened.

For a few minutes the sunshine was a rather eerie affair, with a yellowish tinge and with a trick of casting long and fantastic shadows. But as for lying down on its lighting contract, sending the chickens to roost and causing the cows to come home, the sun was not guilty of any such lapse in service here, whatever the dispatches from Oklahoma and Arkansas may charge it with doing there.

The chickens kept right on with their work of tearing up thrift gardens, and not one cow uttered an extra "Moo!"

In the work of warming St. Louis, the sun was very little affected by its 88 per cent obscuration. At 6:30 p. m., when the overlapping moon was most prominent, the temperature was only 2.4 degrees lower than it was before the eclipse began. The fall was from 78.5 degrees, at 5:25 p. m., to 76.1 degrees at 6:30. This was not more than the normal fall in temperature at this time of day.

Effective Work by "Advance Man."

Just how much attention the eclipse would have attracted, if the public had not known of it in advance, it is not easy to day. Probably many persons outdoors would have noticed, some time between 6 o'clock and 6:30, that the light was not so intense; but anyone might have concluded that the sky was clouding up for a shower, or that the smoke was a little thicker than usual, and have thought no more of it.

But everyone did know about the eclipse, and most persons were at home at the time when its effects were most noticeable. Warned by the health authorities against looking at the sun with unprotected eyes, many families had taken fragments of broken windows, or glass fronts from alarm clocks, and had smoked them over candles. Some used photographic films, which were not very satisfactory. Photographic plates, used two or three together, were better, and a single "fogged" plate, such as some amateur and professional photographers had in readiness, was the best of all mediums. A pair of automobile goggles, smoked on the inner surface, did nicely.

Downtown, where there had been less general preparation, boys sold or rented "'clipse glasses" of various degrees of merit, along the sidewalk. A telescope was in use on Twelfth street and those waiting for their turns at the lens stood in line until the eclipse was nearly over.

One man, when the phenomenon was nearly at its height, stood in front of the old postoffice, calling everyone's attention to the strange appearance which shadows made on the sidewalk. Not only were the shadows elongated remarkably, but the ears, and the hair about the ears, had a remarkable and ludicrous effect, resembling the "flare" of current dress fashions.

Tall Buildings Vantage Points.

From the Weather Bureau headquarters, on top of the Railway Exchange Building, the elcipse was seen without the interference of smoke clouds, although the American Hotel smokestack was doing its best to muss up the atmosphere. A few persons were on the tops of some of the other high buildings, and more were at the upper west windows of hotels and office buildings.

An eclipse, as compared with other shows, has the merit of starting

NAVAL BOARD CONSIDERS COAST U-BOAT DEFENSE

Steamers Scheduled for Points South of Jersey Coast Are Held in Port at Boston.

NO OFFICIAL NEWS FROM DESTROYERS

Secretary Daniels Unable to Confirm Report That Submarine Raider Had Been Sunk in Fight.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, June 8.—Steamers preparing to leave for points south of the Jersey coast tonight received orders to remain in port, presumably because of enemy submarines.

By Wire From the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—The Navy Department at a late hour tonight was without confirmation of the report from an Atlantic port that an American destroyer either captured or sank a German submarine off the Virginia coast yesterday. Secretary Daniels said no report had been received by the department, adding that he would make public any such news the moment it reached him.

In reply to questions Daniels said he was not prepared to say definitely that the submarine which was engaged by a destroyer off Cape Henlopen two or three days ago was destroyed. He is hopeful the future will disclose that the shot from the destroyer went true, but will make no claims in the absence of definite information.

The engagement ofr Cape Henlopen is understood to have been only a brief exchange of shots. Speeding to the spot where the periscope aws last seen, the destroyer found on the surface oil and other indications that his gunners may have scored a direct hit.

May Have Been "Camouflage."

This is not conclusive evidence, since submarines have been known many times to release a quantity of oil for the purpose of deceiving allied patrol boats.

If a large American transport which reached an American port today had a fight with submarines off the coast of France and "sank four", as reported by a member of the ship's company, the ship's commanding officer has not advised the War Department of that fact.

The submarine situation was the subject of discussion today at a largely attended meeting of the Naval consulting Board, presided over by William L. Saunders, its chairman. The meeting was held at the headquarters of the Carnegie Institute. Following the meeting the board entertained at luncheon Secretary Daniels, Admiral Benson, Chief of Naval Operations; Rear Admiral Winslow, Rear Admiral Shoemaker and other naval officers. This aggregation of civilian engineers, inventors and naval experts held a veritable council of war on the submarine situation in general and more especially on measures for the better protecting of our coasts and shipping from submersible marauders who may cross the Atlantic from time to time.

Long Coast Patrol Difficult.

The Navy Department received no additional reports today regarding attacks upon American or other shipping off the coast. Naval officers as a rule were inclined to think that the U-boats have left the North Atlantic coast, but they are prepared at any time to receive reports of new sinkings.

The Naval Consulting Board today announced that more than 65,000 inventions of all kinds have been submitted to and acted upon by the board, which was created nearly three years ago, when Daniels invited Thomas A. Edison and 11 leading technical societies to nominate representatives.

For First Time, Berlin Officially Reports Encounter With American Unit; Calls Losses of Ground "Unimportant"

By Associated Press.

BERLIN, via Londan, June 8.—Attacks by the allied troops around Chateau Thierry, and counter attacks on the Ardre (Avre?) River resulted in "unimportant gains of territory," according to the official report from general headquarters today. The rest of the statement reads:

"Army of Crown Prince Rupprecht: Artillery firing and reconnoitering engagements revived intermittently.

"Army of the German Crown Prince: Renewed enemy attacks northwest of Chateau Thierry and counter attacks to recover the line lost on the Ardre only brought him unimportant gains of territory. Several attacks by French, American and British regiments broke down with heavy losses.

"On the rest of the front the situation is unchanged."

The supplementary official communication issued by general headquarters tonight says that the situation is unchanged on the battle front.

For the first time in the war German headquarters has used the term "American regiment" in its official report on the operations on the Western front. Even in announcing the loss of Contigny, the official communication mentioned merely "the enemy" as having occupied that place.

Several times, however, the Germans have officially mentioned the capture of American prisoners.

ST. LOUISAN SUED TO STOP SALE OF OUIJA BOARD BOOK

Mrs. Emily Grant Hutchings Defendant in Action by Harper on "Jap Herron."

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 8.—Harper & Brothers, publishers, sued today in the Supreme Court to enjoin Mitchell Kennerly, publisher, and Mrs. Emily Grant Hutchings of St. Louis, author of "Jap Herron," from continuing the printing and sale of that work. The author asserts that the book was inspired by a psychic message from Mark Twain. This contention has been denounced by the humorist's daughter, Mrs. Clara Gabrilowitch.

The plaintiff asks that the court order the destruction of existing copies of the novel, asserting that prior to the death of Samuel L. Clemens the company had made a contract with him whereby it was to be the exclusive publisher of his works and was so for 17 years preceding his death.

In 1916, the complaint says, Mrs. Hutchings asked the plaintiff to print the manuscript of what purported to be a communication from Mark Twain to her through the medium of the ouija board. The plaintiff declined to publish the novel, saying it did not emanate from Mark Twain; also denouncing its literary merit, the petition states.

Last year, however, Mitchell Kennerly published the book "with intent to deceive the public," according to the complaint.

The preface to "Jap Herron" says in part that the book was written after several messages had been spelled out and the pointer of the planchette traced the words "Samuel L. Clemens, Lazy Sam."

According to the author, notice that she was to serve in forwarding the posthumous works of America's "foremost humorist" came upon her in March, 1915, at a psychic assemblage at which Mrs. Lola V. Hays was demonstrator.

Chief Witness Dead, Mrs. Hutchings Points Out.

Mrs. Hutchings said to a Post-Dispatch reporter last night that she did not see how Harper Brothers could prevail in their suit, if for no other reason than that Ripley Hitchcock, a literary advisor in their employ, and their chief witness, recently fell dead at a dinner to the Blue Devils in New York. Mrs. Hutchings conferred with Hitchcock concerning the publication of the book. It was alleged that Hitchcock warned Mrs. Hutchings against its publication as a work of Mark Twain which warning Mrs. Hutchings denies.

CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR HELD ON UNLAWFUL MEETING CHARGE

C. A. Lindberg, Minnesota Republican Leader, Arrested by the Sheriff of Jackson County.

By the Associated Press.

FAIRMONT, Minn., June 8.—Charles A. Lindbergh, nonpartisan League candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, was arrested on two charges, conspiracy to violate the Minnesota law prohibiting discouragement of enlistment and unlawful assembly, when he attempted to hold a meeting on a farm near Monterey today.

Lindbergh declared he was not a member of the nonpartisan league, and did not know that today's meeting was billed as a league gathering. "I am running as a Republican and the league merely indorsed me," he said.

SON KILLS FATHER WITH FIST FOR CURSING MOTHER

Miles Myers, 24, Tries in Vain to Revive Parent After Striking Him in Alley Near Home.

Miles Myers, 24 years old, killed his father, Michael Myers, 50 years old, with a blow of his first last night at 10:40 o'clock in an alley near their home at 1524 North Garrison avenue.

According to the son he struck his father to stop a flow of expletives and vile names he was applying to him, his mother and his sisters. When his father did not rise he carried him into their home and tried for 15 minutes to revive him, but he apparently had died instantly.

"Father came home and asked for mother," the son told the police. "When he discovered she was not at home, he burst into curses and called mother names. He called my sister, Loretta, 17 years old, names, and my sister, Celeste, 15 years old, names, and he called me names.

"I left the house to go to a party. As I passed the mouth of the alley near the house, father was coming toward the street. He still was calling mother names and my sister names and called me names again.

"I struck him. When he did not get up I carried him to the house."

The elder Myers was a carpenter. His son, an electrician, is under arrest.

U. S. TROOPS TAKE MORE PRISONERS

They Attack Germans in Belleau Wood Sector Northwest of Chateau Thierry at 4 O'Clock in Morning, Capturing Machine Guns and Men.

REPULSE THRUST NEAR BOURESCHES

Enemy Comes Over Behind Smoke Cloud of New Kind of Gas, but Is Stopped Completely 400 Yards Away From Objectives.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, June 8.—Heavy artillery fire from the German batteries, opening at 8 o'clock this morning continued throughout the day in the Toul sector. There was no other activity, however. The Luneville sector was quiet.

By the Associated Press.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, June 8.—American troops last night attacked the Germans to the east of Torcy in the district northwest of Ctateaux Thierry. The French continued their advance on the American left. At last reports the operation was progressing satisfactorily.

The American artillery was active all night in the Belelau Wood sector. The fire increased in intensity at 4 o'clock this morning when the Americans attacked in the southern part of the wod, taking prisoners and a number of machine guns. The battle was still raging here this afternoon.

German prisoners report new German trops are moving up in the rear of the American sector on this front.

The enemy artillery fire is increasing, indicating that the Germans are bringing up additional big gnus.

The Germans launched a thrust against the American troops in the vicinity of Bouresches, northwest of Chateau Thierry, last midnight and were mowed down with machine guns and rifle fire. At one point 100 Germans were killed.

Before they made their attack the Germans sent over a smoke cloud, supposedly of black gas. During the fight the Americans wore gas masks. The Germans were completely stopped about 400 yards from the American trenches.

This result was achieved despite the intense bombardment which included the use of gas in a new form.

The second Franco-American attack in the neighborhood of Veuilly La Portiere and Bourasches was a brilliant success to the allied arms. It was continued yesterday with an advance in the Chezy sector, further northwest on the line.

The enemy seemed somewhat disheartened, replying only feebly to the allied fire. Prisoners arriving at the rear in small batches appear to be thoroughly exhausted and depressed by the turn affairs are taking. Quite important advantages have been gained by the allies in the course of numerous small infantry engagements during the past two days. The French, American and British troops have participated in these actions and the bag of prisoners is considerable.

The tactical situation of the allies is improved by the reconquest of a number of dominant points.

FRENCH BEAT OFF ATTACKS ABOVE CHATEAU THIERRY

Germans Strike Violently at Chezy and Dammard and Suffer Heavy Losses.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, June 8.—Heavy counter-attacks launched by the Germans around Chezy and Dammard, to the northwest of Chateau Thierry broke down under the French guns, according to the War Office announcement tonight. The enemy suffered serious losses. (The scene of this fighting is immediately to left of where the Americans have been driving the Germans back in a series of brilliant attacks northwest of Chateau Thierry).

The statement says:

"There was quite lively artillery action in the neighborhood of Hangard-en-Santerre, between the Oise and the Aisne and south of the Aisne. We continued our progress in the region of Veuilly-la-Poterie and Bussiares and penetrated the village of Eloup (?).

"The enemy tried to check the advance which we made yesterday at Chezy and Dammard, launching violent counter-attacks in this region. Our troops broke down all of the attacks of the enemy who suffered heavy losses. We have maintained all our gains.

"Calm prevailed everywhere else."

GEN. HARBORD IN COMMAND OF MARINES

Pershing's Chief of Staff in Charge Since Gen. Doren Was Disqualified.

NEW YORK, June 8.—The American marine contingent on the Marne is temporarily under the command of Brigadier-General James G. Harbord, who is Gen. Pershing's chief of staff, and rose from the ranks of the American army.

Gen. Harbord has exercised command over the marines, it is understood, since the recent relief of Brigadier-General Charels A. Doyen of the marine corps, who has been found physically disqualified for further hard work at the front. Gen. Doyen took the marines to France and had charge of their training work there in camp and trench. He will soon be succeeded by another prominent general officer of marines, to whom Gen. Harbord will hand over the command of the marines.

Gen. Harbord is a typical example of the American self-made soldier. Born in Illinois, he was graduated from the Kansas State Agricultural College in 1886 and at the age of 20 enlisted in Company A of the Fourth Infantry, Jan. 10, 1889. He soon became Corporal, Sergeant and Quartermaster-Sergeant of that company.

During the Spanish-American War he was appointed Second Lieutenant of the Fifth Cavalry and later served with the Tenth, Eleventh and First Cavalry Regiments. He was a Major when the war in Europe began. He was Lieutenant-Colonel when he went to France a year ago as Gen. Pershing's chief of staff and had seen service in Cuba and the Philippines.

Yesterday's Official French War Report

PARIS, June 8.—New progress was made by the French last night in the region between the Marne and the Ourcq, northwest of Chateau Thierry, the War Office announced today.

In this sector French troops have pushed their way through Chezy to its eastern outskirts and have reached the western edge of Dammard village.

In the district south of Veuilly La Poterie the Germans made two violent attacks along the Bouresches-Le Thiolet front. The enemy was repulsed with heavy losses in each case.

"South of the Aisne there was great artillery activity, notably in the region of Favorelles. Southwest of Ambleny the French improved their positions during the night. South of the Ourcq they continued their pressure and realized new progress.

"The French have carried their lines as far as the western outskirts of Dammard and east of Chezy and more than a kilometer north of Veuilly-La-Poterie. They have taken about 50 prisoners.

"Further south the Germans made two violent attacks against positions reconquered by the French on the front from Bouresches to Le Thiolet. The French broke these assaults and the enemy suffered heavy losses without obtaining any advantage.

"On the rest of the front the night was comparatively calm."

GERMANS MOVING TO ST. MIHIEL FRONT

Attempt to Break American Line in Order to Outflank Verdun Forecast.

By the Associated Press.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, June 7.—Reports of recent heavy German train movements from the direction of Metz toward the St. Mihiel salient has aroused discussion in the American expeditionary forces as to whether the enemy is planning an assault in the Woevre.

From a tactical point of view the neighborhood of St. Mihiel with its sharp salient offers a logical place for a German attack. A drive through St. Mihiel to the southwest, it is considered, might have a triple object—the menacing of Bar le Duc, the outflanking of Verdun from the rear and the elimination of the salient which has its apex at Verdun.

For the moment at least, perhaps permanently, the allies have stopped the enemy at the Marne. Many engagements of a tactical nature may be expected even if the Germans decide it is useless to continue their efforts along the Marne and elect to hit the allied line at other places. The position of the railways and the formation of the terrain northwest and north of Bar le Duc offer the Germans an opportunity. Of course, what the future holds for the American forces around St. Mihiel is not known, but the salient there is being discussed as a possibility not to be lost sight of.

Another place which is likely to see more fighting is the sector around Mont Didier, where American troops recently captured Cantigny. Another point at which American troops are stationed is the territory around Chateau Thierry. It may be considered certain that whatever future holds, the American forces undoubtedly will participate in some hard fighting.

Successful Raids by French and British Reported by Haig.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 8.—Field Marshal Haig's report from British headquarters tonight follows:

"We raided the enemy's trenches last night south of Arras and inflicted casualties on his garrison.

"Early this morning French troops carried out a successful minor enterprise east of Dickebush Lake and captured 47 prisoners."

British Drop 23 Tons of Bombs Behind Germans Lines in Day.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 8.—Aerial operations by the British are described in an official statement issued tonight as follows:

"In the air a good deal of observation and photographic work was carried out by us on June 7. Bombing was active on both sides. We dropped 23 tons of bombs on railway junctions, airdromes and dumps beyond the German lines.

"Twelve machines were brought down by our airmen and seven were driven down out of control. We lost three machines."

French Save Locre by Capture of Hospice From Germans.

By the Associated Press.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, June 8.—Locre Hospice, which the Germans captured on Wednesday night, was retaken by the French yesterday. They battled their way to this much-contested position and completely reestablished their original line.

The French have thus removed a more or less serious threat to the Village of Locre, which itself is an important defense for Mont Rouge and other hills lying immediately to the west.

German Officer's Description of Opening of Aisne Attack.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, via Ottawa, June 8.—Reuter's correspondent at French headquarters telegraphs a letter written by a German officer giving a striking picture of the opening of the recent battle from the German viewpoint. It reads:

"On May 25 we had already marched for three nights to reach our destination. By day one hardly ever saw a soldier, but at night the roads swarmed with troops, guns and convoys. Half an hour after midnight on the morning of May 27 we arrived on the road just behind the first line. There was no sleep for me, for a creeping barrage opened from 3000 guns. The earth trembled and the moonlight was obscured by clouds of vapor from the smoke shells.

"The infantry attack began at 3 o'clock, and 15 minutes afterward we passed the wire entanglements and were bursting into the enemy positions. At the end of two hours we had fought our way through the enemy positions to the Chemin des Dames, opening a passage for the artillery. By evening we had pushed the French beyond the canal and over the Aisne and then began a fierce pursuit. Among the prisoners were British, Italians, Americans and Arabs."

Rheims, Endangered, Is Saved When French Retake Mountain.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN FRANCE, June 8.—The most severe among the recent minor battles in the Marne-Rheims region was in the vicinity of St. Euphraise and Bligny, westward from Rheims.

The Germans launched a serious attack here at dawn Thursday morning along a four-mile front. They planned to pierce the allied lines to a depth of two and one-half miles, which would permit them to outflank Rheims Mountain and thus capture the city. It would have reduced at the same time the salient held by the allies, which endangers a part of the line.

The village and spur of Bligny fell into their hands when they came forward in dense waves, but the British immediately counter attacked and took the spur. Simultaneously the French counter attacked and reached the outskirts of Bligny and on a second attempt today recaptured the village and re-established the line.

The Germans suffered most severely from artillery fire, the two divisions engaged losing many killed and over 200 prisoners.

The revival of artillery activity in the sector between Noyon and Montdidier is claiming attention today. Whether the Germans intend to deliver another blow here with their still powerful reserves cannot be foreseen, but the indications point to such an event.

FOCH HAS HALTED DRIVE, THE GERMAN CRITICS ADMIT

Ludendorff Did Not Intend to Pass Marne, Writers Say in Trying to Explain Failure.

PREDICT CHANGE IN ENTIRE SYSTEM

Decision Between Armies of Millions Cannot Fall in Few Days, Karl Rossner Says in Vossische Zeitung.

BY CYRIL BROWN,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

(Copyright, 1918, by Press Pub. Co.)

THE HAGUE, June 8.—German military critics now unanimously and frankly admit Ludendorff's offensive has been brought to a standstill by Gen. Foch, and seek to explain away the German faliure by arguing that the highest leadership never intended to go beyond the Marne at this time, meanwhile continuing to exhort the public to have patience.

Richard Gaedke of the Vorwaerts, the soberest German critic, says:

"From now on Foch, with the utmost haste and undeniable force of action, will seek to bar further German advance at certain points. Foch's reserves have undeniably massed and stiffened the allied resistance. They seek to throw the German ranks back."

Gaedke adds significantly that "the highest leadership could never have purposed letting their initially successful blow to turn into a purposeless, boundless storming ahead, but was satisfied with reaching the Marne sector in strength and sought only to make a defensive front here at least 25 kilometers long.

"In addition to the inaction of the enemy's forces, the ground gained also has strategic importance which will be made manifest later.

"The battle continues! But this battle, too, is naturally only one move in a strategic chess game between Hindenburg and Foch, which began March 21. Only at a later rate can full justice be done to its significance in the course of the whole campaign. It is matter of course that success cannot be achieved by one or two battles, but can only be gained by great battles and far-reaching victories."

Karl Rossner, too, sounds a new defensive note by speaking of "The impregnable German Marne position," while Salzmann, in the Vossische Zeitung, tells the German people, "'Rome was not built in a day.' Again and again, in view of too high towering hopes, it is necessary to point out that decision between armies of millions can be prepared for only relatively slowly.

"With our left flank secure on the Marne and with the obvious diminishing of the fighting between Rheims and the Marne line, we have reached a certain conclusion. Presumably a certain change in the whole system of fighting will appear in the next few days.

"We must be prepared for strong enemy propaganda, working with the assertion that the battle was a strategic German defeat because of its failing to obtain its objectives. But the big fight, forsooth, only can proceed slowly. Decision cannot fall in a few days. It is necessary further to arm one's self with patience and calmness."

NEW RECORD IN ERECTING FRAMES FOR WOODEN SHIPS

79 Are Fnished in 30 Hours and 35 Minutes in Yards at Orange, Texas.

By the Associated Press.

ORANGE, Tex., June 8.—What is claimed to be the world's record in shipbuilding was eclipsed this morning at the National Shipyard here, when the work of erecting 79 frames in one of the world's largest wooden steamship hulls was accomplished in 30 hours and 35 minutes. This beats the world's record made on the Pacific Coast, where 79 frames of similar size and type were erected in 44 hours, it is claimed here.

WASHINGTON, June 8. — Two American destroyers, the Ramsey and Hopewell, were launched today at the yards of the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Co., at Newport News, Va., the Navy Department announced. On May 11 the Breese and Gamble were launched simultaneously at the same yard, making today's the second double launching of destroyers there within a month.

WILMINGTON, Del., June 8.—The J. A. Bostwick, an oil tanker of 12,000 tons dead weight, originally contracted for the Standard Oil Co., but requisitioned by the Government, was launched at the Harlan plant of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation this afternoon. The tanker is 481 feet long, and of steel.

629 SHIPS BUILT IN 5 MONTHS IN THIS COUNTRY

Vessels of 687,055 Gross Tons, Our Merchant Fleet Now Being 10,000,000 Gross Tons.

NOW SECOND ONLY TO GREAT BRITAIN

Steady Increase in Ship Output Each Month, May Total Being Triple That of January.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—The steady growth of the American merchant marine in all classes of vessels was revealed today for the first time since the war began in statistics from the Department of Commerce, showing that in the first five months of this year there have been built in this country and officially numbered by the Bureau of Navigation a total of 629 vessels of 687,055 gross tons.

The merchant fleet of the United States now amounts to approximately 10,000,000 gross tons, not including merchant craft under control of the army and navy as transports and supply ships. At the beginning of January, 26,742 merchant vessels of 9,343,224 gross tons were flying the Stars and Stripes on trips across the Atlantic with food and munitions; into the Caribbean and Pacific with American products for foreign customers and on the lakes and rivers of this country as part of the nation's domestic transportation system.

Second Only to England.

This tremendous fleet is second only to the merchant tonnage of Great Britain. It includes all the new vessels built under the direction of the Shipping Board and thousands of other ships, smaller in individual tonnage, but greater in aggregate carrying capacity, which play so large a part in commerce and the maintenance of a favorable balance of trade.

All merchant vessels are required by law to register with the Bureau of Navigation of the Department of Commerce and to receive an official identification number, before being permitted to fly the flag of the United States. The number is awarded when the finished ship is measured for gross tonnage capacity, which is the content of the ship in terms of 100 cubic feet and the internationally accepted method of expressing size.

The Shipping Board, building exclusively cargo ships, has adopted deadweight tonnage as the medium of computing new tonnage, deadweight capacity being the actual weight of cargo and bunker coal which can be carried.

The deadweight tonnage of a cargo ship is about 50 per cent greater than its gross tonnage, but in a passenger vessel is less, because the space is occupied by passenger accommodations.

The former German liner Vaterland, now the Leviathian, has a gross tonnage of 54,000, but a deadweight capacity of only about 5000 tons, which illustrates why, in dealing with all types of ships, gross tonnage, or the actual size regardless of the space allotted to cargo has been chosen internationally as more truly indicative of the size of a fleet.

Increase Steady.

There has been a steady increase in new ships this year, the May tonnage being three times as great as the January output. In the first month of 1918 there were 57 ships of 64,795 tons given official numbers. In February 84 ships of 117,601 gross tons were numbered. March saw a notable jump in the production of small ships, numbers being awarded to 138, the tonnage being 147,145. The record in April was 165 ships of 163,050 tons and in May 185 ships of 194,464 tons.

In a single month this year the American merchant fleet has seen a growth almost as great as during the entire first year of the European war.

Faith in Concrete Ships.

Evidence that the Government regards the concrete ship as having passed beyond the stage of experiment to become a practical and efficient aid in the country's transportation system was given today in a statement by the Shipping Board, showing that no less than five different branches of the Government contemplate building concrete vessels.

Chairman Hurley soon will place contracts for 24 more concrete vessels in addition to the 18 already let, making a total tonnage of 298,500 ordered by the Shipping Board. Most of the new ships will be 7500-ton tankers and will be built in the five Government yards announced several days ago.

The Inland Waterways Commission is asking bids on 21 concrete cargo barges of 500 tons capacity, while the Navy Department has let contracts for 12 concrete barges of 500 tons each for harbor use and the Quartermaster's Department of the War Department has advertised for bids on 22 tugboats of reinforced concrete.

Concrete barges can be built in one-fourth of the time and at one-half the cost of steel barges, while concrete ships complete cost only half as much as steel vessels.

Pershing Directed American Attack Against Cantigny

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 8.

GEN. PERSHING personally directed the fighting of American troops at Cantigny, from where the Germans were driven with a loss of 200 prisoners, members of the Senate Military Committee were told today at their weekly conference with War Department officials. The village was taken by the Americans, May 28, and all German attempts to recapture it have been in vain.

PLANS A SUPREME ECONOMIC DICTATOR FOR THE ALLIES

Progress in Purchases.

Already the allied purchasing commission has made considerable progress along the line indicated. The purchases are handled as a part of the War Industries Board, of which Bernard M. Baruch is the head. His name is frequently mentione das the one for the job should it be created.

Through this board there has been virtual domination established in several of the great war staples. The nitrate supply, for example, is controlled and exploited for the benefit of all the allies. But this method has not been carried far enough. There have been many cases brought to light in which private interests of the different countries have bid against each other and other instances in which there has been an overestimation of need, to supply which has caused shortage elsewhere.

There is no scientific way at present of determining the proper priority that should be awarded. If Britain and France, to give a case in point, both wanted copper, the Supply Director would have the right to go behind the claims to discover which were the more urgent and more essential to the chief business of the moment, winning the war.

Into the hands of the dictator would be placed the material reserves of all the nations. From this store would be drawn the supplies as they became needed. It would centralize the industrial problem and while aiding war work would be a furthermasure of regulating the nonessential activities.

The organization, were it brought into existence, would be of great help in carrying on an economic war against Germany and her allies now and later on should the plan of curtailment of supplies for German consumers be adopted after peace comes.

The scheme would be broad enough to include agricultural regulations. In fact, so important is this subject becoming that there is an agitation under way to have America's department of agriculture represented at the principal capitals. Recently the commerce department has been sending special agents abroad and now the suggestion is made, and it is receiving strong support, that the same course be followed with respect to the agriculture department.

Hoover's Work Cited.

As an evidence of what world-wide control of supply means, the work of the Food Administration is submitted. Herbert Hoover acts practically for the whole world. He keeps the lines together by making the demands fit into the production. This requires adjustment, as it did last winter when the meat allowances and the wheat too were cut down in this country so that France and Britain should not suffer. And now wheat goes on an even shorter ration basis so that bread may be given to our friends overseas. The need is pressing, so the relief is prompt. That is the way the economic control is expected to operate.

To an extent the mission of Edward R. Stettinius, Assistant Secretary of War, who goes to France and England in a few weeks, is not unrelated to the sort of work the project would include. Mr. Stettinius will centralize the ordnance making in France and England for our forces. He will take in hand the various activities of a non-military nature and co-ordinate the heavy work entailed upon Gen. Pershing by the constantly increasing numbers of American troops reaching the other side.

The Assistant Secretary is probably the best posted man on munitions in the world today. In addition to handling the business for this country, he was, before our entrance into the war, the purchaser of all the vast quantities of stores bought by Great Britain and much of those taken by France. He is on a footing in London and Paris that should be extremely helpful in his present enterprise.

PERSHING WANTS SOLDIERS TO KEEP UP CORRESPONDENCE

Will Keep Closer Home Ties and Be Influenced for Good, General Order Says.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—The War Department today made public a general order issued recently by Gen. Pershing encouraging members of the American expeditionary forces to keep up correspondence with their relatives and friends at home. One of the greatest arguments for a constant flow of letters between France and America, Gen. Pershing said, was that it relieves much distress and anxiety on the part of the relatives and friends at home.

"Letters home will bring many letters in reply," Gen. Pershing's order said, "and the closer home ties will have potent influence for good, both in France and in the United States. All officers should realize this fact and both by encouraging their men and providing them with the proper facilities, do everything in their power to interest them in this vital question of writing home."

GERMAN PAPERS PLAY UP U-BOAT RAIDS NEAR U. S.

Launch Tirades Against America and Endeavor to Find Offset for Increasing U. S. Power in France.

BELITTLE VALUE OF AMERICAN AID

Correspondent at Front Says "We Await Events and With Fritz Reuter 'I Laugh Over It.'"

By the Associated Press.

AMSTERDAM, June 8.—News of the German U-boats' operations on the American coast receives page headlines in the latest German newspapers. The press takes the occasion once more to launch its tirades against the United States and its President, and to endeavor to find some offset for the assembling of American hosts in France. Despite the abuse by the German papers of Premier Clemenceau for the inspiration for France, he finds in the coming of the Americans, their arrival is evidently viewed with anything but equanimity in Germany.

The Cologne Gazette concludes a violent diatribe against America:

"It is therefore only right and fair that we, too, make use of our War means and show the friends of humanity in their home land what war looks like and what it means. Our U-boats first visited the American coasts for legitimate peaceful commerce. The North Americans may now feel the fist of the war lord.

"They need not be surprised. He who sows the wind, reaps the whirlwind, even when he sits on the other side of the great herring pond, where he is under the delusion that he is safe from the storm."

Cologne Press Comment.

The Cologne Volkszeitung talks about "those who are prosecuting a starvation war against our wives and children having revealed to them off their own coasts the seriousness of war, when the new strategy of our U-boat war, which technically is becoming increasingly perfected, is also directed against the other shore of the Atlantic ocean. This in view of the character of our American opponent evokes on all sides the liveliest satisfaction amongst the German peoples."

Still following the policy of belittling the value of American aid, for the benefit of the German people, the correspondent of the Tages Zeitung devotes the whole of his latest dispatch from headquarters to a scornful depreciation of the part played by the Americans against the German offensive.

Professing to summarize traces of American assistance to the Entente which the German troops came across in the captured region, all he thinks fit to inform his readers about is the destruction and capture of three Americn armored motor cars, the capture of a number of new heavy batteries of American manufacture, American shell and American rubber, and then concludes:

"We do not underestimate the American, or any other enemy for we know that we have to overcome every one at the cost of German blood in order to attain peace and free development of German strength. But when we read what the Paris and London press has hitherto achieved in glorification of American military help, and when we see what has come out of this in one of the Entente's most fateful hours, we are, after a great victory which has taken us over all the American batteries, ambulances, soldiers' recuperation homes and picture postcard depots on the Marne, justified in saying: 'We await events,' and, with Fritz Reuter, 'I laugh over it.'"

Von Reventlow's Opinion.

Count von Reventlow, foremost German advocate of "frightfulness," believes the submarine operations in the Western Atlantic will compel the United States to withdraw its chief naval forces to defend its coast.

"The submarine attack on America means the holding of the American navy in home waters," Von Reventlow declares.

"It is a campaign against prolongation of the war by America," said the Nord Deutsche Allgemeine. "It is connected with the West front offensive."

The newspaper admits it is hard to attack American transports in the open sea, but thinks more favorable results will be obtained by submarines operating near the harbors of departure.

NO MORE PULLMAN BERTH RESERVATIONS BY 'PHONE

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—The railroad administration today began an investigation of complaints that some Pullman agents are refusing to give no such information over the as to whether seats or berths are available, saying they have orders from the railroad administration to give information over the telephone telephone. No instruction of that nature has been issued, officials declare.

Pullman agents, however, have been instructed not to make telephone reservations, because many applicants neglected to claim their seats, and this results in empty berths, for which other travelers have applied in vain. The practice was initiated by the Pullman company and approved by the railroad administration.

is improved by the reconquest of a ber of dominant points.

FRENCH BEAT OFF ATTACKS ABOVE CHATEAU THIERRY

Germans Strike Violently at Chezy and Dammard and Suffer Heavy Losses.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, June 8.—Heavy counter-attacks launched by the Germans around Chezy and Dammard, to the northwest of Chateau Thierry broke down under the French guns, according to the War Office announcement tonight. The enemy suffered serious losses. (The scene of this fighting is immediately to left of where the Americans have been driving the Germans back in a series of brilliant attacks northwest of Chateau Thierry).

The statement says:

"There was quite lively artillery action in the neighborhood of Hangard-en-Santerre, between the Oise and the Aisne and south of the Aisne. We continued our progress in the region of Veuilly-la-Poterie and Bussiares and penetrated the village of Eloup (?).

"The enemy tried to check the advance which we made yesterday at Chezy and Dammard, launching violent counter-attacks in this region. Our troops broke down all of the attacks of the enemy who suffered heavy losses. We have maintained all our gains.

"Calm prevailed everywhere else."

GEN. HARBORD IN COMMAND OF MARINES

Pershing's Chief of Staff in Charge Since Gen. Doren Was Disqualified.

NEW YORK, June 8.—The American marine contingent on the Marne is temporarily under the command of Brigadier-General James G. Harbord, who is Gen. Pershing's chief of staff, and rose from the ranks of the American army.

Gen. Harbord has exercised command over the marines, it is understood, since the recent relief of Brigadier-General Charels A. Doyen of the marine corps, who has been found physically disqualified for further hard work at the front. Gen. Doyen took the marines to France and had charge of their training work there in camp and trench. He will soon be succeeded by another prominent general officer of marines, to whom Gen. Harbord will hand over the command of the marines.

Gen. Harbord is a typical example of the American self-made soldier. Born in Illinois, he was graduated from the Kansas State Agricultural College in 1886 and at the age of 20 enlisted in Company A of the Fourth Infantry, Jan. 10, 1889. He soon became Corporal, Sergeant and Quartermaster-Sergeant of that company. During the Spanish-American War he was appointed Second Lieutenant of the Fifth Cavalry and later served with the Tenth, Eleventh and First Cavalry Regiments. He was a Major when the war in Europe began. He was Lieutenant-Colonel when he went to France a year ago as Gen. Pershing's chief of staff and had seen service in Cuba and the Philippines.

Yesterday's Official French War Report

PARIS, June 8.—New progress was made by the French last night in the region between the Marne and the Ourcq, northwest of Chateau Thierry, the War Office announced today.

In this sector French troops have pushed their way through Chezy to its eastern outskirts and have reached the western edge of Dammard village.

In the district south of Veuilly La Poterie the Germans made two violent attacks along the Bouresches-Le Thiolet front. The enemy was repulsed with heavy losses in each case.

"South of the Aisne there was great artillery activity, notably in the region of Favorelles. Southwest of Ambleny the French improved their positions during the night. South of the Ourcq they continued their pressure and realized new progress.

"The French have carried their lines as far as the western outskirts of Dammard and east of Chezy and more than a kilometer north of Veuilly-La-Poterie. They have taken about 50 prisoners..

"Further south the Germans made two violent attacks against positions reconquered by the French on the front from Bouresches to Le Thiolet. The French broke these assaults and the enemy suffered heavy losses without obtaining any advantage.

"On the rest of the front the night was comparatively calm."

Attempt to Break American Line in Order to Outflank Verdun Forecast.

By the Associated Press.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, June 7.—Reports of recent heavy German train movements from the direction of Metz toward the St. Mihiel salient has aroused discussion in the American expeditionary forces as to whether the enemy is planning an assault in the Woevre.

From a tactical point of view the neighborhood of St. Mihiel with its sharp salient offers a logical place for a German attack. A drive through St. Mihiel to the southwest, it is considered, might have a triple object—the menacing of Bar le Duc, the outflanking of Verdun from the rear and the elimination of the salient which has its apex at Verdun.

For the moment at least, perhaps permanently, the allies have stopped the enemy at the Marne. Many engagements of a tactical nature may be expected even if the Germans decide it is useless to continue their efforts along the Marne and elect to hit the allied line at other places. The position of the railways and the formation of the terrain northwest and north of Bar le Duc offer the Germans an opportunity. Of course, what the future holds for the American forces around St. Mihiel is not known, but the salient there is being discussed as a possibility not to be lost sight of.

Another place which is likely to see more fighting is the sector around Mont Didier, where American troops recently captured Cantigny. Another point at which American troops are stationed is the territory around Chateau Thierry. It may be considered certain that whatever future holds, the American forces undoubtedly will participate in some hard fighting.

Successful Raids by French and British Reported by Haig.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 8.—Field Marshal Haig's report from British headquarters tonight follows:

"We raided the enemy's trenches last night south of Arras and inflicted casualties on his garrison.

"Early this morning French troops carried out a successful minor enterprise east of Dickebush Lake and captured 47 prisoners."

British Drop 23 Tons of Bombs Behind Germans Lines in Day.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 8.—Aerial operations by the British are described in an official statement issued tonight as follows:

"In the air a good deal of observation and photographic work was carried out by us on June 7. Bombing was active on both sides. We dropped 23 tons of bombs on railway junctions, airdromes and dumps beyond the German lines.

"Twelve machines were brought down by our airmen and seven were driven down out of control. We lost three machines."

French Save Locre by Capture of Hospice From Germans.

By the Associated Press.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, June 8.—Locre Hospice, which the Germans captured on Wednesday night, was retaken by the French yesterday. They battled their way to this much-contested position and completely reestablished their original line.

The French have thus removed a more or less serious threat to the Village of Locre, which itself is an important defense for Mont Rouge and other hills lying immediately to the west.

German Officer's Description of Opening of Aisne Attack.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, via Ottawa, June 8.—Reuter's correspondent at French headquarters telegraphs a letter written by a German officer giving a striking picture of the opening of the recent battle from the German viewpoint. It reads:

"On May 25 we had already marched for three nights to reach our destination. By day one hardly ever saw a soldier, but at night the roads swarmed with troops, guns and convoys. Half an hour after midnight on the morning of May 27 we arrived on the road just behind the first line. There was no sleep for me, for a creeping barrage opened from 3000 guns. The earth trembled and the moonlight was obscured by clouds of vapor from the smoke shells.

"The infantry attack began at 3 o'clock, and 15 minutes afterward we passed the wire entanglements and were bursting into the enemy positions. At the end of two hours we had fought our way through the enemy positions to the Chemin des Dames, opening a passage for the artillery. By evening we had pushed the French beyond the canal and over the Aisne and then began a fierce pursuit. Among the prisoners were British, Italians, Americans and Arabs."

Rheims, Endangered, Is Saved When French Retake Mountain.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN FRANCE, June 8.—The most severe among the recent minor battles in the Marne-Rheims region was in the vicinity of St. Euphraise and Bligny, westward from Rheims.

The Germans launched a serious attack here at dawn Thursday morning along a four-mile front. They planned to pierce the allied lines to a depth of two and one-half miles, which would permit them to outflank Rheims Mountain and thus capture the city. It would have reduced at the same time the salient held by the allies, which endangers a part of the line.

The village and spur of Bligny fell into their hands when they came forward in dense waves, but the British immediately counter attacked and took the spur. Simultaneously the French counter attacked and reached the outskirts of Bligny and on a second attempt today recaptured the village and re-established the line.

The Germans suffered most severely from artillery fire, the two divisions engaged losing many killed and over 200 prisoners.

The revival of artillery activity in the sector between Noyon and Montdidier is claiming attention today. Whether the Germans intend to deliver another blow here with their still powerful reserves cannot be foreseen, but the indications point to such an event.

Missing U. S. Soldiers Found to Be Prisoners in Germany.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—Three American soldiers previously reported missing in action, today were reported prisoners of war. They are: First Lieutenant Charles Maxson, Baltimore; Privates Lawrence Perlmutter, New York City (unwounded), and Louis Sandler, Philadelphia.

Sergt. Pilon Kerwood of Bryn Mawr, Pa., also is reported a prisoner of war, unwounded.

The Adjutant-General has received, through the Red Cross, word that Aviator Thomas Hitchcock, a prisoner of war, has been transferred to the prison at Gissen.

FOCH HAS HALTED DRIVE, THE GERMAN CRITICS ADMIT

PREDICT CHANGE IN ENTIRE SYSTEM

BY CYRIL BROWN,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

(Copyright, 1918, by Press Pub. Co.)

THE HAGUE, June 8.—German military critics now unanimously and frankly admit Ludendorff's offensive has been brought to a standstill by Gen. Foch, and seek to explain away the German failure by arguing that the highest leadership never intended to go beyond the Marne at this time, meanwhile continuing to exhort the public to have patience.

Richard Gaedke of the Vorwaerts, the soberest German critic, says:

"From now on Foch, with the utmost haste and undeniable force of action, will seek to bar further German advance at certain points. Foch's reserves have undeniably massed and stiffened the allied resistance. They seek to throw the German ranks back."

Gaedke adds significantly that "the highest leadership could never have purposed letting their initially successful blow to turn into a purposeless, boundless storming ahead, but was satisfied with reaching the Marne sector in strength and sought only to make a defensive front here at least 25 kilometers long.

"In addition to the inaction of the enemy's forces, the ground gained also has strategic importance which will be made manifest later.

"The battle continues! But this battle, too, is naturally only one move in a strategic chess game between Hindenburg and Foch, which began March 21. Only at a later rate can full justice be done to its significance in the course of the whole campaign. It is matter of course that success cannot be achieved by one or two battles, but can only be gained by great battles and far-reaching victories."

Karl Rossner, too, sounds a new defensive note by speaking of "The impregnable German Marne position," while Salzmann, in the Vossische Zeitung, tells the German people, "'Rome was not built in a day.' Again and again, in view of too high towering hopes, it is necessary to point out that decision between armies of millions can be prepared for only relatively slowly.

"With our left flank secure on the Marne and with the obvious diminishing of the fighting between Rheims and the Marne line, we have reached a certain conclusion. Presumably a certain change in the whole system of fighting will appear in the next few days.

"We must be prepared for strong enemy propaganda, working with the assertion that the battle was a strategic German defeat because of its failing to obtain its objectives. But the big fight, forsooth, only can proceed slowly. Decision cannot fall in a few days. It is necessary further to arm one's self with patience and calmness."

NEW RECORD IN ERECTING FRAMES FOR WOODEN SHIPS

79 Are Fnished in 30 Hours and 35 Minutes in Yards at Orange, Texas.

By the Associated Press.

ORANGE, Tex., June 8.—What is claimed to be the world's record in shipbuilding was eclipsed this morning at the National Shipyard here, when the work of erecting 79 frames in one of the world's largest wooden steamship hulls was accomplished in 30 hours and 35 minutes. This beats the world's record made on the Pacific Coast, where 79 frames of similar size and type were erected in 44 hours, it is claimed here.

WASHINGTON, June 8. — Two American destroyers, the Ramsey and Hopewell, were launched today at the yards of the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Co., at Newport News, Va., the Navy Department announced. On May 11 the Breese and Gamble were launched simultaneously at the same yard, making today's the second double launching of destroyers there within a month.

WILMINGTON, Del., June 8.—The J. A. Bostwick, an oil tanker of 12,000 tons dead weight, originally contracted for the Standard Oil Co., but requisitioned by the Government, was launched at the Harlan plant of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation this afternoon. The tanker is 481 feet long, and of steel.

629 SHIPS BUILT IN 5 MONTHS IN THIS COUNTRY

Vessels of 687,055 Gross Tons, Our Merchant Fleet Now Being 10,000,000 Gross Tons.

NOW SECOND ONLY TO GREAT BRITAIN

Steady Increase in Ship Output Each Month, May Total Being Triple That of January.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—The steady growth of the American merchant marine in all classes of vessels was revealed today for the first time since the war began in statistics from the Department of Commerce, showing that in the first five months of this year there have been built in this country and officially numbered by the Bureau of Navigation a total of 629 vessels of 687,055 gross tons.

The merchant fleet of the United States now amounts to approximately 10,000,000 gross tons, not including merchant craft under control of the army and navy as transports and supply ships. At the beginning of January, 26,742 merchant vessels of 9,343,224 gross tons were flying the Stars and Stripes on trips across the Atlantic with food and munitions; into the Caribbean and Pacific with American products for foreign customers and on the lakes and rivers of this country as part of the nation's domestic transportation system.

Second Only to England.

This tremendous fleet is second only to the merchant tonnage of Great Britain. It includes all the new vessels built under the direction of the Shipping Board and thousands of other ships, smaller in individual tonnage, but greater in aggregate carrying capacity, which play so large a part in commerce and the maintenance of a favorable balance of trade.

All merchant vessels are required by law to register with the Bureau of Navigation of the Department of Commerce and to receive an official identification number, before being permitted to fly the flag of the United States. The number is awarded when the finished ship is measured for gross tonnage capacity, which is the content of the ship in terms of 100 cubic feet and the internationally accepted method of expressing size.

The Shipping Board, building exclusively cargo ships, has adopted deadweight tonnage as the medium of computing new tonnage, deadweight capacity being the actual weight of cargo and bunker coal which can be carried.

The deadweight tonnage of a cargo ship is about 50 per cent greater than its gross tonnage, but in a passenger vessel is less, because the space is occupied by passenger accommodations.

The former German liner Vaterland, now the Leviathian, has a gross tonnage of 54,000, but a deadweight capacity of only about 5000 tons, which illustrates why, in dealing with all types of ships, gross tonnage, or the actual size regardless of the space allotted to cargo has been chosen internationally as more truly indicative of the size of a fleet.

Increase Steady.

There has been a steady increase in new ships this year, the May tonnage being three times as great as the January output. In the first month of 1918 there were 57 ships of 64,795 tons given official numbers. In February 84 ships of 117,601 gross tons were numbered. March saw a notable jump in the production of small ships, numbers being awarded to 138, the tonnage being 147,145. The record in April was 165 ships of 163,050 tons and in May 185 ships of 194,464 tons.

In a single month this year the American merchant fleet has seen a growth almost as great as during the entire first year of the European war.

Faith in Concrete Ships.

Evidence that the Government regards the concrete ship as having passed beyond the stage of experiment to become a practical and efficient aid in the country's transportation system was given today in a statement by the Shipping Board, showing that no less than five different branches of the Government contemplate building concrete vessels.

Chairman Hurley soon will place contracts for 24 more concrete vessels in addition to the 18 already let, making a total tonnage of 298,500 ordered by the Shipping Board. Most of the new ships will be 7500-ton tankers and will be built in the five Government yards announced several days ago.

The Inland Waterways Commission is asking bids on 21 concrete cargo barges of 500 tons capacity, while the Navy Department has let contracts for 12 concrete barges of 500 tons each for harbor use and the Quartermaster's Department of the War Department has advertised for bids on 22 tugboats of reinforced concrete.

Concrete barges can be built in one-fourth of the time and at one-half the cost of steel barges, while concrete ships complete cost only half as much as steel vessels.

Pershing Directed American Attack Against Cantigny

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 8.

GEN. PERSHING personally directed the fighting of American troops at Cantigny, from where the Germans were driven with a loss of 200 prisoners, members of the Senate Military Committee were told today at their weekly conference with War Department officials. The village was taken by the Americans, May 28, and all German attempts to recapture it have been in vain.

PLANS A SUPREME ECONOMIC DICTATOR FOR THE ALLIES

Progress in Purchases.

Already the allied purchasing commission has made considerable progress along the line indicated. The purchases are handled as a part of the War Industries Board, of which Bernard M. Baruch is the head. His name is frequently mentione das the one for the job should it be created.

Through this board there has been virtual domination established in several of the great war staples. The nitrate supply, for example, is controlled and exploited for the benefit of all the allies. But this method has not been carried far enough. There have been many cases brought to light in which private interests of the different countries have bid against each other and other instances in which there has been an overestimation of need, to supply which has caused shortage elsewhere.

There is no scientific way at present of determining the proper priority that should be awarded. If Britain and France, to give a case in point, both wanted copper, the Supply Director would have the right to go behind the claims to discover which were the more urgent and more essential to the chief business of the moment, winning the war.

Into the hands of the dictator would be placed the material reserves of all the nations. From this store would be drawn the supplies as they became needed. It would centralize the industrial problem and while aiding war work would be a furthermasure of regulating the non-essential activities.

The organization, were it brought into existence, would be of great help in carrying on an economic war against Germany and her allies now and later on should the plan of curtailment of supplies for German consumers be adopted after peace comes.

The scheme would be broad enough to include agricultural regulations. In fact, so important is this subject becoming that there is an agitation under way to have America's department of agriculture represented at the principal capitals. Recently the commerce department has been sending special agents abroad and now the suggestion is made, and it is receiving strong support, that the same course be followed with respect to the argiculture department.

Hoover's Work Cited.

As an evidence of what world-wide control of supply means, the work of the Food Administration is submitted. Herbert Hoover acts practically for the whole world. He keeps the lines together by making the demands fit into the production. This requires adjustment, as it did last winter when the meat allowances and the wheat too were cut down in this country so that France and Britain should not suffer. And now wheat goes on an even shorter ration basis so that bread may be given to our friends overseas. The need is pressing, so the relief is prompt. That is the way the economic control is expected to operate.

To an extent the mission of Edward R. Stettinius, Assistant Secretary of War, who goes to France and England in a few weeks, is not unrelated to the sort of work the project would include. Mr. Stettinius will centralize the ordnance making in France and England for our forces. He will take in hand the various activities of a non-military nature and co-ordinate the heavy work entailed upon Gen. Pershing by the constantly increasing numbers of American troops reaching the other side.

The Assistant Secretary is probably the best posted man on munitions in the world today. In addition to handling the business for this country, he was, before our entrance into the war, the purchaser of all the vast quantities of stores bought by Great Britain and much of those taken by France. He is on a footing in London and Paris that should be extremely helpful in his present enterprise.

PERSHING WANTS SOLDIERS TO KEEP UP CORRESPONDENCE

Will Keep Closer Home Ties and Be Influenced for Good, General Order Says.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—The War Department today made public a general order issued recently by Gen. Pershing encouraging members of the American expeditionary forces to keep up correspondence with their relatives and friends at home. One of the greatest arguments for a constant flow of letters between France and America, Gen. Pershing said, was that it relieves much distress and anxiety on the part of the relatives and friends at home.

"Letters home will bring many letters in reply," Gen. Pershing's order said, "and the closer home ties will have potent influence for good, both in France and in the United States. All officers should realize this fact and both by encouraging their men and providing them with the proper facilities, do everything in their power to interest them in this vital question of writing home."

GERMAN PAPERS PLAY UP U-BOAT RAIDS NEAR U. S.

Launch Tirades Against America and Endeavor to Find Offset for Increasing U. S. Power in France.

BELITTLE VALUE OF AMERICAN AID

Correspondent at Front Says "We Await Events and With Fritz Reuter 'I Laugh Over It.'"

By the Associated Press.

AMSTERDAM, June 8.—News of the German U-boats' operations on the American coast receives page headlines in the latest German newspapers. The press takes the occasion once more to launch its tirades against the United States and its President, and to endeavor to find some offset for the assembling of American hosts in France. Despite the abuse by the German papers of Premier Clemenceau for the inspiration for France, he finds in the coming of the Americans, their arrival is evidently viewed with anything but equanimity in Germany.

The Cologne Gazette concludes a violent diatribe against America:

"It is therefore only right and fair that we, too, make use of our war means and show the friends of humanity in their home land what war looks like and what it means. Our U-boats first visited the American coasts for legitimate peaceful commerce. The North Americans may now feel the fist of the war lord.

"They need not be surprised. He who sows the wind, reaps the whirlwind, even when he sits on the other side of the great herring pond, where he is under the delusion that he is safe from the storm."

Cologne Press Comment.

The Cologne Volkszeitung talks about "those who are prosecuting a starvation war against our wives and children having revealed to them off their own coasts the seriousness of war, when the new strategy of our U-boat war, which technically is becoming increasingly perfected, is also directed against the other shore of the Atlantic ocean. This in view of the character of our American opponent evokes on all sides the liveliest satisfaction amongst the German peoples."

Still following the policy of belittling the value of American aid, for the benefit of the German people, the correspondent of the Tages Zeitung devotes the whole of his latest dispatch from headquarters to a scornful depreciation of the part played by the Americans against the German offensive.

Professing to summarize traces of American assistance to the Entente which the German troops came across in the captured region, all he thinks fit to inform his readers about is the destruction and capture of three Americn armored motor cars, the capture of a number of new heavy batteries of American manufacture, American shell and American rubber, and then concludes:

"We do not underestimate the American, or any other enemy, for we know that we have to overcome every one at the cost of German blood in order to attain peace and free development of German strength. But when we read what the Paris and London press has hitherto achieved in glorification of American military help, and when we see what has come out of this in one of the Entente's most fateful hours, we are, after a great victory which has taken us over all the American batteries, ambulances, soldiers' recuperation homes and picture postcard depots on the Marne, justified in saying: 'We await events,' and with Fritz Reuter, 'I laugh over it.'"

Von Reventlow's Opinion.

Count von Reventlow, foremost German advocate of "frightfulness," believes the submarine operations in the Western Atlantic will compel the United States to withdraw its chief naval forces to defend its coast.

"The submarine attack on America means the holding of the American navy in home waters," Von Reventlow declares.

"It is a campaign against prolongation of the war by America," said the Nord Deutsche Allgemeine. "It is connected with the West front offensive."

The newspaper admits it is hard to attack American transports in the open sea, but thinks more favorable results will be obtained by submarines operating near the harbors of departure.

NO MORE PULLMAN BERTH RESERVATIONS BY 'PHONE

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—The railroad administration today began an investigation of complaints that some Pullman agents are refusing to give no such information over the as to whether seats or berths are available, saying they have orders from the railroad administration to give information over the telephone telephone. No instruction of that nature has been issued, officials declare.

Pullman agents, however, have been instructed not to make telephone reservations, because many applicants neglected to claim their seats, and this results in empty berths, for which other travelers have applied in vain. The practice was initiated by the Pullman company and approved by the railroad administration.

NAME 13 ITEMS AS OMITTED FROM CELLA INVENTORY

Executors of Estate of Mrs. Louis J. Cella Ask Removal of Executors of Louis J. Cella's Estate.

WANT SUIT BROUGHT AGAINST REALTY CO.

Men Whose Removal Petitioners Seek Are Officers of Concerns Against Which Action Is Sought.

Thirteen items of value, alleged to have been omitted from the inventory of Louis A. Cella's estate, are listed in a petition filed yesterday in the St. Louis County Probate Court by the executors of Mrs. Cella's estate, asking the removal of Charles J. Cella and Joseph E. Martin as executors of Cella's estate.

Cella, a race track, theater and hotel owner, died April 29, leaving one-half of his property to his wife, who died four days later. At the time of his death it was supposed that Cella was worth several million dollars. The executors of Cella's estate have indicated that it was not so large as had been supposed, and the inventory which they filed tended to bear out this assertion. The wife's heirs have charged that the inventory was not complete.

Want Real Estate Company Sued.

In the petition for the removal of C. J. Cella and Martin as executors, the executors of the wife's estate say that most of the alleged assets not listed in the inventory are claimed by the Southern Real Estate and Financial Co., of which C. J. Cella and Martin are officers. As executors of the estate, the petition says, it is their duty to sue the Southern Real Estate and Financial Co., to clear the title to this property, but their connection with the company would tend to nullify such action. C. J. Cella is vice president of the company and Martin is secretary.

It is alleged that the two executors imposed upon two of the three witnesses to the inventory, in inducing them to sign it. These were John F. Willman and A. A. Ladd of University City. The third witness, C. C. Wolff, who is appraiser of the State inheritance tax, refused to sign the inventory, declaring that it was not complete.

Discusses Parkview Transfers.

The petitioners also assert that C. J. Cella and Martin "confederated in the dissipation of the assets" while Louis A. Cella was ill by causing the filing of two instruments purporting to be warranty deeds conveying valuable property in North Parkview place from Louis A. Cella to Charles J. Cella. This transaction, it is alleged, caused a depletion of the property of the Southern Real Estate and Financial Co., as before the alleged transfer the North Parkview property was held by the company.

The petition also charges that the executors are allowing the Cella personal property, valued at $8000, at his home, Wildwood, St. Louis County, to deteriorate, and it asks that this property be sold. It is charged that the two executors have hampered and hindered the executors of Mrs. Cella's estate, by refusing to permit them to inspect the assets of Cella's estate.

Items Named in Petition.

The executors of Mrs. Cella's estate are Frederick E. Mueller and William Mongan. They are represented by Attorneys Joseph C. McAtee, A. E. L. Gardner and Emil A. Roebke. The list of items which they allege to have been omitted from the inventory is as follows:

A lease on the Columbia Theater from George S. Myers to Louis A. Cella.

An agreement conveying to Cella 233 1-3 shares of the Middleton Theater Co., from Frank R. Tate and Jennie Tate.

An agreement conveying 100 shares of the same company from Jennie Tate.

An agreement conveying 1 1-3 shares of the same company from Andrew D. Cella.

An agreement between Cella, the Delmar Hotel Co. and the Anheuser-Busch Brewing Association conveying property rights in the Delmar Hotel to Cella.

Certificates for 400 shares of the Credit Indemnity Co. and a receipt from Lorenzo E. Anderson for 100 shares of the same company.

A contractual interest in three shares of the Latonia Agricultural Association.

Certificates for 299 shares of the Niagara Racing Association.

At least two certificates of one share each of the General Insulating and Manufacturing Co.

Certificate for 13,332 shares of the Oaklawn Jockey Club.

One-half the leasehold of the Central National Bank Building at Seventh and Olive streets.

Real estate in Chicago, the value of which is not known to the petitioners.

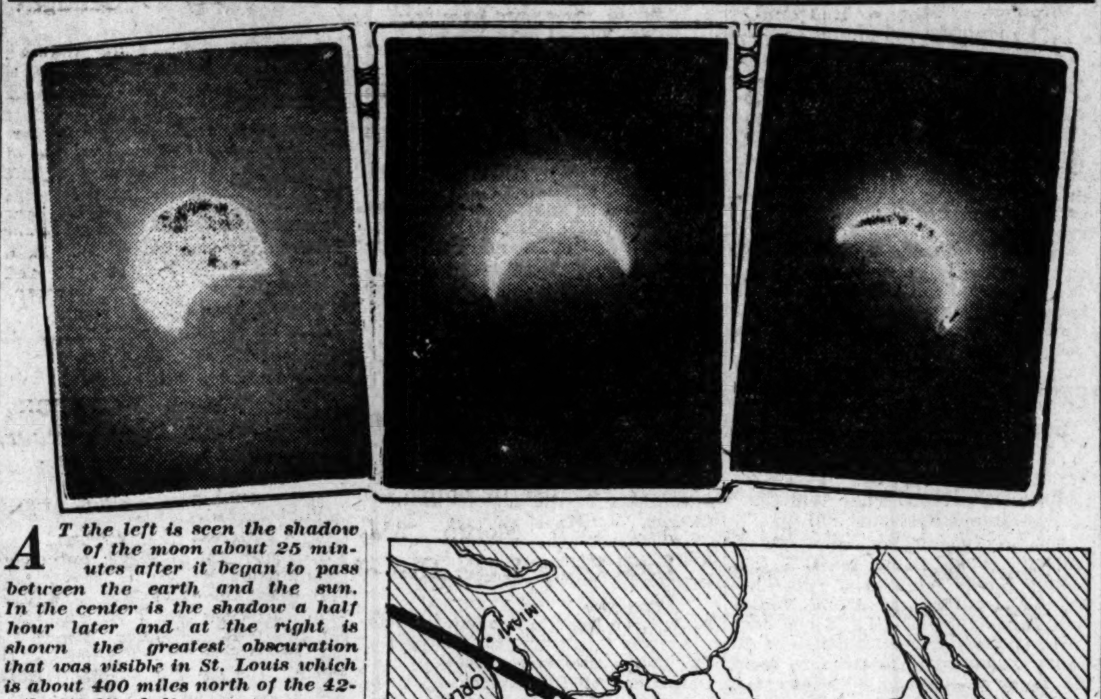
A deposit of $600 in the St. Louis Union Trust Co.

"True Inventory," Says C. J. Cella.

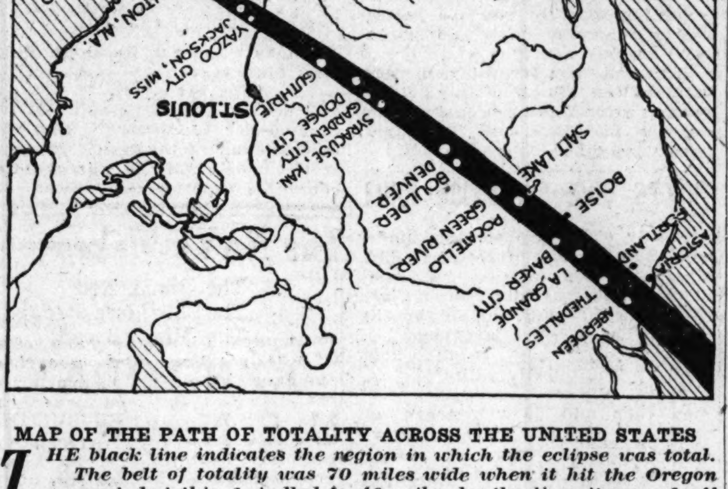
Because of these alleged omissions from the inventory, it is charged that C. J. Cella and Martin are unsuitable executors. The court is asked to remove them and appoint other executors, who will be free to take action in regard to the property claimed by the Southern Real Estate and Financial Co.

Charles Cella, when asked for a statement by a Post-Dispatch reporter said: "A true inventory of the assets of the estate of my brother was filed. Further than that I do not care to say anything. We will meet these allegations at the proper time and place. Any discussion of them in the newspapers could do no good."

Three Phases of Yesterday's Eclipse as Seen in St. Louis and Recorded by a Post-Dispatch Camera



At the left is seen the shadow of the moon about 25 minutes after it began to pass between the earth and the sun. In the center is the shadow a half hour later and at the right is shown the greatest obscuration that was visible in St. Louis which is about 400 miles north of the 42-mile totality belt.



MAP OF THE PATH OF TOTALITY ACROSS THE UNITED STATES

The black line indicates the region in which the eclipse was total. The belt of totality was 70 miles wide when it hit the Oregon coast, but this dwindled to 40 miles by the time it passed off the continent at Orlando, Fla., owing to the change in the relative positions of the earth and the moon during the transition. The proportions of the belt, of course, are exaggerated in the drawing to give it emphasis.

MOON'S EFFORT TO MUSS UP DAYLIGHT BLOCKED BY SUN

on time, and this one began at the announced moment, 5:27 p. m., with a little nick in the lower right hand part of the solar disk—the lower limb, an astronomer would say.

The nick became a big bite out of the sun's surface, and by 6 o'clock the part of the sun's surface which remained visible was a crescent, with the ends pointing downward.

Between 6 and 6:30 the position of the crescent was shifted, and it took the thin, graceful shape of the new moon, and lay very much in the posture of the new moon, with its horns extending to the left. The extreme right, or north side, of the sun remained visible all the time, this city being to the north of the zone of totality.

Moon Makes Its Exit.

After 6:30, when the 88-degree point of obscuration was reached, the moon sought the upper left-hand exit, and it left at 7:37 at a point opposite the place where it had begun its excursion two hours and 10 minutes before.

Looking across the river, at the height of the phenomenon, one could see the mellowing effect of the diminished light on the fields and bluffs of the Illinois side. The yellowish light on downtown buildings, especially those of lighter color, was also noticeable—when one looked for it. Had one not been looking for it, it might have escaped attention.

Temperature observations, taken by the Weather Bureau staff at 10-minute intervals, showed how slight a difference was made by the eclipse in the warmth of the cool afternoon. Forecaster Hayes, under instructions from the Government, also took observations on the velocity of the clouds, the direction of their motion and on the humidity. The latter calculations, requiring computation, had not been finished last night.

FATHER BRENNAN EXPLAINS ECLIPSE VIEWED AT HOME

Three Women Parishioners and Reporters Watch Phenomena With Priest.

While thousands of St. Louisans were observing the sun's eclipse through smoked glasses, the Rev. Father Martin S. Brennan, famous astronomer and pastor of St. Mary and Joseph's Catholic Church, surrounded by a group of newspaper men and three women parishioners, watched every phase of the phenomena through a telescope, placed in the second floor study of his home at 6304 Minnesota avenue.

The telescope, with a four-inch lens, was placed close to a window, lowered from the top. As early at 5 p. m. the priest was watching for the first signs of the eclipse to appear. It was May 28, 1900, when the last eclipse of the sun occurred and Father Brennan had waited patiently to see the next one.

At exactly 5:27 Father Brennan announced joyfully that two small spots had come into focus on the bottom of the sun. "These spots are about 50,000 miles across," said the priest. Just then the first indications of the eclipse appeared and, as Father Brennan explained it, "the edge of the sun began to be scooped away." The black circle began to eat its way across the sun until it reached and entirely covered the spots.

Father Brennan amused his small audience by humorous references to the appearance of the sun as the eclipse progressed.

"It looks like a little horn, now," observed Father Brennan at 6:13, when the sun had assumed the shape of a hunter's horn. At 6:20 the horn was reduced to a very small one, and outside the sky took on a depth of color and the earth began to darken noticeably.

"Oh, if this were only a total eclipse," cried Father Brennan." Then you would see something wonderful. The earth would become very dark and even the stars of the second magnitude would come out. I saw a total eclipse, my first one by the way, in 1865 when a student at a seminary at Cape Girardeau, Mo. This was the biggest one in the history of the United States."

At 6:25, Father Brennan, accompanied by his guests, went downstairs into the yard of the residence and with the aid of powerful field glasses tried to locate stars.

The effort was unsuccessful, but Father Brennan said that certain planets, such as Saturn and Mars, could be seen with field glasses if their exact location was found. By this time the shadows had deepened. A large rooster in the priest's chicken yard crowed lustily, several minutes later repeated the crowing. Father Brennan was convinced that the rooster was affected by the sudden change in the atmosphere and was registering the concern, although it was still palpably daylight.

Father Brennan returned to his telescope a few minutes before 6:30 and exactly at the half hour announced that the eclipse had reached its greatest proportions, 88 per cent. The sun had assumed the shape of a perfect crescent, Father Brennan commented, or as astronomers call it, "a lunar horn."

"This eclipse is 60 to 75 miles wide in totality," said Father Brennan. "A total eclipse would be about 150 miles wide. Because it runs diagonally from Astoria, Ore., to Orlando, Fla., we are only able to see 88 per cent of it. The closest point to St. Louis where the total eclipse can be seen is Little Rock, Ark., about 300 miles.

"This eclipse occurs every 18 years and 11 days. If the path of the sun and moon were the same we would have an eclipse every 29½ days.

The 88 per cent eclipse only lasted a minute, and a few minutes later it was observed that the sun was rapidly approaching its normal size.

"It looks like a bologna sausage now," said Father Brennan laughingly, about 10 minutes after the 88 per cent period was reached, and a look into the telescope proved this observation to be nearly correct. At 7:27, the priest said that the spots which, the newspaper men had seen covered by the eclipse, had again appeared. The return of the sun to its normal size was quite rapid after 6:40, and by 7:27, the sun, according to schedule, was entirely free of the eclipse.

"Well, it was worth waiting for," said Father Brennan to the newspaper men just before they departed. "It cannot be told now whether anything of unusual interest has been discovered until reports from the large observatories are received, but I hope we shall all be here to observe the next one in 1936."

After assuring Father Brennan that they would be glad to be his guests again at that time, the newspaper men departed, leaving the three women parishioners sitting on a bench in the yard, wondering wether "the dark part of the eclipse was the sun or the moon and if it was what became of the earth's shadow.'

CAMP DODGE, Io., June 8.—Six Socialists from St. Paul, Minn., who refused to obey military commands were sentenced to 25 years each at hard labor at Fort Leavenworth, it was announced late today. Four of the men testified they left Sweden to escape military service.

BOY IDENTIFIES BODY OF BROTHER KILLED BY AN AUTO

Machine That Caused Death of Lucien Woolverton, 8, Had Killed Another Boy on Previous Occasion.

The body of the boy killed yesterday at 10 a. m. by an automobile driven by John Weber, a saloonkeeper at 8466 North Broadway, who drove the same car last April 6 when it killed another boy, was identified last night at 7:30 o'clock as that of Lucien Woolverton, 8 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Wolverton, 1444 Madison street.

The identification was made by Richard Woolverton, 12 years old, who burst into tears when he viewed his brother's body at the morgue. The boy's father is employed at an army aviation field near Youngstown, O.

Lucien was on his way to a lot at Broadway and Clinton street, to play ball when he was struck by the automobile. Weber said the boy ran into the path of the machine which was running about 12 miles an hour.

Mrs. Woolverton did not worry about Lucien's absence from dinner because baseball frequently made him forget to come home to eat. At 6 o'clock she sent two of her three other sons, Richard, 12, and Kenneth, 9, to search for their brother. She left Fred, 2, with a neighbor and joined in the search. Richard, being the oldest, was sent to the police station. Police officers accompanied him to the Morgue.

Weber's machine killed Richard Richards, 14 years old, of Kirkwood, at Washington avenue and Eleventh street, in his previous accident. Weber was exonerated of blame. The boy ran out from the curb as did the Woolverton boy yesterday.

Accident Verdict in Death of William Hatley.

A Coroner's jury yesterday returned a verdict of accident in the death of William Hatley, 20 years old, of 3731 North Twentieth street, who was fatally injured when his motor cycle collided with a tractor driven by William J. Hogan, 2832 Lafayette avenue, at Thirteenth street and St. Louis avenue, last Wednesday. Hatley died at the city hospital Thursday.

Testimony of two witnesses, Barbara Hartman, 12 years old, of 1912 Benton street, and George Walsh, 14, of 1306 Montgomery street, was to the effect that Hatley was driving south on Thirteenth street at a fast rate of speed and tried to avoid the collision by turning in behind the tractor, which was going east on St. Louis avenue.

HENRY ASTOR LIVED SIMPLY ON COUNTRY ESTATE

Estranged Member of Famous Family, Who Died Friday, Long Was Thought to Have Been Disinherited.

MARRIED DAUGHTER OF FATHER'S GARDENER

Grandson of Original John Jacob Astor Later Found to Have Income From Valuable New York Property.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 8.—Henry Astor, a member of the famous American family of that name, who had been living the life of a country gentleman in seclusion on his estate at West Copake, Columbia County, died last night after an illness of several weeks. He was a son of William B. Astor, but for many years had been estranged from the main branch of the family because, it is said, years ago he married the daughter of his father's gardener. His wife survives.

His mid-Victorian home at West Copake has been one of the show places of the vicinity for years, and there Mr. and Mrs. Astor have lived, surrounded by the friends Henry Astor chose at the age of 20, when he married Miss Malvina Dinehart, the child of a small farmer and gardener near the estate of William B. Astor at Red Hook, N. Y. Her father had done gardening work for the Astor family; Astor was the grandson of the original John Jacob Astor and William B. Astor's youngest son. He was born July 6, 1832.

Home Known as "The Big House"

The town of West Copake is five miles from the station of the West Copake Iron Works, and is near the Massachusetts and Connecticut lines. At this place many years ago Henry Astor bought some 200 acres, and bringing his bride, commenced the erection of his home, which has since become known as "The Big House." It was thought for years that he was a pauper, disinherited for marrying the gardener's daughter.

It was not known until July, 1917, perhaps, to those in the immediate vicinity of West Copake that Astor had been enjoying the rents from property in the heart of New York valued at many millions. The deed of trust which enabled him to command great wealth revealed his kinship to the hundreds of members of the Astor family. He was the great uncle of Vincent Astor.

When he first went to West Copake and it became known in the neighborhood that he was going to build a large home, it was thought only natural that the wealthy man would call in Metropolitan architects and builders. Instead Astor did most of the designing himself, and able-bodied men from the neighborhood helped him build. A bizarre side of his character showed up, however, when he ordered the floor of one of the rooms in the house paved with silver dollars. The coin was, of course, protected from the tread of persons passing over the floor. Finally Astor decided that the decoration was unsuitable, and had the silver taken up.

Estate Is Beautiful.

In his house he put choice furniture from all parts of the world, and the estate is generally very beautiful. Pines and hemlocks surround the house, and simple color schemes were the order in arranging the landscape. The farm is stocked with cows of the finest breed, and Astor always kept several horses. He was a parishioner of the Reformed Church of West Copake.

The trust established for Henry Astor was recommitted in 1869 to his brothers, John Jacob Astor and William Astor, and Charles F. Southmaid, who was a well-known lawyer of this city. Upon the death of these men Henry Lewis Morris, Leads Spencer Morris and Charles A. Peabody petitioned the courts for approval of their guardianship of the moneys, lands and securities as present trustees of the fund set aside by William B. Astor in 1834.

The papers filed revealed that the trust originally consisted of a one-third share in the old Astor House and 119 parcels of Manhattan real estate, among them the block bounded by Broadway, Eighth avenue, Forty-fifth and Forty-sixth streets. Many other pieces of property on the upper west side were included in a long list.

According to the trust deed Astor not only received the income from 125 parcels of productive real estate, but the power was given him to exercise his own discretion as to which of his relatives he should give it upon his death. In the more than 40 years Astor has lived in West Copake he had bought many of the neighboring farms, and did much to develop the rural community. He assisted, also many of his wife's relatives to prosperity.

Estate Gets Judgment for $49,567.

A decision for $49,57.75 was rendered by Circuit Judge Klene yesterday in favor of the estate of Mrs. Harriet G. Christopher against her son, J. Arthur Christopher of White House, Mo., treasurer of the Christopher & Simpson Iron Works Co. Christopher on the stand admitted that he owed the amount, including interest, explaining that several years ago his mother had indorsed a note at a bank for him, which was paid by sale of her collateral. He did not oppose the judgment.

Mother of Lieut. Edwards, Killed in France, Receives Letter Left to Be Sent If He Was a "Casualty"

MRS. MALINDA C. EDWARDS of Carrollton, Ill., yesterday received a letter which her son, Lieut. Adrian C. Edwards, wrote just before he went into the battle in France, in which he met his death on May 4. Lieut. Edwards was 34 years old and was a lawyer in Carrollton when he entered the Officers' Training Camp at Fort Sheridan last August. He was sent to France shortly after he received his commission and was assigned to the Eighteenth Infantry. The death of Lieut. Edwards was reported in the casualty list two weeks ago.

The letter follows:

"SOMEWHERE IN FRANCE.

"My Dear Mother:—I am about to go into battle and have instructed the company clerk to send you this letter in case I become a casualty, the receipt of this letter by you will indicate that I am either with my God or a prisoner in the hands of the enemy. Since I will never become a prisoner of the Huns, if I remain conscious and able to fight, it is doubtful if I will ever be an inmate of a German prison camp.

"So do not grieve that I am among the missing, but rather rejoice that you have given a son in sacrifice to make the greatest military caste of all times lay down the sword; to save civilization, to prevent future wars; to punish the Huns who have disregarded every law of God and mankind and whose only God is the god of war and military force, and to make the world safe for democracy. I desire that you view the matter in the light and spirit of the Spartan mothers of old who, when their sons went forth to battle for freedom and their native land, said to their sons: "Either come home proudly, bearing your shield before you, or upon it."

"War was absolutely necessary on the part of my country and although I was 34 years old and nobody expected me to go, yet, someone had to go; someone must make the sacrifice; some mother must lost her son. In the light of these facts, and knowing our Country's great need, I volunteered, and have never for one moment regretted my decision and will not, although my life and the useful career must end. Life is not the highest boon of existence; there are ideals that are superhuman, interests greater than life itself, for which it is worth while fighting, suffering and dying.

LIEUT. ADRIAN C. EDWARDS.

"If possible, after the war I would like for my remains to be brought to America and interned at White Hall. I have provided well for your support, as I have a $10,000 insurance policy with the Government and several thousand with Old Line Companies. My friend, Thompson, and Jesse have these policies and other valuable papers.

"Good-by Mother, I will see you in the next world. You may know that I died fighting for you, my country and all that life holds dear.

Your son,
ADRIAN.

DANIELS HAS NO NEWS OF U-BOAT SINKING OFF COAST

the naval authorities to arm his vessel that he might proceed again.

The Captain is said to have told naval officers that the submarine was sighted off the Virginia Capes. Before torpedoes could be dispatched with any accuracy of aim, the steamship turned towards this port, leaving the submarine behind.

American Ship Races Nearly Week to Escape U-Boats.

By the Associated Press.

AN ATLANTIC PORT, June 8.—Racing at full speed for nearly a week to escape German submarines, an American steamship arrived today from the West Indies with 59 passengers, more than half of whom were women and children.

Officers and men obtained no sleep for the last 72 hours. The wireless operator picked up an S O S call from the Harpathian.

Both crew and passengers showed the tension under which they had been. A. J. Danyon, a Philadelphia banker, and Frank P. Gilroy, a mining engineer from Denver, in relating their experiences, paid tribute to the work of officers and men and to the courage of the women passengers.

"I don't know when the captain first heard about the U-boats," said Danyon, "but we didn't hear until Wednesday night.

"That evening the women and children were holding a concert in the music room. All of the male passengers except a few who were asleep, were in the smoking room playing cards.

"Suddenly every light aboard went out. Most of us thought something had happened to the ship's dynamo, but several minutes went by and there was no improvement.

"A few of us went on deck and asked a deck hand what was the trouble.

"'I'm not sure,' he said, 'but I think it's submarines.'

"That was a jolt, but it wasn't anything like the jolt we got a few seconds later, when the captain appeared on deck.

"'Throw those cigars overboard and get inside—all of you,' he ordered, and a few minutes later rejoined.

"'I don't want to be harsh,' he said, 'but it's my duty to warn you that all of us are in deadly peril. Until further notice you must keep clear of the decks. Any passenger found on deck will be taken into custody. If you men must smoke, I'll break a ship's rule and allow you to smoke in here. And for God's sake keep your nerve.'"

Taking up the story at this point, Gilroy said the women accepted the situation splendidly.

"About twilight on Thursday," he said, "the lookout sighted smoke on the horizon. Soon a large steamer appeared in the offing. We took her for a raider and steamed as fast as we could away from her. A few backward glances, though, showed us she had made the same mistake about us, for she was rapidly fading out of sight.

"The incident raised our spirits a bit, but they sank again a little later when we passed a pile of wreckage. What there was of it was new and bright. It must have been been from a vessel recently sunk.

"Next morning we were told we were in the vicinity where the submarines were operating. The captain had not left the bridge since Wednesday night for longer than two minutes. Now he was glued to it. They deserve medals—these officers.

"We didn't sight any lifeboats, but we steered around several objects which might have been mines. At last we saw the coast looming large and closer. Nobody cheered, but I think we all knew what it was to take a good long breath."

Anchor Line Steamer Reported U-Boat Close by.

By the Associated Press.

AN ATLANTIC PORT, June 8.—A British trans-Atlantic steamer which arrived tonight reported that a wireless message had been received from an Anchor Line steamer 800 miles off the New England coast last Wednesday that a submarine was close by. The steamer at once headed at full speed for this port. Whether the Anchor Liner was attacked was not known.

Officers of the steamer reported that they were 110 miles astern of the Anchor liner when the message was picked up. For the remainder of the run extra lookouts were stationed, but saw nothing of the U-boats.

A schooner from a gulf port and a steamer from a Cuban port, which arrived at the same time, saw no submarine, although the steamer was within 25 miles of the steamer Vinland when she was sunk.

MINUTE-A-DAY PRAYER FOR SOLDIERS, ST. CHARLES PLAN

Program to Be Adopted by 11 Protestant and Catholic Churches is to Be Inaugurated Today.

The ringing of church bells in St. Charles today will inaugurate the minute-ofprayer-a-day plan for an American victory adopted by the 11 Protestant and Catholic churches. The idea was conceived by the Rev. R. W. Ely of the Jefferson Street Presbyterian Church and adopted at a meeting last night of the pastors of the various congregations.

All members of the churches are expected to set aside one minute each day to pray for the safety of the American boys at the front and for an ultimate allied victory. It is urged that the practice be continued for the duration of the war.

SKILLED MECHANICS NEEDED FOR POSITIONS IN NAVY YARDS

Skilled mechanics who wish to work in Government navy yards with Uncle Sam as their direct paymaster can do so by presenting themselves at room 300 Old Custom House building, Third and Olive streets.

Charles Hendricks, secretary of the Ninth United States Civil Service District, says the number of places now open is practically limitless and those desiring the work need not worry about the means to get it.

SWEDISH CONSUL AMONG 11 GERMANS HELD IN PORTO RICO

By the Associated Press.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, June 8.—Eleven Germans, including F. Schomberg, the Swedish Consul, and Hans Kupfer, representative of the United States Commercial Agency, were arrested on presidential warrants last night by order of Gov. Yager. Police have been stationed at the homes of enemy aliens throughout the island as a precaution against possible attacks.

ST. LOUIS WOMAN BEGINS WORK AS ARMY PHYSICIAN

Dr. Isabella Gray Arrives at Camp Grant Ready for Duty Under the Status of a First Lieutenant.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CAMP GRANT, Ill., June 8.—Dr. Isabella Gray, 5222 Delmar boulevard, St. Louis, the first woman to be accepted and assigned to the United States army with the status of an officer, arrived at Camp Grant this morning, reporting to Lieutenant-Colonel James M. Phalen, divisional surgeon for the Eighty-sixth National Army Division, located here. She has the status of a First-Lieutenant, being accorded the courtesy and privileges of an officer of that rank, although she is not as yet permitted to wear the insignia, nor received her commission.

The "Lieutenant" came here for actual service from Rochester, Minn., where she has been in training at the famous Mayo Brothers Hospital since the 22d of April, the date upon which she entered service. The Surgeon-General of the United States army issued a special order permitting the acceptance of about 20 women for certain lines of work in the medical department of the army.

"Lieut." Gray was asked by the surgeon of the army base hospital at St. Louis to enter the service as a contract surgeon.

"Of course, it means my giving up a good practice," she told correspondents this morning, "but I couldn't turn down the service, when I was really needed so I enlisted, being the first woman to do so and the first accepted for the work."

Wears Khaki "Uniform."

Her "uniform" consists of a short skirt, made of regulation khaki, a khaki colored silk shirtwaist and tie and high military shoes of the regulation tan and is supplied with a dust-colored cape similar to those worn in the aerial service and by the men of the American ambulance service in France.

The new "officer" was for 14 years a practicing physician in St. Louis, specializing in children's diseases. Her contract with the Surgeon-General, which calls for the pay of a First-Lieutenant, classifies her as an anesthetic expert.

It being understood that the plan of using women for certain work in this branch has worked out satisfactorily. Her work here will be that of administering anesthetics to soldiers upon whom it may become necessary to operate.

The contract expires and is renewable monthly.

Whether or not Dr. Gray will accompany the division when it leaves for France is not known, but it is thought possible that she may. The policy of the army in such cases has not yet been determined.

240,000 SOLDIERS SHIFTED FOR SPECIAL JOBS IN ARMY

Occupations to Be Listed for Overseas Adjustments Utilizing Training.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—The plan of placing soldiers where their occupational qualifications can be worked out to such a degree that 240,000 transfers of men from one unit to another have taken place in home camps, said an announcement today by the War Department. That the same system may be worked overseas, a general order just issued requires every enlisted man leaving this country to make out an occupational card.

$10,000 FEE IN KINSER CASE

Rudolph Laughlin Asks Court to Allow for Services.

Randolph Laughlin, an attorney, applied to Probate Judge Holtcamp yesterday for a fee of $10,000 against the $400,000 estate of Thomas W. Kinser, contractor, for legal services rendered to Kinser's widow, Jennie Ruth Kinser. The services were for defending Mrs. Kinser's right to act as administrator, which was attacked by other heirs.

The Court is expected to pass on the administratorship question, as well as the attorney fee application tomorrow. Laughlin put three attorneys on the stand—Matt G. Reynolds, Edwin W. Lee and Ford W. Thompson—who testified that the services were worth the amount of the bill.

HENRY P. AUTENRIETH DIES

Proprietor of Clayton Hotel Ill Five Months.

Henry P. Autenrieth, 52 years old, proprietor of the Autenreith Hotel, established in Clayton in 1879, died at his home in Clayton at 6:45 p. m., yesterday after an illness of more than five months.

He is survived by his wife and one daughter, Adele Autenrieth. He was the son of the late George Autenrieth who founded the hotel. The funeral will be held from the family residence Tuesday afternoon.

"SERVICE CROSS INARTISTIC"

National Sculpture Society Asks Government to Change Design.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 8.—That the distinguished service cross adopted by the War Department, is inartistic and ecclesiastical rather than military in form, was claimed tonight by the National Sculpture Society, which asked the Government to recall the design, together with a shipment of the decorations sent to France for American soldiers.

"Peaches" Not Wanted as Red Cross

Few Applicants Successful in Passing Tests

Stenographers for Duty in France

Marguerite Martyn Tells How Examination Is Conducted—Many Rejected Because They Have Relatives in Service.

KAJIWARA PORTRAIT.

MRS. RUBY LESTER FLEMING ....

Examining Applicants for Red Cross Stenographers.

By MARGUERITE MARTYN.

"Peaches" are not wanted as Red Cross stenographers in France. This fact was borne in upon me at the examination conducted by Mrs. Ruby Lester Fleming, passing upon the personnel of a staff of stenographers for service at the Red Cross offices in Paris.

She is receiving applications at Red Cross headquarters, Railway Exchange Building. Monday evening she will make an address at the Town Club, Century Building, to which all women interested are invited.

Most of the applicants while I was present were of that familiar type, some of the uniform characteristics of which were very short skirts, very high heels, very sheer stockings, very thin blouses, very coquetish hats and in almost every case jewelry the insignia of some branch of the military. Not all were young, but not only the slightly faded ones were indulgers in the artifices or rouge and peroxide that are intended to produce the semblance of youth. All who were examined while I was present were turned down, although I was told that some five or six applicants here had proven eligible. Aud Mrs. Fleming praised highly the work of Misses Gertrude Chapman and Martha Finnell of St. Louis, who already are serving in the Paris offices.

Three whose applications are said to have progressed beyond the first stage are two young women who have conducted offices of their own, and a woman lawyer. I encountered the lawyer in the ante-room and she remarked to me: "I am willing to do anything, but I do hope they won't ask me to do filing. Doubtless out of patrotism she will overcome this aversion with all others and the Red Cross will gain one of the high type of women it seeks.

Lame Girl Applies.

One whose replies seemed wholly to satisfy the interrogator was a little girl with a lame ankle. She was able to show where she had passed the examination for the navy with highest grades until it came to the physical tests, and her patriotism was attested by records as officer in Red Cross and Liberty Bond campaigns. But this branch of service will involve a severe physical test also.

Mrs. Fleming told me one glance at a candidate usually was sufficient to satisfy her. A suspicion of rouge is an immediate demerit mark and there are other disqualifications to be detected on the surface. Two girls came in with arms linked, wishing to be examined together. This being forbidden both wanted to know if there would be any objection to two chums going together at least as far as Paris, and through the danger zones. Another girl with touched up eyebrows and lips, a skirt about 15 inches off the floor, and a hat that never could be packed in a steamer trunk, said she had two brothers in military service in this country and she knew about the rule against relatives of soldiers going over, but she thought as the Red Cross was so hard up for stenographers a regulation or two might be overruled if the matter were presented to Uncle Sam. Any way, she couldn't understand how he accounted for taking two brothers if there was a rule against relatives going.

Mrs. Fleming's own personality as an index to the requirements ought to have been discouraging to the ineligible type of stenographer who is applying. In appearance and manner she is crisp, business-like and efficient. She can well afford to be scornful of the too obvious aids to beauty. Her complexion is clear, smooth olive, her hair waves naturally back from her forehead brow; even eyeglasses pinching her nose do not destroy its exquisite modeling. A well-tailored official Red Cross uniform with its insignia of staff officer and service stripe, worn over a khaki colored silk shirtwaist, wtih snug collar and cravat, sets off to advantage a softly rounded figure.

Yet all the girls were persistent in presenting their claims. Though the job left to Mrs. Fleming is judging by personal contact and she says one glance is usually enough for her, each applicant received a patient examination, until some qualification named on the official enrollment blank was found wanting.

Many With Relatives.

The more unpromising material invariably took more time than the obviously available ones. Usually the young woman was found to have a male relative in service or liable military duty. Very few women of the right age for service have not a male relative of their own generation, and when a really available candidate presents herself this must prove an inconvenient order. There is a movement on foot to have it rescinded or modified. But until this is done it is a welcome refuge for a woman sizing up the personality of other women whom she would bar on no more tangible grounds than intuitive knoweldge of her own sex. When she beheld the military insignia pinning the low collars of most of the girls, I wonder if Mrs. Fleming did not wish the order might be made more inclusive, and the query, "Have you a sweetheart in service?" required.

Those who were not selected may console themselves with their vanity left intact. Those who were may suffer an affront to their personal vanity, but the world in general, when Mrs. Fleming's requirements are stated, may feel encouraged about the outlook for the appreciation of real worth and efficiency of women in industry.

"We want mature women, preferably between 30 and 40 years old," she said. "And there are other restrictions that we have to make. The first requirement, perhaps, is, manifestly, loyalty, patriotism and sincerity of purpose. The reaction to the never-ending strain is apt to be severe. We must be sure of our staff, mentally, physically and temperamentally.

During the bombardment of Paris by the long-range guns we were under fire. It may seem less spectacular to say that you stuck to your typewriter than that you stuck to your ambulances filled with wounded, under fire, but I assure you it requires the same cool nerves and head. I am glad to report not one of our staff faltered in her work, and that is the kind of material I am looking for to augment our forces.

"Physical and professional examination as to stenographic ability are not enough. It is essential that every woman who goes over shall have the idea of service steadfastly before her, a spirit that will remain unbroken in the face of monotonous drudgery, discomfort and tribulation. Even a woman who is accustomed to high-class executive work must go with a willingness to do the most rudimentary tasks of clerkship if assigned to it.

Having passed this first examination there are many other severe exactions before she obtains a passport. The vise of the French Consul is necessary. France is suspicious of a German name and you cannot reason with a country whose heart has been so torn.

Pledged to Stay a Year.

"The successful candidate goes straight to Paris pledged to remain a year. There in the Red Cross offices she will take both civil and military dictations. A great part of the work is supplying information to the families of soldiers named on the causalty lists. Thousands and thousands of inquiries by cable and mail must be attended to and letters written that will relieve the anxiety and suffering of relatives, supplementing the official information. All the information gathered through the large corps of searchers in the hospitals and on the field are communicated through these stenographers.

"The workers are self-responsible. They live as they choose in Paris. They are paid what they seem to require for their expenses and it is figured that it costs an American at least $120 a month to live in Paris."

As a product of conditions that have called women to executive positions formerly so largely monopolised by men, Mrs. Fleming and her methods are a manifestation of the kind of victory for women in industry that is coming out of this war. She responded to the call of patriotism while occupying a high-salaried secretarial position, such as are rare among women even in New York. She was sent back from Paris to recruit additions to the staff of stenographers. In her present undertaking it is very plainly to be seen she is not recruiting a makeshift regiment so much as she is weeding out and selecting from unlimited material offered the highest type of women in industry. The staff she selects is certain to help raise the standard in this branch of work.

SALOONS AND BREWERIES PATRIOTIC, LEWIS SAYS

Excise Commissioner Cites Bond Purchases of $3,103,380 by Producers and $1,200,070 by Saloon Keepers.

Edward S. Lewis, who announced that he will remain as Excise Commissioner during his candidacy for the office of Collector of the Revenue, gave out a tabular statement yesterday to show that breweries and saloon keepers in St. Louis have been large purchasers of Liberty Bonds.

The total amount of bonds for which the eight principal breweries and their employes have subscribed, according to Lewis' statistics, was $3,103,380. The employes are credited with having purchased $567,080 worth of bonds.

Nineteen hundred and ten saloon keepers bought a total of $1,200,070 worth of bonds, Lewis said. Their record was 100 per cent, he explained. Four saloon keepers who failed to report purchases of bonds when requested by Lewis to do so, were subsequently found to have been purchasers. The Independent Breweries Co. bought $1,360,400 and the Anheuser-Busch Brewing Association $1,000,000 worth of bonds, according to Lewis.

TAKES POISON WHEN HER HUSBAND JOINS ENGINEERS

Mrs. Millie Wawers, 19, Despondent Over Enlistment—Dies on Way to Hospital.

Despondency over the enlistment Tuesday of her husband in an engineering regiment caused Mrs. Millie Wawers, 19 years old, to drink poison at the home of her father-in-law, Otto Wawers, 5506 Vermont avenue, yesterday at 5:20 p. m. in the presence of her husband, Ray E. Wawers, a chauffeur for the Laclede Gas Light Co. She died on the way to the City Hospital. She attempted to end her life with poison a month ago when her husband talked of enlisting.

When John Capdeville came from work to his home at 757 South Third street, yesterday at 5:35 p. m., he found his wife, Anna, 64 years old, unconscious on a bed from poison. An empty bottle was near the bed. She was revived at the ctiy hospital.

CHAMINADE STATUE IS TO BE UNVEILED AT CLAYTON TODAY

Ceremonial Honoring Founder of Brothers of Mary to End Centennial Celebration.

A life-size statute of the Very Rev. William Joseph Chaminade, founder of the Brothers of Mary, will be unveiled this afternoon at Chaminade College, Clayton. The Very Rev. Dr. Ryan, president of Kenrick Seminary, will deliver the address. A number of clergymen and members of the Knights of Columbus will assist in the ceremony.

In October the society celebrated the 100th anniversary of its foundation and it was planned to have the statue, but transportation difficulties time, but transportation difficulties delayed its shipment from Italy.

EAST SIDE TRACTION FARE PETITION TO BE HEARD JUNE 18

If Right to Increase Passenger Rates Is Granted They Will Go Into Effect July 26.

The petition of the Alton, Granite City & St. Louis Traction Co., asking for an increase of two cents in the city fares of Alton, Venice and Brooklyn; a charge of one cent for transfers, and an increase of 10 cents a round trip in the fare from St. Louis to Alton, filed before the Illinois Public Utilities Commission on June 1, will be heard on June 18, according to word received yesterday by General Manager T. W. Gregory.

If passed upon favorably, the new rates will go into effect July 26. The reasons given for the proposed rates are the increased cost of labor, power and other expenses.

TROOPS GIVE EXHIBITION DRILL

Nearly 600 negro soldiers, under command of white officers, left their train at Union Station yesterday morning and, marching east on Clark avenue to the south side of the city hall, drilled before a large crowd of city employes and neighborhood workers who quickly gathered.

There were seven companies of 78 men each and 55 unattached, all members of the Quartermaster's Corps. The men were in excellent physical condition and drilled splendidly, bringing forth much favorable comment. The troops were passing through St. Louis.

PARADE BY RELATIVES OF ST. LOUISANS IN FRANCE

Celebration Wednesday Evening Will Be to Stimulate Greater Activity in War Work.

Mothers, wives and sisters of soldiers will parade Wednesday evening in an effort to arouse the women of the city to greater activity in work for the St. Louis men now in France. Following the parade the women will hold a public mass meeting at Central High School.

The parade and meeting will be under the auspices of the Relatives' Auxiliary of the St. Louis National Guard, and about 400 women, members of the organization, will be in line. A military escort and band will head the column, with a division composed of mothers having more than one son in the service in the place of honor. The line will march from the armory, Grand avenue and Market street, to Central High School. A detachment of the First Regiment, Home Guards, will be the escort of honor.

Speakers at the meeting will be Charles M. Hay, former Judge Charles Claflin Allen and James R. Dunn. A program of vocal and instrumental music will be given.

D. A. R. to Hear Commander Shane.

A joint meeting of St. Louis and St. Louis County chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution will take place on Flag day, next Friday, at 2:30 p. m., at the home of the vice president general from Missouri, Mrs. S. M. Green, 3815 Magnolia avenue. Mrs. John Trigg Miss, State regent, will speak for the work of the State. G. M. Phillips will deliver a patriotic address, and Commander Louis Shane, who was in command of the collier Neptune at the opening of the war, will recount his experiences.

William Streitz Is Arrested After Accident at Maple and Clara Avenues.

A woman was seriously injured and two men and a woman slightly hurt when an automobile truck collided with a Ford touring car at Maple and Clara avenues at 7:20 o'clock last evening. The injured are Mrs. William Gray, 38 years old, 1331 Clara avenue, spine hurt; Mrs. J. K. Smith, 76, Vandalia, Ill., shock, and E. S. Murdock, 1389 Temple street, cut by glass, all three occupants of the touring car, and William Streitz, 2440 Cherokee street, driver of the truck, cut by glass.

A. B. Wilder of 5702 Maple avenue, whose machine was close behind Murdock's, turned into the curb and hit a tree in avoiding the colliding machines. Streitz was arrested and taken to the Page Boulevard Police Station. Witnesses said he was driving fast.

FIVE DIE OF WHOOPING COUGH

Week's Mortality List Shows Disease Still Epidemic.

Births in St. Louis last week were 273, exceeding by 107 the total mortality for the same period. Five deaths from whooping cough, which continues epidemic, were reported. Eighteen persons died of pneumonia, which was charged with a larger share in the mortality than any other single disease except nephritis and heart trouble. There were four suicides and one homicide in the seven days.

"ENDOW EVERY CHILD" IS PHYSICIAN'S PRESCRIPTION FOR FUTURE OF AMERICA

Dr. Henry D. Chapin, Authority on Children's Diseases, Would Make Society Responsible for the Welfare of All Children.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 8.—Henry Dwight Chapin, M. D., professor of diseases of children at the New York post-graduate school and hospital, in an interview with the New York World discusses the problem of conserving the children of the nation in war time, and advances the novel idea that every child, rich or poor, should be endowed and society made responsibel for the welfare of all children.

Dr. Chapin, who is widely known through the many books he has written on the care and treatment of children, believes that this is the most important problem facing the United States today and that no matter how victorious our troops are, if the children are sacrificed, the nation will die.

Society must assume collective responsibility for the support of every child, Dr. Chapin points out, and the endowment of every child is the best way to discharge this duty. While such a plan would meet with instant objection, Dr. Chapin thinks that it will prove successful where many other schemes have failed.

"I know one father of 10," he went on, "who has a very small income. Those ten children are all capable of becoming good, stalwart Americans if they are not destroyed by poverty. They have a good father and mother, who would be almost ideal parents if it were not for the hardness developed by overwork and want. But the minute I suggest solving the problem for them the man in your position is afraid that Tony's character is going to be undermined. Pardon me if I suggest that the collective handling of this problem would increase rather than diminish individual responsibility. As a matter of fact, piling more responsibilities on one man's shoulders than he is able to bear creates discouragement and discouragement ends in running way from all responsibility. If we expect our soldiers to do their full duty we must see to it that they are fully equipped. We must not expect them to face the enemy's cannon with bare fists. If we should habitually compel them to do that, the greatest heroes in the world would soon learn to run away. And yet we expect Tony to present society with 10 first-class citizens without financial equipment enough to bring them up on. What I suggest is merely a universal child insurance. Not merely insuring parents against funeral expenses, but actually assuring the child's life and health and happiness. And I would increase everybody's responsibility to bring about that much-desired end.

"Surely Tony should be made to work. But so should everybody, whether he has children or not. And from the wealth thus created the nation would not find it difficult to provide adequately for all children."

"There would be no limit to the size of families," I suggested. "If there were no personal responsibility to pay for their support."

"There is no limit to the size of families today," he answered, "among the very poorest of our population; no limit except the limit of human endurance. Undoubtedly some of our middle-class people, with good homes, but uncertain finances, would have larger families than they have today, but I cannot see any disaster to society in that."

"But," I protested again, "would not thousands of young couples rush into hasty marriages knowing that the cost of bearing and rearing children would be assumed by Uncle Sam?"

"I should hope so," the Doctor answered. "I should hope that marriages would be about eight or 10 years more hasty than they are today. Physically and psychologically early marriages are the best. Normally people should mate before they become too set in their ways and too incapable of adjusting themselves to each other. And there is nothing that threatens the social health any more than this condition which makes early marriages almost impossible. For 10 years after they should be happily mated our young men are left to sow their wild oats—because they think they can't afford to get married. It shouldn't cost anything to get married. If the choice must be made, the tax should lie heaviest upon those who don't. They should at least be made to pay for their freedom by contributing an equal share to the support of our children."

"But would not some women have children without marrying?" I asked, "if the problem of economics were solved for them? Wouldn't there be an increase in illegitimacy?"

"Not if I had my way," he answered. "If I had my way there wouldn't be any illegitimate children. I would make them all legitimate, no matter who brings them forth."

Says Bad Women Are Not Mothers.

"Utterly bad women," he said "do not become mothers, though it is quite possible for us to make them bad afterward by denying their children a right to live. The women of the streets do not have children; either they use illegal preventives or they are kept from motherhood by the diseases of their calling. I have found in my own observation that the unmarried mother is usually the victim of unresrtained love. The illegitimate child may be and often is a better endowed child, physically, mentally and spiritually, than the average legitimate child. That is because the love that brought him into being was so spontaneous, so deep, so intense that it broke strictions, even the restrictions of respectability and morality."

"And you would make all such children legitimate?"

"Why not?" the doctor asked in reply. "Obviously, if a sin has been committed, the child is not responsible. But more to the point in this discussion, the nation cannot afford to wreck these young lives, either through poverty or disgrace or by turning them over to the mechanical charity of institutions."

"And you would have society as a whole endow all such children, providing its mother or legal guardian with sufficient funds to insure its ample support throughout childhood?"

"I would have society at large endow ALL children," the doctor amended—"children of the poor and children of the rich; children of the married and children of the unmarried. If we attempt to discriminate against the rich in such a matter, it only ends in discriminating against the poor.

"If, for instance, our schools were made free to the poverty-stricken, while the children of the well-to-do were compelled to pay tuition, many of the very poor would take their children out of school rather than admit their poverty and accept the charity. Suppose our parks were free only to those who could prove absolute poverty, how many children of the poor would enter them? The great majority, I believe, would not.

"As to the expense, it has been pretty well proved that it is cheaper for society to keep a child in school than to let him run at large. It is cheaper to keep children in the park and playgrounds than it is to keep them on the streets. It is cheaper to produce good citizens than to produce criminals. It is cheaper to keep children well fed, happy and brimful of health than to let them get sick and miserable and sore at the world they live in. The whole trouble is that, although it is cheaper in the long run, so many parents either lack the capital or the natural ability to keep them thus. Society then has to pay the bill.

TWO CONTESTS TO ADD COLOR TO COUNTY PRIMARIES

Fight Is Being Made on Mooney, Democratic Chairman, and Ralph, Republican, Now Prosecuting Attorney.

All the candidates for nomination for office in St. Louis County having filed for the August primary, politicians are predicting one of the warmest fights for several years, the two principal features of which are a fight on John E. Mooney, Chairman of the Democratic Central Committee, and the contest between Prosecuting Attorney Ralph and Julius R. Nolte for the Republican nomination for Prosecuting Attorney. Ralph has the support of Fred Essen, Republican leader.

The fight on Mooney is said by his friends to be the result of an accident. It is led by Roy Schooley, the unopposed Democratic candidate for nomination as Prosecuting Attorney, and dates from the Democratic convention held three weeks ago. Schooley had already filed, but was not mentioned by Chairman Mooney in calling for nominations, and the convention's support was pledged to D. C. Taylor, who later withdrew. Mooney's friends say the chairman inadvertantly overlooked Schooley.

"Anti-Essen" Platform.

Schooley's supporters, however, declare that Mooney deliberately "road-rolled" him, and have carried their fight to the point of opposing Mooney for membership on the committee from his own township. Opposition candidates to the Mooney committeemen have been named in every township.

Nolte is making a strictly anti-Essen compaign against Ralph, who is regarded as strong. Nolte is a former Assistant Prosecuting Attorney and was defeated by Ralph for the nomination four years ago.

One of the latest to file was W. W. Henderson, former Probate Judge of St. Louis, and son of James A. Henderson, the first Probate Judge of St. Louis. Henderson seeks the Republican nomination for Representative from the First District, and has no opposition.

A. H. Werremeyer, who became known a few years ago as "the poetic marrying Justice," has re-entered the political arena, and is one of seven candiates seeking nomination for Justice in Central Township. Two are to be nominated. The positions are considered "plums" because the two sit at Clayton, and are recipients of many marriage fees.

Few Democratic Candidates.

While Republicans have filed for every office on the ticket, there are Democratic candidates for comparatively few. There is a normal Republican plurality of 5000 in the county. However, Democratic leaders have declared that a full ticket will be placed in the field before the November election.

The following candidates for nominations have filed:

Republican.

Probate Judge—Sam D. Hodgdon.

Prosecuting Attorney—Richard F. Ralph, Julius R. Nolte.

TWO PROPOSALS IN SENATE TO APPLY DRAFT TO MEN 18 TO 45

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—Amendments to extend the army draft law to all men between the ages of 18 and 45 were offered by Senators Cummins of Iowa and France of Maryland yesterday when the Senate Military Committee began consideration of the $12,000,000,000 army appropriation bill passed by the House.

The committee decided to hold hearings on the bill and Secretary Baker will appear next Monday.

How Soon Will Premiums Be Paid for Super-Sixes?

Soon, It Seems, People Will Pay Extra Prices to Get the Car of Their Choice

It is not a new condition for people to pay premiums for prompt deliveries of Hudsons.

There have been many times when that situation has obtained.

It bids fair to be repeated again—soon.

This time the reason lies in the growing demand for cars of proved quality.

That demand grows.

More and more people can buy cars than ever before could afford them. But the supply grows less. Realizing the situation, still other thousands desire to get rid of the cars they now own that they may get new proved reliable cars that may be relied upon to serve them through the uncertain times ahead.

They know the growing difficulty of getting efficient automobile repair service. Consequently, they will not hazard their motor car needs by retaining a car that is dependent upon constant mechanical supervision.

So they, too, turn to the Super-Six.

They, having owned and used motor cars for several years, know what the Super-Six may be relied upon to do.

They watched the way it made its reputation on the speedway, in road races, in a double transcontinental race against time and in the most famous hill climb to the highest altitude to which a motor car was ever driven against time. They know the Super-Six defeated all contenders. And they further know how it has served others who have put it to the most severe tests.

That is why they have chosen the Super-Six.

It is the reason, also, why you, too, can rely upon it.

Strange and wonderful as is the performance record of the Super-Six, still all that has been said for it never seems able to match the final performance of the car. Ask anyone of 50,000 owners.

Does not this indicate the early date when premiums will be freely paid to obtain Super-Sixes?

We can see the inevitable situation. This is to warn you.

We are not getting, and will not get, all the cars for which we see a normal demand. Our allotments have been reduced twice since January.

Production cannot be increased, but demand shows how much motorists desire the Super-Six.

It is a case of the early bird if you will want a Super-Six this year.

The First Infantry Guns Weighed 75 Pounds

FOOT soldiers began to carry firearms about 1350; huge, clumsy guns weighing from 25 to 75 pounds.

Little more than hand cannon, iron or copper tubes, they were leveled by a forked support, and fired at a touch hole.

With the invention of the wheel-lock arquebus in 1517, the first self-firing gun, the musket of the army of Charles V of Spain was a quick step, and the smooth bore musket remained the standard infantry arm till 1850, five years before the American army adopted the rifle.

Like the first guns, automobile tires, when Goodrich began to develop them, were crude, clumsy affairs, and it's a long, long road of improvement to the symmetrical—

"And you would have society as a whole endow all such children, providing its mother or legal guardian with sufficient funds to insure its ample support throughout childhood?"

"I would have society at large endow ALL children," the doctor amended—"children of the poor and children of the rich; children of the married and children of the unmarried. If we attempt to discriminate against the rich in such a matter, it only ends in discriminating against the poor.

"If, for instance, our schools were made free to the poverty-stricken, while the children of the well-to-do were compelled to pay tuition, many of the very poor would take their children out of school rather than admit their poverty and accept the charity. Suppose our parks were free only to those who could prove absolute poverty, how many children of the poor would enter them? The great majority, I believe, would not.

"As to the expense, it has been pretty well proved that it is cheaper for society to keep a child in school than to let him run at large. It is cheaper to keep children in the park and playgrounds than it is to keep them on the streets. It is cheaper to produce good citizens than to produce criminals. It is cheaper to keep children well fed, happy and brimful of health than to let them get sick and miserable and sore at the world they live in. The whole trouble is that, although it is cheaper in the long run, so many parents either lack the capital or the natural ability to keep them thus. Society then has to pay the bill.

TWO CONTESTS TO ADD COLOR TO COUNTY PRIMARIES

Fight Is Being Made on Mooney, Democratic Chairman, and Ralph, Republican, Now Prosecuting Attorney.

All the candidates for nomination for office in St. Louis County having filed for the August primary, politicians are predicting one of the warmest fights for several years, the two principal features of which are a fight on John E. Mooney, Chairman of the Democratic Central Committee, and the contest between Prosecuting Attorney Ralph and Julius R. Nolte for the Republican nomination for Prosecuting Attorney. Ralph has the support of Fred Essen, Republican leader.

The fight on Mooney is said by his friends to be the result of an accident. It is led by Roy Schooley, the unopposed Democratic candidate for nomination as Prosecuting Attorney, and dates from the Democratic convention held three weeks ago. Schooley had already filed, but was not mentioned by Chairman Mooney in calling for nominations, and the convention's support was pledged to D. C. Taylor, who later withdrew. Mooney's friends say the chairman inadvertantly overlooked Schooley.

"Anti-Essen" Platform.

Schooley's supporters, however, declare that Mooney deliberately "road-rolled" him, and have carried their fight to the point of opposing Mooney for membership on the committee from his own township. Opposition candidates to the Mooney committeemen have been named in every township.

Nolte is making a strictly anti-Essen compaign against Ralph, who is regarded as strong. Nolte is a former Assistant Prosecuting Attorney and was defeated by Ralph for the nomination four years ago.

One of the latest to file was W. W. Henderson, former Probate Judge of St. Louis, and son of James A. Henderson, the first Probate Judge of St. Louis. Henderson seeks the Republican nomination for Representative from the First District, and has no opposition.

A. H. Werremeyer, who became known a few years ago as "the poetic marrying Justice," has re-entered the political arena, and is one of seven candiates seeking nomination for Justice in Central Township. Two are to be nominated. The positions are considered "plums" because the two sit at Clayton, and are recipients of many marriage fees.

Few Democratic Candidates.

While Republicans have filed for every office on the ticket, there are Democratic candidates for comparatively few. There is a normal Republican plurality of 5000 in the county. However, Democratic leaders have declared that a full ticket will be placed in the field before the November election.

The following candidates for nominations have filed:

Republican.

Probate Judge—Sam D. Hodgdon.

Prosecuting Attorney—Richard F. Ralph, Julius R. Nolte.

TWO PROPOSALS IN SENATE TO APPLY DRAFT TO MEN 18 TO 45

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—Amendments to extend the army draft law to all men between the ages of 18 and 45 were offered by Senators Cummins of Iowa and France of Maryland yesterday when the Senate Military Committee began consideration of the $12,000,000,000 army appropriation bill passed by the House.

The committee decided to hold hearings on the bill and Secretary Baker will appear next Monday.

THE CRIME OF THE AGE

Is the selling of Spectacles and Eyeglasses by incompetent opticians who call themselves doctors and others. None of these men are physicians. Ask them for their license to practice medicine in Missouri.

NOTHING IS MORE PRECIOUS THAN EYESIGHT

I AM a physician, oculist and optician and have practiced for many years in St. Louis; that I have been successful is attested by more than 50,000 unsolicited references. If your eyes are diseased I will care for them, and should glasses be needed, I will prescribe and make them correctly, and the total cost for treatment and glasses will not exceed the price of a pair of glasses that may do irreparable injury to your eyes. SATISFACTION GUARANTEED. I am both the oculist and optician.

How Soon Will Premiums Be Paid for Super-Sixes?

Soon, It Seems, People Will Pay Extra Prices to Get the Car of Their Choice

It is not a new condition for people to pay premiums for prompt deliveries of Hudsons.

There have been many times when that situation has obtained.

It bids fair to be repeated again—soon.

This time the reason lies in the growing demand for cars of proved quality.

That demand grows.

More and more people can buy cars than ever before could afford them. But the supply grows less. Realizing the situation, still other thousands desire to get rid of the cars they now own that they may get new proved reliable cars that may be relied upon to serve them through the uncertain times ahead.

They know the growing difficulty of getting efficient automobile repair service. Consequently, they will not hazard their motor car needs by retaining a car that is dependent upon constant mechanical supervision.

So they, too, turn to the Super-Six.

They, having owned and used motor cars for several years, know what the Super-Six may be relied upon to do.

They watched the way it made its reputation on the speedway, in road races, in a double transcontinental race against time and in the most famous hill climb to the highest altitude to which a motor car was ever driven against time. They know the Super-Six defeated all contenders. And they further know how it has served others who have put it to the most severe tests.

That is why they have chosen the Super-Six.

It is the reason, also, why you, too, can rely upon it.

Strange and wonderful as is the performance record of the Super-Six, still all that has been said for it never seems able to match the final performance of the car. Ask anyone of 50,000 owners.

Does not this indicate the early date when premiums will be freely paid to obtain Super-Sixes?

We can see the inevitable situation. This is to warn you.

We are not getting, and will not get, all the cars for which we see a normal demand. Our allotments have been reduced twice since January.

Production cannot be increased, but demand shows how much motorists desire the Super-Six.

It is a case of the early bird if you will want a Super-Six this year.

The First Infantry Guns Weighed 75 Pounds

FOOT soldiers began to carry firearms about 1350; huge, clumsy guns weighing from 25 to 75 pounds.

Little more than hand cannon, iron or copper tubes, they were leveled by a forked support, and fired at a touch hole.

With the invention of the wheel-lock arquebus in 1517, the first self-firing gun, the musket of the army of Charles V of Spain was a quick step, and the smooth bore musket remained the standard infantry arm till 1850, five years before the American army adopted the rifle.

Like the first guns, automobile tires, when Goodrich began to develop them, were crude, clumsy affairs, and it's a long, long road of improvement to the symmetrical—

SUIT TO FORFEIT GERMAN-AMERICAN ALLIANCE CHARTER

Circuit Attorney Says He Will Bring Action to Force Legal Dissolution of the Organization.

MEETINGS RECENTLY WERE SUSPENDED

Attorney Complained That Alliance in Hanging on to Charter Did Not Show 100 Per Cent Loyalty.

Circuit Attorney McDaniel told a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday that he would bring quo warranto proceedings to compel the German-American Alliance of St. Louis to forfeit its charter. His determination to act followed his receipt of a letter &from Douglas W. Robert, an attorney, calling attention to the fact that the Alliance, though suspending its meetings, was hanging onto its charter, a procedure he labeled as "certainly not one of 100 per cent loyalty."

The State and city organizations of the German-American Alliance exist by virtue of a State charter issued by Judge Hitchcock of the St. Louis Circuit Court of Appeals April 15, 1914. At the same time articles of incorporation were filed with the Secretary of State at Jefferson City.

Robert's letter to McDaniel follows:

"I beg leave to call your attention to the status of the German-American Alliance of this city. That is a corporation organized under the laws of Missouri.

"When the recent agitation for the dissolution of this corporation was started the president made a statement to the effect that he favored the Alliance ceasing its activities during the war. Subsequent to this a secret meeting of the Alliance was had and that suggestion put into effect.

"The result is that the body is maintaining its corporate existence, and without doubt at a favorable moment will resume its activities, having preserved its charter.

I, therefore, suggest that steps should be taken to have a legal dissolution of this corporation, so that the members may not resume their activities whenever they see fit. The plan of remaining quiescent, but holding onto the charter, is certainly not one of 100 per cent loyalty."

McDaniel said he had no comment to make except that such a condition should not exist and he would proceed accordingly.

545 NAVY RECRUITS IN WEEK ESTABLISHES NEW RECORD HERE

Officer in Charge Expects Enlistments to Put This District in Lead by July 1.

The Navy Recruiting Station at Seventh and Chestnut streets enlisted 59 men yesterday, bringing the total for the week up to 545, a new high week's record for 1918. Monday and Tuesday the local office broke the daily records for any week in St. Louis.

Lieut. F. M. Willson, in charge of recruiting, said he considered that St. Louis and Missouri would come to the front before July 1 and put this district unquestionably in the lead in regard to navy enlistments.

"We have held second place in enlistments for three consecutive weeks," he said, "but we want to do better. It is up to St. Louis and Missouri men to heed the call of the navy and put us first."

The Lieutenant had little to say concerning the news dispatches from Washington which said Provost Marshal-General Crowder had forbidden any of the June 5 registrants to enlist in a volunteer branch of the service.

"Until this office receives orders to discontinue enlistment of these registrants we shall continue to take them without releases up to the time they are classified," he said. "Of course, after a man is classified it will be necessary for him to obtain a release."

PAGEANT TO COMMEMORATE EVANGELICAL WORK IN INDIA

Play, Services and Address on Eden Campus to Mark Fiftieth Anniversary.

The Evangelical churches will give a pageant and missionary play on the campus of Eden Seminary, on the St. Charles Rock road, next Saturday and Sunday, in honor of the fiftieth anniversary of the establishment of the Evangelical Synod's work in India.

The pageant, which will begin at 3 p. m., will depict life in India—in the home, the school, the market place—showing the natives grinding their flour, preparing their meals, paying tribute to the village owner, worshiping the holy men and celebrating the customary child marriage. The work of the missionaries among them will be interwoven with these native scenes. At 7:45 there will be a brief twilight song service, after which the missionary play "Larola," will be presented, showing the difficulties and trials of a native of the higher castes who embraces Christianity.

The Rev. W. H. Schlinkmann of the Second English Church, will review the history of the 50 years' work. The play is in the hands of the young people of Zion Church, while those of the other churches will participate in the pageant.

Care for Deaf Soldiers.

The task of caring for Americans who come back from the war suffering from deafness through shell shock and the detonations of big guns will be one of the chief topics of discussion of the first national convention of the Society of Progressive Oral Advocates, which will be held in St. Louis June 17-19. The society advocates lip reading as a means of the deaf "hearing." The convention meeting will be held at 818 South King's highway.

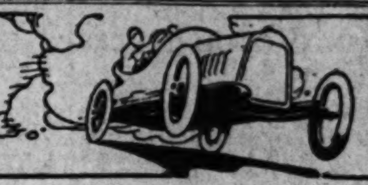
AUTOMOBILE NEWS



TRUTH ABOUT CAR AND GASOLINE SHORTAGE

"A lot of rumor mongers who want us to believe that the automobile industry will have to shut up shop by Government order because of the big ship program and the demand for steel, must have received a severe shock when they read Charles M. Schwab's statement the other day," says J. D. Perry Lewis of the Lewis Automobile Co., local Chandler Six distributer.

"The Director General of our emergency fleet corporation in announcing a 60 per cent increase in his ship plans said, 'I do not contemplate any trouble in obtaining the necessary steel. I believe that production will increase to meet the demand. The two disturbing questions are those of fuel and transportation. Here, however, we are meeting with hearty co-operation, and I think these questions will be met and satisfactorily answered.'

"Those irresponsible individuals," Mr. Lewis continued, "who were spreading reports from 'unquestioned authorities' even before the big increase in ship building was planned, said that the steel, fuel and transportation situation would not permit the completion of the ambitious ship building program and at the same time take care of the needs of the big boss with the encouraging information that he does not anticipate trouble in going ahead with a much bigger plan because of the ability of the steel and coal industries to increase their outputs and the ability of the railroads to transport materials.

"Undoubtedly the automobile industry will voluntarily curtail its output 50 per cent for the coming year. No excessive demands will be made by the Government. Washington realizes it needs other industries besides the war industry. So let's just overlook rumors in the future and wait for official statements from men like Mr. Schwab.

"One also hears these days much talk about the gasoline situation. Here are the latest figures from Washington, so please stop worrying:

"During 1917 there was a 32 per cent increase in the production of gasoline or nearly 2,000,000 gallons per day more than in the calendar year of 1916, according to the latest figures of the Bureau of Mines. The daily increase in gallons over 1916 was 1,853,306.

"That the increase in production is steadily gaining, and has been gaining during 1917, is indicated by the fact that the production of gasoline during the last six months of the year was much greater than during the first six months.

"The gasoline production for the entire 1917 year was 2,729,712,033 gallons. On a basis of 365 working days, this represents a daily production of 7,478,630 gallons. In 1916 the daily production was 5,625,357 gallons. The total increase in gasoline products in 1917 as compared with 1916 is over 2,000,000,000, the exact figures being 2,058,880,596 gallons. It is said that the Government's requirements are only about one-seventh of the country's production."

BIG ACCESSORY MEETING.

Elaborate preparations are being made by the directors of the Motor Accessory Trade Asociation for the annual meeting at the American Annex Tuesday night, June 18. This is to be "Ladies' Night," the first in the history of the association. Officers will be installed and there will be several speakers, one of them a woman, after which there will be a playlet and dancing.

NATIONAL MOVE FOR INSPECTION OF BRAKES

"Pick up," "get-away," "dash," are the most familiar terms to the everyday motorist or truck driver, according to John J. Younger, supervisor of engineering, Motor Transport Division, War Department. With the demands of modern daily life, motorists have been giving their entire attention to speed with no thought of how quickly a stop can be made.

It is time you put on the brakes, says Mr. Younger. The national brake inspection movement, which has the indorsement of leading automobilists, police officials and Government experts, will accomplish much good if it does nothing more than call the attention of motorists to the necessity of a regular inspection of their brakes.

In fast rail traffic, both with steam railroads and electric trains, the first requisite, says Mr. Younger, is the rapidity with which the engine can stop. This point is exemplified by the exactness with which the New York City subway trains come to a dead stop. The engineers in charge of these trains, know to the fraction of a foot where they must apply their brakes.

The national brake inspection movement also is emphasizing the importance of good brake lining. The Government realizes the importance of such a brake lining, since it is used on many of the American cars now going to France.

Experts say that a woman driver should be able ot apply the brakes on the car she is driving as affectively as a man, regardless of the strength exerted. A test recently made, showed that a truck driver exerted a pedal pressure of 400 pounds. Although no woman driver could exert this amount of pressure, the experts say she should be able to stop as quickly as the truck driver if the brakes are properly equipped.

TRUCK OWNERS HOLD EFFICIENCY MEETING

In an effort to make motor truck transportation 100 per cent efficient a number of the larger manufacturers of motor trucks have arranged for a series of conferences between larger operators of motor trucks to exchange ideas on truck operation.

One of the first of these conferences was held last week at the Morrison Hotel, Chicago. A. J. Owings of the Union Electric Co., and Harry Newman, the Kissel Kar distributer, were in attendance from St. Louis.

In outlining the broad scope covered by the discussion, Newman told the principle topics covered at the conference, namely: better loading methods, selecting and training drivers, the routing and scheduling of trucks, inspection and the lowering of maintenance costs, bonus plans for drivers, the proper keeping of horse costs, finding costs of freight and express, keeping costs on trucks the return load problem and other timely subjects.

Several hundred were in attendance among whom were many big operators of truck fleets, such as the Marshall Field store of Chicago. These men discussed the plans they had worked out through their years of experience in the truck field, exchanging ideas.

It is planned to hold these conferences in various cities from time to time in an effort to bring trucks to their highest efficiency. The tire manufacturers and some of the more important parts makers have joined with the truck manufacturers in promoting the idea. Newman is making an effort to bring one of the conferences to St. Louis for the benefit of local truck operators.

ALTON AUTO DEALERS FORM ASSOCIATION

The dealers in automobiles at Alton, Ill., have formed the Alton Automobile and Accessory Dealers' Association. A meeting for this purpose was held at the Mineral Springs Hotel, Wednesday night, under the guidance of Robert E. Lee, editor of the Auto Review of St. Louis. Officers elected were H. T. Horstman, president; L. T. Hudson, vice president; C. T. Yaekel, secretary; E. C. Hoefert, treasurer, and Christ. Schuette, C. G. Luft, W. E. Winter, directors. The association plans to standardize the automobile business of Alton so as to give better service to its customers. It is also probable that service at night and on Sundays and holidays will be abolished as it has been in St. Louis and most of the larger cities of the country.

Those who attended the meeting were: L. T. Hudson, Wagner Motor Car Co.; E. C. Hoefert, Dodge Bros. Motor Car Co.; J. H. Cassella, Alton Motor Co.; Messrs. Schuette and Ernst, Bluff City Auto Co.; Peter Guertler, Motor Sales Co.; E. H. Obermiller, Overland-Alton Co.; G. L. Nicholson, Haskertt Mach. and Eng. Co.; Charles Siebold and L. E. Roberts, Dodge Bros. Motor Car Co.; T. C. Foss, Dan Miller Buggy Co.; I. Winkler, Winkler Auto Service Co.; H. Horstman, Alton Auto Co.; H. O. Heuser, Heuser Garage; C. F. Yeakel, C. G. Luft. L. T. Hudson, formerly of St. Louis, was active in forming the association.

STEARNS 1912 CAR MADE 138,000 MILES

Chief Engineer Sterling of the F. B. Stearns Co., who recently visited the Newell Motor Car Co., local distributer of Stearns cars, is authority for the interesting information that a 1912 Stearns Knight car that had been run 138,000 miles, was brought to the factory by the owner, who ordered his motor installed in a new chassis. The motor of this car was in such excellent shape that the owner, while desiring the latest style body, did not deem it necessary to purchase a new car complete. Mose Frank of the local Stearns organization, cites a similar instance of long and satisfactory service in a Stearns-Knight car, owned by a prominent St. Louis man who has driven it 167,000 miles.

OLYMPIAN MADE 27.3 MILES TO GAS GALLON

Last week one of the 1918 Olympian models proved in a cross country run from Kansas City to St. Louis that the economy claims made by the factory were not merely claims. Harold Theiman of the Welling Motor Co. of St. Louis, the driver, used only 11 gallons of gas in the 300-mile trip, an average of 27.3 miles per gallon.

"This is more than we claim in our advertising or tell our prospects," said C. A. Welling, in speaking about the trip. "The factory assured us that we could claim 26 miles per gallon without fear of contradiction and we have used that figure in all our literature.

"Many owners have reported higher mileage and on this trip we decided to carefully test it for ourselves. It shows that we have a good margin of safety when we claim only 26 miles."

WANTS EXPERT DRIVERS FOR SERVICE IN FRANCE

The Y. M. C. A. is trying to get 100 expert automobile drivers to go to France and S. A. Miles of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce has written to Stewart McDonald, vice president and general manager of the Moon Motor Car Co. of St. Louis, asking him to secure as many as possible from St. Louis or vicinity. Applications can be made to McDonald.

The principal requirements are that the applicant must be above 32 years of age; an American citizen, with no German or Austrian blood; able to make ordinary repairs; able to cope with and not become rattled over unusual happenings and a man who would do credit to the uniform of the Y. M. C. A.

It is not necessary that the applicant should be a church member, but the Y. M. C. A. naturally prefers men of character who are willing to render a special service to their country and set a good example to others.

The duties consist largely of driving a truck or touring car, hauling canteens and general supplies in and around the army zones, which is sometimes lively and exciting work. The cars have sometimes been up to the front line trenches and very close to shell fire. The work is hard, the hours long, eating and sleeping somewhat irregular and the physical strain is pretty stiff. Therefore, we want men whose training has been along the line of prompt and correct action in emergencies, who will not be deterred by the considerations described.

The Y. M. C. A. would, of course, prefer men who are able to bear their own expenses, but this is not essential. The salary is based on a man's individual need. If a family depend upon him, the Y. M. C. A. tries to make the salary sufficient to meet the home budget and take care of the expenses in France.

WOODS AND DETROIT AGENCIES COMBINED

An important consolidation in the electric car field was announced last week, when the merging of the Woods Electric Vehicle Co. with the Detroit Electric Car Sales Co. was completed.

The combined companies will be under the general management of Hahold K. MacCarthy, formerly manager of the Woods Electric Co., and F. C. Herschbach will continue as sales manager.

Both the garage at 5143 Delmar avenue and 419 Euclid avenue will be continued and the sale of the Detroit cars will be conducted at both places. Service will be given to owners of all other makes of electric as well as the Detroits and Woods.

A. E. Archer, who was formerly general manager of the Detroit Electric Car Sales Co., is now a captain in the Ordnance Department and is expecting to be ordered for overseas duty in the near future. He was in St. Louis last week completing the details of the merger.

MacCarthy is now at the Detroit factory arranging for immediate delivery of several of the new models and has been advised that shipment will be made with increasing regularity.

URGENT MEETING OF AUTO TRADE CALLED

What is considered the most important meeting ever held for automobile dealers has been called by President F. W. A. Vesper of the National Automobile Dealers' Association at the La Salle Hotel, Chicago, Friday and Saturday, June 14 and 15. The presidents and secretaries of 150 local automobile dealers associations of the United States hav ebeen invited and a hundred per cent attendance is assured, according to telegrams received at the St. Louis office in the past few days.

It is no secret that the automobile dealers are facing a very materially changed condition, such changes having been brought about by the war. The subjects to be dealt with at the Chicago meeting are imperative to the welfare of everyone engaged in selling motor transportation.

Increased taxation and the conservation program of the War Service Committee, which when carried to completion will give to the Government thousands of automobile mechanics which are so badly needed, will be among the chief topics. Other questions such as educating mechanics in order to replenish those in the service, establishing a Convention Bureau, formulating a good roads department and many other things which are in the program of the National Association and which will be carried to full fruition during the fiscal year will be taken up at the meeting.

NEWMAN ANNOUNCES NEW CAR UNDER $900

Harry Newman, upon his return from the East last Friday, announced that he had secured the distribution for this territory for a car selling under $900. For the present he would not divulge the name but the first shipment is already en route and a special showing for dealers only will be held Thursday.

The factory is now turning the cars out in quantity, acording to Newman, and he has been assured of a large number for immediate delivery. While at the factory he placed orders for a large number and they are being shipped at once.

The car is not new to St. Louis and since its first showing here has been the center of much attention. While East he also visited the Kissel factory to arrange for additional deliveries.

AUTO LICENSE ISSUED TO 163,201 IN MISSOURI

During the months of January, February, March, April and May the Motor Vehicle Department of Missouri, office of the Secretary of State, has issued automobile number plates, chauffeur badges, etc., as follows:

163,201 Owners Plates, 4533 Dealers' Plates, 3140 Motorcycle Plates, 16,780 Chauffeur Badges, 3901 Transfers.

Of the above numbers the St. Louis office has registered 30,165 owners, 8263 chauffeurs, 1053 motorcycles; the Kansas City office has registered 18,852 owners, 1290 chauffeurs, 493 motorcycles.

During the period above mentioned the office deposited in the State Treasury to the credit of the Good Road fund, the sum of $1,234,853.

CENTRAL SERVICE PLAN IS WORKING PERFECTLY

The establishment of a single service station in St. Louis for night and Sunday emergency calls worked out well during its first week. Last Sunday the Henry Motor Service Co., the central station answered 75 calls. Wherever the work was other than emergency service, the cars are towed in and turned over to the dealer selected by the owner of the car.

Two or three instances of dissatisfaction expressed during the week were easily straightened up by officers of the St. Louis Automobile Manufacturers' and Dealers' Association when the conditions were explained to owners. One source of trouble was that several owners who are entitled to free hours of service from the firm from whom they bought their cars, insisted that the free service be supplied to them by the new central station. Obviously this could not be and they were easily convinced of it when full explanation of the new system was made to them.

Nearly every automobile dealer in St. Louis has secured supplies of service cards and has issued them to its owners. After this week these service cards will be absolutely required, as the owner in trouble when telephoning must give the number of his service card to the central station.

Three sub stations have been established by the Henry Motor Service Co., one in North St. Louis, one in South St. Louis and one in St. Louis County.

LIBERTY MOTOR NO. 1000 SHIPPED TO GOVERNMENT

The one thousandth Liberty airplane engine produced by the Packard company was shipped from the factory this week, just a year to a day from the sending to Washington of blue prints and parts which formed the start of the Liberty motor design.

The dispatching of the one-thousandth engine was celebrated quietly bnt none the less exultantly by the men who within a year have had the successive responsibility of producing the first Liberty engine by hand, the first Liberty engine to fly, the first Liberty engine made from tools designed for quantity output, and now their first thousand perfected engines.

Among those who witnessed the crating of the motor for shipment was the young engineer who on May 29, 1917, took down to Washington a trunk, checked as personal baggage, which contained complete blue prints and an all steel cylinder of an aviation engine. It was the desigh of this engine, representing at that time more than two years' of development work, from which J. G. Vincent, the Packard chief engineer, and E. J. Hall evolved the design of the Liberty motor.

When Liberty engine No. 1000 was completed, a telegram was sent by the two Liberty engine builders who are now in production to President Wilson and Secretary Baker, announcing with "solemn thankfulness" the completion of the first thousand. In reply, Secretary Baker wrote his congratulations, praising the "most commendable seal and spirit with which this task has been accomplished."

We have added two of America's most important Automobile Distributing Franchises.

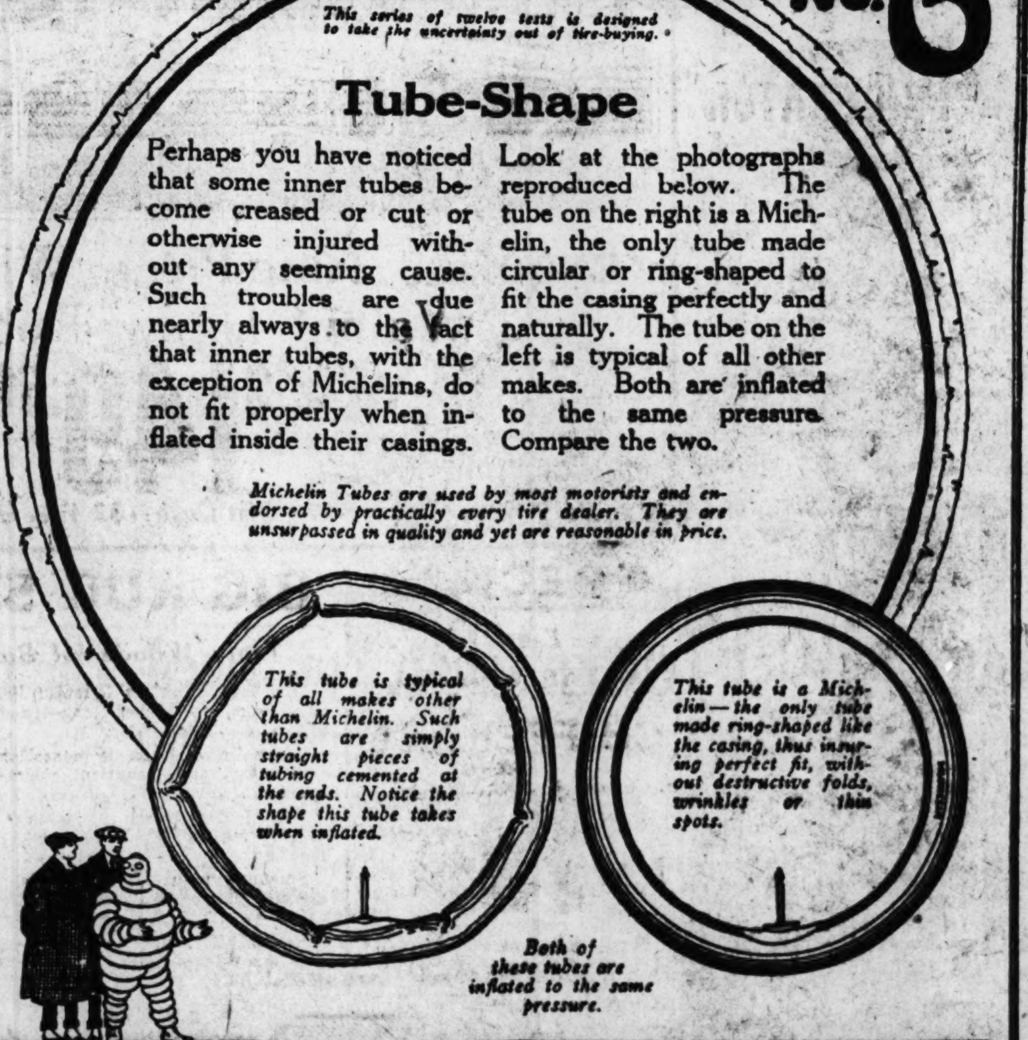
Twelve Tire Tests No. 6

This series of twelve tests is designed to take the uncertainty out of tire-buying.



Tube-Shape

Perhaps you have noticed that some inner tubes become creased or cut or otherwise injured without any seeming cause. Such troubles are due nearly always to the fact that inner tubes, with the exception of Michelins, do not fit properly when inflated inside their casings.

Look at the photographs reproduced below. The tube on the right is a Michelin, the only tube made circular or ring-shaped to fit the casing perfectly and naturally. The tube on the left is typical of all other makes. Both are inflated to the same pressure. Compare the two.

Michelin Tubes are used by most motorists and endorsed by practically every tire dealer. They are unsurpassed in quality and yet are reasonable in price.

This tube is typical of all makes other than Michelin. Such tubes are simply straight pieces of tubing cemented at the ends. Notice the shape this tube takes when inflated.

This tube is a Michelin—the only tube made ring-shaped like the casing, thus insuring perfect fit, without destructive folds, wrinkles or thin spots.

Both of these tubes are inflated to the same pressure.

TURNS USED CARS INTO GOOD TRUCKS

"The converted truck or delivery wagon is receiving more and more attention by shrewd business men, who must give delivery service," says I. G. McNiece, president of the Cadillac Atuomobile Co. of St. Louis. "Business moves fast these days, and nothing but motor service will keep it up to date.

"The prices of motor trucks and delivery wagons have advanced considerably, because trucks are scarce, and the demand has been heavy.

"Used passenger cars are plentiful, and business men are buying them, and building their own trucks, by combining them with Lauton or Knox rear axle units. A good passenger car attached to one of these units will make an up-to-date modern truck, besides saving the owner from $300 t o$500 on his purchase. We are bringing through our shops several of these jobs at the present time."

The Knight Motor Co., 3331 Locust street, distributer for the Empire car in St. Louis, has placed several subagencies in Illinois and Missouri counties. The company is advised that the price of the Empire car will be advanced about $100 shortly. As the date is not exactly fixed, buyers are advised to get their orders in as quickly as possible.

L. M. Davenport, from Los Angeles, Cal., stopped at the service station of the Mitchell Automobile Corporation of St. Louis this week for some minor adjustments on his Mitchell car. He is driving from Los Angeles to Boston, Mass., and up to the time that he left St. Louis, the gasoline consumption had average 15 miles to the gallon.

Joseph Rathheim, formerly connected with the Scruggs-Vandervoort & Barney Dry Goods Co., has established the Fitwell Seat Cover Co. at 2714 Locust street, to make washable seat covers for automobiles.

President I. G. McNiece of the Cadillac Automobile Co., reports the arrival of another shipment of Cadillac cars in special colors, consisting of carmine, dustproof gray, submarine green and cadet blue. These cars will be on display at their showroom, 2920 Locust street, during the week.

D. N. Stark of the Newell Motor Car Co. reports he has closed a contract for Stearns cars with the Bruce company of Springfield, Ill., to handle a large quantity of Stearns automobiles for the coming year.

The Newell Motor Car Co. had two trade visitors last week, Mr. Hollingshead of Chicago and Mr. McAllen of Boston, both distributers of Stearns cars. Their report is that Stearns are going as fast in their territory as they are in St. Louis. Together they will handle 2000 cars a year.

Walter J. Moore, for the past two years office manager St. Louis district United States Tire Co., and prior in the same capacity in the Pittsburg, Baltimore and Wilkesbarre branches of the United States Tire Co., has been appointed by his company to work on Government business at Washington, D. C. Moore left St. Louis Thursday for Washington.

E. E. Peake, secretary of the Kansa City Motor Car Dealers' Association, has been appointed executive secretary of the National Automobile Dealers' Association. He will particularly handle organization work. Peake spent several days in St. Louis last week in consultation with F. W. A. Vesper, president of the National Automobile Dealers' Association.

MOON SIX MADE RECORD OF 31.8 MILES TO GALLON

A record of 31.8 miles on one gallon of gasoline was made at Dallas, Tex., May 24 by a Moon 6-36 car, under the inspection of the automobile editor of the Dallas Times-Herald and another watcher.

The car was driven by A. H. Hardin of the Moon Automobile Co. of Dallas and was one which had just been taken out of stock. A single gallon of gasoline in a sealed can was attached to the carburetor and all other gasoline drained from the main tank.

The car was driven at an average speed of 20 miles per hour and some of the roads over which it went were heavy with mud, but the little Six did not falter once and as the last drop of gasoline in the gallon can went through the carburetor, the speedometer registered 31.8.

JULY 4 MARKS BIRTHDAY OF AMERICAN AUTO

The automobile industry will reach the quarter century mark of its growth on July 4. What is now America's third greatest industry dates from the invention of the first successful American automobile by Elwood Hayne in 1893, it is claimed.

Special significance is attached to the celebration of the event on the country's birthday by the important contributions of the automobile world to the great war. Airplanes,, trucks and tanks, as well as passenger cars, are rendering important service in helping win the war. And, without exception, they have been made possible through the invention of the automobile and the development of gasoline engines brought about by the advance of automobile engineering.

As a monument to the inventor and the great step in improved transportation he provided, the United States Government has on exhibition in the Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D. C., the first American motor car.

But the "horseless carriage" has not always been looked upon as a benefactor of humanity. Those who first heard that Mr. Haynes was working on such a machine declared it was a dream which could never materialize.

The initial run on July 4, 1894, was the culmination of a long series of tests and experiments by Mr. Haynes, dating back even farther than 1893. The first car traveled 32 miles on a gallon of gasoline. It moved slowly, averaging between six and seven miles an hour, but that speed was considered marvelous then for a vehicle without a horse.

That first run proved to be the most important step in the improvement of transportation since the invention of the steam engine.

The first car was complete in all details. It had wire wheels, cushion tires, a carburetor and a muffler, the last two being invented by Mr. Haynes. It had two speeds forward and as many reverse, for the new machine reversed by reversing the engine.

CHALMERS IS FOURTH IN CAR PRODUCTION

In spite of repeated denials, mischievious troublemakers persist in their efforts to annoy and handicap Chalmers dealers throughout the country with rumors of drastic changes in the program of Chalmers production.

The first thing Walter E. Flanders did in September, 1917, at the time he assumed the management of the Chalmers Motor Car Co., was to "nail the lie" that said Chalmers production would be stopped or curtailed. In a sweeping challenge he said further that Chalmers cars would not only continue to be manufactured but in as far as international conditions would permit, Chalmers production would increase.

Since that time both Mr. Flanders and Mr. Toner have repeated the statement in emphatic terms, and yet after nine months of strict adherence to the original program, Chalmers dealers still complain of these groundless rumors.

The following poitive assurance is from an open letter, dated May 13, 1918, and sent to all Chalmers dealers and distributors, by L. A. Smith, assistant director of Chalmers's sales:

"We do not and never have had any intention of even the slightest letup in Chalmers production unless through Government curtailment. The Maxwell Motor Co. is a separate organization from the Chalmers Motor Car Co., and the financial strength and experience of the Maxwell Motor Co. have simply been placed behind the Chalmers factory, which will serve to insure more Chalmers' motor cars and a stronger Chalmers organization, and not a discontinuance of the line.

"For the past six months, the Chalmers Motor Car Co. stands fourth in the United States in the number of six-cylinder motor cars produced and sold at a price of $1000 to $2000—just as Mr. Flanders advised would be done. Please dispel any thought that we are going to stop manufacturing Chalmers motor cars."

HANDLE DAYTON TIRE.

The Dayton Thoroughbred pneumatic tire is being handled in St. Louis by the Roberts Motor Tire Co., 2827 Locust street. This tire is made by the same company that made the Dayton Airless tire, the entire output of which has been taken over by the United States Government.

The Dayton Pneumatic has the fabric carefully stretched on by expert tire builders, the tension being even. It is claimed that this adds miles of service to the casing, and safeguards against blowouts and depreciation. Slow vulcanizing methods are also followed. The Dayton is sold with a written guarantee of 6000 miles, although it is claimed by the company that 6000 miles of service if the tire is given fair treatment is only the minimum.

LEAKY PISTON RINGS WASTE MUCH GASOLINE

"A great deal has been said by the Government regarding the immense yastage of gasoline. It has been asserted that the automobile public each year by using care could save a sufficient amount to supply the entire Government requirements," said a representative of the Ever-Tight Piston Ring Co. of St. Louis.

"One of the most unnecessary wastes is that gas which passes the leaky piston ring. It is not only that gas itself is lost but the lowered compression caused by ill-fitting piston ring requires a larger flow of gasoline. The older the car is the greater is the amount of unnecessary gasoline that is required.

"While, of course, there is no set percentage of saving for all cars, we have found that practically every car after being equipped with Ever-Tight rings required the carburetor to be readjusted to a thinner mixture. This naturally means increased miles per gallon and the resulting economy."

RETURN LOAD BUREAUS.

Long distance motor truck transportation will undergo a tremendous development during the next few years. But motor trucks, operating over rural highways cannot hope to operate profitably unless a normal load can be transported in both directions. Immediate necessity has compelled many long trips by motor trucks carrying loads in but one direction. So "return load" bureaus are being established in many states to help secure return loads. The truck line which the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. operates between Akron and Boston, experiences no inconveniences in that particular, as it has a cotton mill in Connecticut from which cotton fabric is hauled on the return to Akron.

HOPE TO CONCLUDE BRIDGE ARBITRARY HEARING MONDAY

Proceedings Saturday Devoted to an Attack on Testimony of R. N. Goodlow, Former Railroad Man.

Attorneys representing the Chamber of Commerce in the proceedings before Examiner Mackley of the Interstate Commerce Commission to abolish the 20-cent bridge arbitrary on coal, announced yesterday they would endeavor to complete their case tomorrow in order that the hearing, which hsa been in session at Hotel Jefferson since last Monday, may not have to be completed in Washington.

Only five witnesses testified in the six days since the hearing began and as four more witnesses remain to testify for the complainants, in addition to about nine for the defense, the Examiner had announced the case would probably have to be transferred to Washington.

Yesterday's sesion, which was adjourned at 1:30 p. m. until tomorrow, was confined to the testimony of R. N. Goodlow, a former railroad employe, employed by the Chamber of Comerce to investigate the terminal situation here.

Goodlow's Testimony.

Goodlow at first said he was a railroad expert, but under cross-examination admited his experience had been confined to work in the mechanical and executive departments of various St. Louis railroads. Atorneys for the defense directed their examination against statements made by Goodlow to the effect that the Terminal could utilize the free bridge as an additional facility without an exorbitant expenditure of money.

T. M. Pierce, counsel for the Terminal Association, sought to discredit Goodlow's conclusions by questioning him regarding his knowledge of actual operation costs and the expenses attendant upon developing connections with the bridge which the witness admitted he had not studied except from a general viewpoint.

Other attempts were made by opposing counsel to disqualify his testimony by showing that he had volunteered his services as a railroad expert to the Chamber of Commerce last January and had subsequently been hired to make his investigation of the terminals.

Original Agreement Questioned.

Goodlow testified that the original agreement between the proprietary lines composing the Terminal Association adopted in 1889 proved that the tracks of the Terminal were to be used as those of proprietary lines and not as a separate system. If the tracks are those of the prprietary lines and not as a separate system. If the tracks are those of the proprietary lines, the witness contended, deliveries from trunk lines could be made to any point on them without making an extra charge like that of the Terminal.

Pierce challenged this statement by saying that the original agreement of the Terminal Association had been nullified by the United States Supreme Court and that the conditions set forth there were not now contained in the existing agreement.

Arrangements have been made by the complainants to have Sidney F. Andrews, a St. Louis attorney, assist former Gov. Folk, counsel for the Chamber of Commerce, in presenting their case.

MINUTE MAN ADJUSTS TRUCKS ON THE STREET

The newest idea in motor service is a truck patrol, or truck "Minute Man." This fellow is to the truck driver what the roundsman is to a police platoon. Mounted on a motor cycle, he covers the commercial districts of the city co-operating with the drivers of the Federal trucks put into service by the Federal Motor Truck Co. It is the plan of this company's St. Louis distributor, Allan Baker.

When the "Minute Man" starts out in the morning he makes it his duty to say a friendly "Howdy" to each Federal driver he meets. If his attuned ear spots a bit of needed adjustment in the driver's motor, he helps make the adjustment or instructs the driver in his efforts.

In fact, St. Louis Federal drivers are getting to be such a crack corps that Baker's minute man threatens to form a motor truck company for overseas service.

Under his direction they have increased the efficiency of their vehicles to a large percentage. These drivers with the proper education have learned that many fair loads can be hauled with great satisfaction while a few of over capacity will likely cause trouble to develop later on. The Minute Man has done more to solve the overloading problem than any other single idea, declares Mr. Baker.

The second phase of this service which has made itself invaluable to owner and driver, is the check upon the employes. The fellow with the chronic habit of abusing a truck is spotted and his attitude reported to the owner.

CREEPING RIMS ARE COMMON OCCURRENCE

Every owner who is particular about his car should examine his rims and tires at least once each week, according to the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co. Few owners realize that a rim with its tire can creep around the wheel if the shoulders on the wheel which hold the demountable rim are the least bit worn. This occurred recently and was noticed only because the valve stem came through the wheel hole at an acute angle. This was caused by the rim and tire creping around, thus tending to pull the valve stem out of its place.

If the valve stem is held firmly by means of a cap, then the strain falls on the lower portion of the stem and the portion of the inner tube surrounding it. In the instance in question the pull was so great that the valve stem was cut almost in two.

Also in tightening the rim lugs be sure that you tighten in the correct order. If they are tightened one after the other around the rim, there is apt to be too much space on one side and too little on the other. Tighten one lug, then the one which is nearly opposite, and so on around.

MITCHELL CO. TO HANDLE AN ADDITIONAL CAR

John Bce, president of the Mitchell Automobile Corporation of St. Louis, announces that his company is about to take the agency of an additional high-grade automobile. The details and the name of the car will be given out as soon as the contract is finally signed. The car is already well known in St. Louis.

The purchaser is permitted to select his own style of body and finish for the high-grade chassis. The price of the car is $2175 at the factory which includes a line of unusual equipment. The car is one of the most attractive on the market.

THE MOST LOYAL BUYER.

L. C. Thayer of Boston, is given the credit of being one of the most loyal buyers of Overland cars.

Since 1911 he has purchased 13 Overland and Willys-Knight cars. He is one of the oldest customers of the company. Mr. Thayer was so well pleased with the performance of his first Overland and subsequent purchases that he rarely ever requires any kind of a demonstration, but simply places his order with the local dealers for the kind of Overland he wants and in many cases does not even see it before delivery.

McAdoo Organizing Thrift Stamp Campaign.

FIRST AUBURN MODELS SHOWN LAST WEEK

The first Auburn models were received last week by St. Louis Grant Motor Co., who recently announced that they had become Auburn distributers for this territory.

The first shipment was comprised of three cars, a lake-red, four-passenger roadster; a blue-gray sport model, and a standard five-passenger touring car in blue black.

All of these models are on the smaller chassis which has 120-inch wheel base and carries a 43-horsepower Continental, six-cylinder motor. Other models on the larger chassis are expected within a few days.

The lines of the Auburn are ultramodern, having the straight lines which have proved so popular this year. A large number of the Grant dealers have already signed up for Auburn for immediate shipment.

A large shipment of Grant was received last week and Barcus has been advised by both factories that he could expect quite prompt delivery on all models.

NEW HUDSON HAS TUBULAR FRAME BRACES

Following the policy of the factory to incorporate new features in its cars as fast as they are fully developed, the new Hudson models received last week bear the latest improvement worked out by the Hudson engineers.

Tubular cross members have been placed at both the front and rear of the frame. They are three inches in diameter in the front and two inches in the rear. Being securely riveted to the frame they greatly increase the rigidity and completely eliminate any weaving motion, says R. C. Frampton of the local company.

In addition to this feature they give the protection of a bumper, guarding the gas tank in the rear and the lamps and radiator in the front. Since the Hudson radiator has been equipped with shutters, an exclusive feature, this is even more important.

These new cross-members greatly increase the riding comfort, it is claimed, especially in country touring.

TIRES IN DRIVE AWAYS; PAY IN THRIFT STAMPS

C. A. Oldham, district manager of the United States Tire Co., has inaugurated a plan in St. Louis and all sub-branches in the district that should mataerially increase the sale of Thrift Stamps and at the same time assist the Government in saving freight capacity and facilitate prompt deliveries to dealers.

A large per cent of the dealers are agents for some make of car and the majority of them are delivered by drive-aways. It is proposed to call upon all such dealers to estimate their requirements and in all drive-aways to call at the branches and carry their freight shipments of tires, tubes and accessories, for which they will be paid by thrift stamps the amount the freight would have been.

This method will help the Government, both by placing thrift stamps in the hands of dealers, as well as save badly needed freight space.

The plan is meeting with very favorable reception and can readily be applied to good advantage by all branches of the automobile accessory industry.

PAIGE
The Most Beautiful Car in America

Your Car and Your Cause

Every business man in this broad land is today working for Uncle Sam. There are no longer any personal enterprises. No matter what your line of work may be, you are devoting your time, your energies, and a large share of your profits to the winning of a great war.

In dedicating ourselves to so huge a task, we must call upon every resource that is available. At home—as on the firing line—our vital problem of transportation can be very largely solved by the motor car and motor truck. With vast supplies moving to the seaboard, it becomes a patriotic duty to travel by the road and thus release railway equipment for the government.

The hustling executive must have the right of way—he must swing down the line on high gear—he must realize that the time saving automobile is essential to his success and the cause which he champions.

And now just a word about our product.

The Paige is merely one of America's high grade motor cars, but we are proud of the part that it is playing in this national crisis.

In the field of mechanical products, the Paige nameplate stands as an unquestioned guarantee of honest manufacturing and fair dealing.

We ask you to buy that nameplate—rather than four wheels and a painted body. We ask you to buy a reputation that has endured through many fitful periods in the motor car industry—a reputation that will endure so long as Paige cars are made for and sold to the American people.

DOAK'S PITCHING GIVES HENDRICKS' MEN EVEN BREAK

Right-Hander Stops Giants, 4-2 in 11 Innings in Closing Contest, After Sherdel Is Beaten in Opener, 8-1.

CRUISE HITS SECOND HOMER IN TWO DAYS

Error by Kavanaugh With Two Out Gives Giants 4 Runs in the First Game—Paulette Has Good Day.

NEW YORK, June 8.—The Cardinals gained an even break with the Giants today through the effective pitching of Bill Doak, who was pitted against Slim Sallee in the second game of today's double header. After the New Yorkers had won the first contest, 8 to 1, the St. Louis righthander held their sluggers in check through seven innings of great playing, until his team had manufactured the necessary runs from Sallee's delivery to win the contest, 4—2.

Both teams scored in the fourth. With Baird out, Cruise drew a base on balls and went to third on Hornsby's single through Fletcher, while Rogers took second on Burns' throw to third. Then Gene Paulette made the first of a cluster of four safe hits, a wicked drive to left, and Cruise and Hornsby counted.

The Giants tied it up in their half, the only period in which they did any damage to Doak's curves. Burns singled to left, and went to second on Zimmerman's out. Fletcher was hit by a pitched ball, and when Halke drew a base on balls McGraw put in Wilhoit, a southpaw hitter, in place of Rariden, to keep Doak worried. Wilhoit jammed a single through Hornsby, and two runs scored. Then Rodriguez drew a pass, again filling the bags, but Sallee hit into a double play.

Cards Miss Great Chance.

Doak was never in serious trouble after this, but the Cardinals hit briskly toward the colse of the game and had Sallee in trouble several times. Cruise and Paulette singled in the ninth and Mike Gonzales was rushed in to hit for Wallace. Mike drove a fierce liner to right, but Rodriguez made a remarkable jumping catch and doubled Cruise at second. In the tenth, the Cards filled the bases with only one out, but couldn't score.

Hornsby filed to Young to start the eleventh. Paulette got his fourth single, and was forced by Smyth. Kavanagh shot a single to left, sending him to second. Then Snyder hammered a long fly to right which Young misjudged, then got to in time to make what looked like a spectacular catch, but he fell heavily as he grasped the ball and dropped it. Smyth and Kavanagh scored easily and Snyder got to second, but Doak flied to Kauff.

Young Bill Sherdel faced the 20,000 crowd with all his usual confidence in the first game, and though beaten he was not disgraced. A combination of hard luck, errors and poor judgment gave the Giants six runs in the fifth inning off the young southpaw, where clean fielding would have cut off all of them.

Cruise Hits Home Run.

The Giants got a run in the first when Young opened wtih a single and took second on Kauff's sacrifice. Burns beat out a bunt, and Young went to third. On Zimmerman's smash to Hornsby, Young was uot at the plate, but Burns and Zimmerman worked a double steal, the former scoring. Walton Cruise evened the count in the fourth when he caught one of Perritt's fast ones and hit into the right field stands for a homer, the second in two playing days.

The Giants' fifth opened with Sherdel passing Rodriguez, his only unintentional gift. Perritt bunted and Mike Gonzales fumbled the ball, both runners being safe. He had plenty of time to catch Rodriguez at second with clean handling of the ball. Then Young bounded one to Paulette, the first baseman took the ball easily and started a throw to Baird to cut off Rodriguez. His spikes caught in the turf and he fell flat. By the time he was up the bags were full, nobody out and Kauff up.

Benny hit the first ball pitched for a single, scoring Rodriguez and Perritt. Burns popped to Kavanagh. Heinie Zimmerman rapped a liner to the same player and Young was nearly nabbed at third for a double play. This brought Fletcher up and the orders to Sherdell were to pass him and take a chance on Holke. The move filled the bases and the strategy would have worked but Kavanagh made an inglorious muff of Holke's twisting fly, Kauff and Young scoring. Then strategists ordered Lew McCarty passed. Rodriguez singled to right, sending in Fletcher and Holke with the fifth and sixth runs of the inning.

Young got another run for the Giants in the sixth on his single and steal and Burns' double.

MAGNER IS HONORED.

Johnny Magner, former Central High School, C. B. C. and Georgetown University football star, who has enlisted in the Naval Aviation Corps, was tendered a farewell banquet yesterday at the Missouri Athletic Association. He was presented with a gold shaving outfit by the members of the firm for whom he worked. Magner also was a member of the Century Boat Club crews in regattas in 1916 and 1917.

Great Pitcher Now in Service and Newly-Wedded Wife

MR. AND MRS. GROVER CLEVELAND ALEXANDER.

Alexander was married last week at Manhattan, Kan. His bride was formerly a resident of St. Paul, Neb., Alexander's home town. Alexander was allowed a 48-hour furlough in which to get married. He rejoined his command, the 342d Field Artillery, and entrained for the East, passing through this city a few days ago.

Alexander had worked his way up to acting Sergeant at Camp Funston, but on his transfer to the artillery, his rank did not hold and he became a private again.

Former Semi-Pro in Great Form—American Brakes Take Lead in Manufacturers.

Tex Hall, who some years ago was the leading pitcher in the local semi-professional circles, made his debut in the Municipal Association, pitchng a two-hit game for the Triple A club against the Hezels in the feature contest in the Manufacturers' League and being returned the winner, 4 to 1.

In the other game, which originally was booked as the feature, the American Brakes went into first place by administering a 11—8 drubbing to the St. Louis Malleables. Eight errors by the losers accounted for seven of the tallies scored by the Brakes Mickey Keenoy, at short for the Brakes, put up a great fielding game, handling 11 chances without an error. Filber and Littman also starred, while Fitzgerald and Morgan were the outstanding stars for the losers.

Bockenkamp Goes Into Semifinals of Park Tourney

17-Year-Old Municipal Links Star Defeats Read in Uphill Match, 2 Up and 1.

R. E. Bockenkamp, the 17-year-old municipal links golf star, added another victory to his string yesterday, when he defeated D. R. Read, 2 up and 1 to play, in the only match played in the championship class of the Forest Park Golf Club championship tournament, over the Forest Park course. Bockenkamp was low medalist of the event and last week eliminated James Manion. The victory yesterday put him in the semi-finals.

In winning yesterday, Bockenkamp played an uphill battle, winning in the last five holes, as going to No. 13, he was 3 down to his opponent. Both turned in medal cards of 85.

Three matches remain to be played in the championship class and must be completed today. They are as follows: Louis Hamel vs Roy Hartnett; Frank Lynch vs George Koob and W. Kassman vs M. J. Crichton.

KONEY'S SINGLE WINS FOR STALLINGS, 1 TO 0

BOSTON, June 8.—Nehf had the better of Toney in a pitching battle this afternoon and Boston won from Cincinnati, 1 to 0. The only scoring was in the seventh. Powell walked, Wickland sacrificed, and after Roush caught J. C. Smith's short fly Konetchy's single to left scored Powell. Two infield hits off Nehf in the sixth and an intentional walk to S. Magee with two out filled the bases for Cincinnati, but Herzog retired the side by catching Neale's fly in short center. Score:

PIRATES AND SUPERBAS SPLIT DOUBLE HEADER

BROOKLYN, N. Y., June 8.—Brooklyn and Pittsburg divided a double-header here today, the Pirates taking the first by a score of 7 to 1 and the Superbas winning the second 2 to 1 in 12 innings.

Cadore and Harmon had a pitchers' battle in the second game until the Brooklyn pitcher was taken out in the eighth for a pinch hitter. Grimes and Coombs continued the good work. Carey scored for Pittsburg in the fourth, when he doubled and scored from second while Stengel was being thrown out at first. Score:

SUNSET HILL MEMBERS TO BID FOR CADDIES' JOBS

Members of Sunset Hill Country Club will bid for the privilege of acting as caddies for four of the best-known golfers in the country June 29, when Charles ("Chick") Evans Jr., national amateur and open champion, and Warren K. Woods, both of Chicago, and Perry Adair and Bobby Jones of Atlanta, Ga., will exhibit there in a foursome.

The day has been set aside as Red Cross day and is a part of the program arranged by golf enthusiasts to raise $500,000 "for the sake of humanity" this year. The task of carrying the bags for the players will be sold to the highest bidders among the club members. Judge William Dee Becker is in charge of the program at Sunset Hill.

RED SOX LOSE TO INDIANS AND DROP TO SECOND PLACE

Squeeze Play Gives Fohlmen Two of Three Runs in Fourth Inning—Score Is 3 to 1.

CLEVELAND, O., June 8.—Cleveland made it three out of four from Boston today, winning, 3 to 1. Morton was batted harder than Mays, but kept the hits scattered except in the second inning, when Boston scored its only run. Cleveland used the squeeze play to register two of its three runs. The defeat pushed the Red Sox out of first place. Score:

WHITE SOX' WINNING STREAK IS SHATTERED

CHICAGO, June 8.—Philadelphia today ended the five-game winning streak of Chicago by defeating the locals 3 to 2, in 10 innings. Hits by Oldring, Walker and Burns scored the winning run off Danforth, who succeeded Williams after the eighth inning. Gregg pitched throughout for the visitors, allowing six hits. Eddie Collins had eight putouts, which is believed to be a record for a second baseman. He twice made running catches of line drives that prevented hits. Score:

Women Slow to File Entries in Title Net Meet

Seven Entered in Singles Event of Central States Tourney Starting Tomorrow.

While few entries have been received for the first Women's Central States Championship Tennis Tournament which begins tomorrow at the Triple A Club, officials of the organization are hopeful that last minute applications would fill out the field. Last night, seven women had entered the singles events, though only six of them will compete.

Four entries in the doubles have been received. The entry lists will be open until noon tomorrow and the tournament is scheduled to start at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Entries may be filed by calling the Triple A Club, Grand 156.

Mrs. Adelaide Yaeger of Kansas City and Mrs. S. H. Adams of Centralia, Ill., are the only two out-of-town players who have filed their entries to date. Other entries in the singles include: Miss Carrie Gould, women's city champion; Mrs. Paul T. Baker and Misses Madeline Arnstein and Margaret Haase. Mrs. A. Irish also filed her entry, but will be unable to compete.

In the doubles Mrs. Yaeger has paired off with Miss Gould, which should make a very formidable combination. Miss Evelyn Miller and Miss Gladys Stevenson, of Webster Groves; Mrs. A. E. Henske and Mrs. O. Stricker, and Misses Haase and Finnegan are the other entrants in the doubles. The entry fees will be turned over to the War Department's Commission on Training Camp Activities.

Ruth Still Leads Batters in A. L. With .371 Mark

Red Sox' Slugging Pitcher Also Is High in Home Runs With Total of Seven.

Driving out home runs is becoming a habit with "Babe" Ruth, the Boston pitcher, who is leading the American League in batting. Ruth signalized his return to the game, after a brief illness, by collecting four home runs in four days while playing an outfield position. As he failed to bag any other hits, however, his average fell off, but he still is showing the way with .371, according to unofficial averages released today. He has a record of seven home runs this season. The figures include games of Wednesday.

Sisler of St. Louis continues to show the way to the base stealers with 20, and McInnis of Boston and Shean, his teammate, remain tied in sacrifice hitting with 15. Chapman of Cleveland leads in scoring, having crossed the plate 30 times. St. Louis leads in team batters with .273. The leading batters for 25 or more games: Ruth, Boston, .371; Walker, Philadelphia, .367; Baker, New York, .350; Burns, Philadelphia, .344; Sisler, St. Louis, .340; Eddie Collins, Chicago, .337; Hooper, Boston, .327; Tobin, St. Louis, .322; Gandil, Chicago, .320; McMullin, Chicago, .312; Felsch, Chicago, .305.

Cracking out a dozen hits in six games boosted Fred Merkle, the Chicago first baseman, from fifth to second place in the list of National League hitters. He is batting .376, 26 points above his average a week ago. Larry Doyle, because of his continued absence from the game, remains at the top with .426. The averages included games of Wednesday.

Carey of Pittsburg, who is leading the base stealers, has 20 thefts to his credit. Roush of Cincinnati has taken the lead in sacrifice hitting with 14. Wickland of Boston and Cruise of St. Louis top the home run hitters with three each. Benny Kauff of New York is leading in scoring, having registered 32 in 40 games. Chicago drove New York out of first place in team hitting with .282.

The leading batters for 15 or more games: Doyle, New York, .426; Merkle, Chicago, .376; Smith, Boston, .370; Wickland, .348; Daubert, Brooklyn, .343; Kauff, New York, .341; Mann, Chicago, .336; Paskert, Chicago, .321; Hollocher, Chicago, .320; Lee Magee, Cincinnati, .320.

AUSTRALIAN SWIMMERS REFUSE TO GO THROUGH WITH EVENTS ARRANGED

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., June 8.—Officials of the Pacific Athletic Association are awaiting developments in the situation created by the refusal of Miss Fanny Durack and Miss Mina Wylie to follow the American schedule arranged for them by William Mack, one of the officials of the organisation. The Australians announced their decision yesterday.

According to President R. W. Dodd of the association the Australians are free to compete as soon as they apply for amateur registration in the association and comply with the requirements of the amateur athletic union.

A previous report to the effect that the young women would not appear in scheduled swimming meets under the sanction of the A. A. U. was said to be incorrect, as the swimmers have not yet decided on their future plans.

MICHIGAN WINNER OF BIG 10 TRACK AND FIELD EVEN Wolverines Come Back After Absence of 12 Years and Pile Up 37½ Points.

CARL JOHNSON IS STA

Ann Arbor Athlete Takes Three Firsts and Sets Record—Drew Defeats Scholtz.

CHICAGO, June 8.—After an absence of 12 years the University of Michigan staged a sensational "come-back" in the Western Conference outdoor track and field championships, decided on Stagg Field this afternoon, and scored a total of 37½ points. The Wolverines won first places in five events and tied for the premier honors in the grenade throw. It was the eighteenth annual renewal of the Western classic.

The University of Illinois was second, with 26 points, and Missouri, regarded as the favorite, third, with 24. Chicago piled up 18, Wisconsin 13¾, Minnesota 12¼, Drake 12, Notre Dame 11 points.

The meet was remarkable for the fact that every one of the 16 teams entered scored points. The balance of the points were split up as follows: Purdue 10, Northwestern 5, De Pauw 5, Kansas 4½, Indiana 4, Ohio State 2, Ames 1 and the American School of Osteopathy 1.

The most remarkable performance of the day were the victories of Carl Johnson, a 19-year-old star from Spokane, Wash., who ran under the colors of Michigan, and the races of Howard Drew, the negro sprinter from Drake University, joint holder of the world's 100-yard record at 9 3-5.

Johnson Sets Record.

Johnson was the individual star with victories in the 120 and 220-yard hurdles and the running broad jump. He shattered the Conference record in the jump with a leap of 23 feet 11 3-4 inches. This broke the former mark of 23 feet 9 3-4 inches, made by Stiles of Wisconsin in 1915.

Drew caused a surprise by defeating Scholz, the University of Missouri flyer, in the 100 and 220 yard dashes. Drew won the century by a scant yard and in the 220-yard event breasted the tape three yards ahead of Collier of Indiana, who was a yard ahead of Scholz. The defeat of Scholz probably robbed Missouri of second place honors as he was counted on to win two firsts. He appeared to be overtrained and badly off form.

The meet attracted a crowd of 5000 persons, the largest that has witnessed a track meet in Chicago in years. The kahki of the army and blue of the navy was freely interspersed in the stands and the Great Lakes Naval Training Station band of 100 pieces seated in the mid-field, thrilled the crowd with patriotic airs.

Allied Officers as Judges.

Officers of the allied commission judged the grenade throwing event, a new stunt in Western Conference athletics.

GEDEON LEADS PRATT.

While Joe Gedeon and Derrill Pratt have each made five hits in the present series between the Browns and the Yankees, the local second sacker has a better batting average than the former Brownie, due to the fact that he has been at bat fewer times, having batted 17 for Pratt. Gedeon's swat mark is .357, while that of his rival is .294.

RICKEY TO RETURN.

President Branch Rickey of the Cardinals, who has been absent from the city for the past week, is expected to arrive home today. Where Rickey has been and what his mission reports around Cardinal Field that of interest announce when he reaches the city.

When It Comes to Winning Titles, You Can't Expect to Clean Up by Dirty Tactics

YANKEES ASSUME LEAD IN RACE BY DEFEATING BROWNS

New Yorkers Win Fourth Straight Victory in Present Series by 4-3 Score and Dislodge Red Sox.

BROWNS NOW HAVE LOST SIX IN ROW

Davenport Hit Hard, but Sothoron Shows Great Form—Thormahlen Puts Huggins in First Place.

Crafty little Miller Huggins yesterday directed his Yankees to their fourth successive victory over the Browns, stretching the local string of losses to six, and last night betook himself to the downy couch to enjoy Abou's well-known "deep dream of peace," for Huggins knew that he was perched on the top of the American League pennant procession. The 4 to 3 defeat of the Browns, together with Cleveland's bumping of the Red Sox brought about the much desired result for little Mr. Huggins.

True, the Yankees haven't a stranglehold on first place, by any means, as they are but four percentage points ahead of the Red Sox and are practically tied in the matter of games won and lost, New York has won 28 and lost 19, while Boston owns a record of 27 and 18. But it's the old percentage that counts, and Miller Jay's privilege to make the most of it.

Davenport Loses It.

It appears the Browns just can't stop them, albeit they looked far more evenly matched against the New Yorkers yesterday than they have at any time during the series. An early lead amassed off Dave Davenport was the reason for the defeat. Dave undertook to spot the visitors four runs, two of which came in the third and a similar number in the fourth.

Herbert Thormahlen, the brilliant young southpaw, who was knocked off the mound in the first engagement of the series, returned for some more of it and this time won the honor of pitching his club into first place, though he was groggy and on the ropes during the better part of eth matine. In just four of the nine sessions did he succeed in keeping the bases barren of Brownie baserunners. But again in only two of the five innings in which they got runners on the sacks did the Browns put one across the plate.

As for Davenport, unseemly things began to happen to him in the very first stanza and that he escaped without a run in this frame was due entirely to a smart play by George Hale, who is doing the catching for the Browns with Les Nunamaker out of it. Frank Gilhooley opened up with a slow roller down the third base line and beat it out. On the first pitch to Peck, Hale called for a pitchout and that he outguessed Gilholey was shown in the fact that he got the latter by a wide margin trying to second. The Yanks then filled the bases, but couldn't score.

Baker Gets Freak Single.

Starting the third, Gilhooley sent a hot roller to Gedeon which Joe knocked down but couldn't field. Peck sacrificed and Baker's single, one of the most peculiar of the season, counted Gilhooley. Baker's hit was a long fly just out of Tobin's reach, but Gilhooley held second, figuring Tobin would make the catch, hence Baker got only a single on what should have been a triple. He went to second on Tobin's throw to the plate and stole third as Davenport walked Pipp. A pass to Bodie filled the sacks and when Miller was hit by a pitched ball, Baker was forced in. Hannah ended it with a foul to Hale.

The Yanks picked up their third and fourth, also their winning runs in the fourth, on Gilhooley's third infield hit, Pack's triple and a single by Baker, the latter coming off Allan Sothoron who took up the hurling burdens at this stage and made a game of it. Sothoron allowed just four hits in the six and two thirds innings he worked and while the Yanks filled the bases in the eighth with none out, they were unable to score.

The Browns had a chance to count in the first when Austin tripled with Tobin out, but neither Sisler nor Hendryx could produce the much-sought timely wallop. It was in the fourth that the locals put over their first run. Austin walked and a freak play occurred on Sisler. George hit to Thormahlen. The latter turned and threw to second to force Austin. Peckinpaugh, however, cut across and intercepted the toss, figuring possibly on throwing out Sisler at first. He was too late, though and both Austin and Sisler were safe.

Hendryx singled to left and Austin counted, Sisler reaching third. Smith fouled to Baker, but a pass to Gedeon filled the bases. Gerber spoiled it by hitting into a double play, forcing Sisler at the plate and himself retired on Hannah's relay to Pipp.

On the eighth green the Browns made a desperate effort to halve the score. They fe'l one shy, however. Tobin doubled for a starter in this frame and Austin drew a pass. Sisler popped to Peckinpaugh, but Hendryx again came through with a timely single to left on which Tobin scored and Austin made third. Pete Johns was sent up to hit for Smith and forced Peckinpaugh, but Hendryx again came through with a timely single to left on which Tobin scored and Austin made third. Pete Johns was sent up to hit for Smith and forced Hendryx at second, Austin scoring.

The Yanks make their final apearance of the series today. The game will be called at 3 o'clock.

EASTERN STARS BEATEN BY EVANS AND WOOD IN RED CROSS GOLF MATCH

CHICAGO, June 8.—"Chick" Evans and Warren K. Wood, the Western team, defeated the East, represented by Jerome D. Travers and John G. Anderson, today 5 up and 3 to play, in an exhibition match over the Ravisloe course for the benefit of the Red Cross. A gallery of 3000 watched the play and swelled the receipts.

Wood was lo wman of the four with a medal score of 76 and his steadiness largely was responsible for the Western team's victory. The Easterners won but one hole in the round, the eighth, when Wood and Evans each missed short puts for a half. Travers won this hole with a par 4.

The bye holes weer played for the beenfit of the gallery and Evans and Travers each turned in cards of 79, while Anderson completed the round in 84.

The privileges of caddying for the four folgers were auctioned off before the match, $525 being paid for the honor of shouldering Evans' bag. Two army airplanes from Rantoul flying field circled over the course throughout the match.

LOCKER BUILDING TO BE DEDICATED TODAY

The Locker building, consisting of dressing rooms and shower baths, exclusively for the baseball and football players at Fairground, will be dedicated this afternoon. The Blair-Howard and Irving School drum corps will assist in the ceremonies and all players of the Mercantile and Independent Leagues are requested to be at Grand and Natural Bridge road at 2 o'clock.

John Schmoll, Director of Public Welfare, Nathan Hall and Rev. P. J. Dooley will make short talks. The building cost $5000 and is the first of its kind in any of the St. Louis public parks.

Stuart Stickney Wins Fourth District Golf Title, Beating Sullivan 7 and 5

Country Club Veteran, Playing in His Best Form, Finishes 4 Up in Morning Round With Medal Score of 75 for First 18 Holes.

By John E. Wray.

Stuart G. Stickney, the St. Louis Country Club's golfing "ace" for the past 18 summers, yesterday proved that they CAN come back, when, for the first time since 1910, he won the St. Louis Golf Association championship from E. C. Sullivan of Sunset Hill 7 up and 5 to play over the fine course at Midland Valley Country Club.

Stickney is a veteran of a score of campaigns. He has not reached the fat-and-40 stage, but when you approach him on the subject of his years you have to address the proposition delicately if you expect to hole out. The fact that he won the first title in 1901 speaks sufficiently as to his right to be dubbed the veteran.

But yesterday Stickney displayed all the long drive and the accuracy that marked the days when he was a 4 handicap player. He outdrove his opponent most of the way and was never behind him. He outapproached him many times and he holed out several putts in a manner to break the heart.

Stickney's Morning Card 75.

His medal score, too, savored of the halcyon days. He went out with a 36 (two over par) and came back with a 39 (including two unfortunate 6s), a 75 for the morning round. That's only three more than "Chick" Evans' exhibition round made over this same course. That his medal play was not better throughout the afternoon round was due to the fact that, with a lead of 6 up the champion's sole object was to play safe and let the medal score take care of itself.

At times the play savored of the merry jest, as it seemed on occasions that neither man could sink a putt with a submarine. But at that time Sullivan was hopelessly in the rear and Stickney so far in front he may have been careless.

The Score by Holes.

The character of the play compared to bogey and par, with the yardage of the holes, is shown in the following table:

Big Gallery Follows Match.

The match attracted one of the largest galleries seen at a city title match in some years, fully 250 persons following the play. Sullivan, before the start of the morning round, had but few supporters, owing to his lack of experience in final rounds. Sullivan's best previous championship effort was when he reached the semi-finals in the Trans-Mississippi at St. Joe last year, only to be eliminated by Harry Legg.

However, there was some wagering that Sullivan would win, and one bet of $500 to $1100 is reported to have been made on his chance of beating the Country Club champion.

One speculative Country Club man bet that Stickney would end the match before the eleventh hole of the afternoon round. At this hole Stickney was 7 up with 8 to go. On the next he was dormie seven, and had missed a grand chance to land the title when he halved the twenty-ninth hole.

Not to Play in T-M Event.

The four-time champion stated after the match he did noto think he would attend either the Transmississippi tourney June 17 at Hillcrest, Kansas City, or the State tournament at Excelsior Springs next July. He expects to take part in an invitation tourney at Pittsburg.

Other Golf Results.

CONSOLATION—Sterling Edmunds defeated Arthur Stickney, 1 up.

CLASS A—Samuel C. Davis defeated W. L. Whipple, 3 up and 2 to play.

Hole-by-Hole Story of Stickney's Victory in District Golf Final

The Play of Both Was Generally Good; but at Times It Was So Bad That Neither Could Sink a Putt With a Submarine.

No. 1—Both drove about 225 yards were within good approaching distance on their second shots. Stickney laid up within 10 feet on this third and holed the long putt, while Sullivan required two putts. Stickney 1 up.

No. 2—Both played this hole perfectly with 250-yard drives and good brassie shots from the fairway, landing on the green in three and holing out in two putts for a half in 5, par. Stickney 1 up.

No. 3—Stickney's spoon shot was on the green, while Sullivan's fell in No. 14 fairway. His niblick shot hit the bunker and his third was six feet from the hole. Stickney went down in two putts for a par 3. Stickney 2 up.

No 4—Both drove about 220-yards. Sullivan's second was short and Stickney was near the edge of the green. Sullivan's third halg-stymied Stickney's and forced Stuart to halve the hole in 5 strokes. Stickney 2 up.

Stickney's Putting Good.

No. 5—Both got fine drives of 250 yards. Sullivan's second was a trifle short, while Stickney's resulted in a hanging lie on the side of a bunker. Sullivan was on in three and Stickney made a nice play off the bunker to within 8 feet of the cup. Sullivan mised a long try and Stickney holed out an 8-foot for the hole. Stickney 3 up.

No. 6—Stickney dubbed his tee shot into the rough but made a splendid recovery and was right on the green in two. Sullivan was straight down the course 160 yards on his first shot, and was on the green nicely on his second. Both took two putts for a par 4, halving the hole. Stickney 3 up.

No. 7—Both played "Helen Hunt" in par 3, pitching on the green in one and going down in two putts for a half. Stickney 3 up.

No. 8—Stickney was on the green with his iron shot and was down in two putts, Sullivan going into the rough with his tee shot and taking three tries to hole out. Stickney 4 up.

No. 9—Both were on the green in three down in bogey 5. Stickney 4 up at the end of nine holes.

Hole 10—Sullivan was in the rough with his iron shot, while Stickney was just off the green. Sullivan made a fine recovery and was down in par three after a nice putt. Stickney salved it with him. Stickney 4 up.

Stickney Loses the "Honor."

No. 11—Stickney lost the "honor" for the first time here. He was in the rough to start with, but was on the green in three with Sullivan. It took him three putts to hole out in 6, while Sullivan went down in bogey 5. Stickney 3 up.

No. 12—Stickney tried an "educated" slive over the creek, to cut the corner; but he went into the ditch. This cost him a stroke, while Sullivan played it around the elbow, safe, and was at the edge of the green in two and down in par 4, Stickney taking 5. Stickney 2 up.

No. 13—Both played par golf for a half in 5. Stickney 2 up.

No. 14—Both got fine drives and were on the green in two. Stickney holed out a seven-foot second putt for a 4, while Sullivan took three stabs at it with the aluminum. Stickney 4 up.

Stickney Scores a "Birdie."

No. 15—Both drove on even terms. Sullivan's second shot was short and he over approached. Stickney's second was 3 feet from the pin, a beautiful shot, and he was down in his only "birdie" of the afternoon, Sullivan taking 5. Stickney 3 up.

No. 16—The drives were again even but Stickney's approach was 4 feet from the cup, while Sullivan was off the green Stickney was down in par 3. Sullivan bogey 4. Stickney 5 up.

Rough Stuff.

No. 17—Stickney was in trouble on his third shot, getting a hanging lie on the bunker. He over-approached and it took him 6 shots to untangle himself, while Sullivan was down in 5. Stickney 4 up.

No. 18—Stickney drove into the rough, but was just off the green with Sullivan on a nice recovery. Good approaches gave both men a par 4. Stickney 4 up.

AFTERNOON ROUND.

No. 19—Stickney's second shot put him on the green, 20 feet from the cup, while Sullivan's iron shot was 40 yards short of the green. He dubbed his approach and was not on until his fourth stroke. Stickney rolled up, playing it safe and was down in 4, to Sullivan's 6. Stickney 5 up.

No. 20—Both men were on the green in three, but Stickney's approach was 25 feet closer. Sullivan rolled up within six feet of the cup, while Stickney overshot it 5 feet. Sullivan then missed a 6-foot putt for a five, while Stickney was down. Stickney 6 up.

Stickney Drives Into Lake.

No. 21—Stickney's drive fell into the lake, while Sullivan's was on the fairway across the water. Stickney, playing 3, was on the green within 5 feet of the pin, a great shot. Sullavn pitched to the green 30 feet away, anad overshot the hole on his third. Both were down in bogey 4. Stickney 6 up.

No. 22—Stickney topped his second shot and was only at the edge of the green in 3, while Sullivan approached to within 10 feet. Stickney gave the spectators a shock by rolling a 35-foot putt to the rim of the cup. Sullivan then missed a 10-foot putt and they halved it in 5. Stickney 6 up.

No. 23—Stickney, after perfect golf that brought him to within 4 feet of the cup in 3, while Sullivan was 30 feet away on his approach, missed his putt trying to play it too safe. This enabled Sullivan to gain a half in 5. Stickney 6 up.

Stickney's Recovery Fine.

No. 24—This was sheer murder. Stickney drove into the rough but approached within 10 feet, a fine recovery. Sullivan, after a nice drive, overapproached and went into a gully back of the bunker at the far edge. He was lucky to dig out of this "lie" onto the green. He overran the cup on his fourth. Stickney missed by two feet and then rolled another one to the edge of the cup, where it hung. Both took 5 for a bogey 4 hole. Stickney 6 up.

No. 25—Stickney failed to reach the "Helen hunt" green in one, as did Sullivan. But made a fine pitch up on to the green from the fairway, 12 feet from the cup. Sullivan was only 2 feet from holing out on his first putt. Stickney's putt just rimmed the hole while Sullivan was down in 3. Stickney 5 up.

No. 26—Sullivan's bad drive was costly, as Stickney was on the green in 1 and down in par 3. Stickney 6 up.

Sullivan "Lifts" Ball.

No. 27—Both were on the green in 3, about 25 feet from the cup. Sullivan rolled up to within a foot while Stickney's fourth try almost hit Sullivan's ball. It was within 6 inches and Sullivan "lifted," while Stickney rolled down for a half. Stickney 6 up.

No. 28—Heartbreaking putting by Stickney almost cost him this hole. Stickney's first shot landed him 25 feet from the cup. Sullivan's second took him 9 feet from the hole. Stickney made a splendid try that stopped within 18 inches of the hole. Sullivan overshot his mark and Stickney seemed to have the cup clinched. But he shot too hard and the ball rolled right acriss the opening without dropping. It looked like a sure "half;" but Sullivan surprised by missing a 2-foot putt. Stickney holed out in 4 to Sullivan's 5. Stickney 7 up.

Four Strokes to Green.

No. 29—Sullivan took four shots to get on the green, while Stickney was 8 feet from the cup, on his third shot. He missed his fourth putt, playing it safe while Sullivan ran down a 15-foot putt. Stickney halved in 5, leaving him dormie 7. Had he won the hole, the match would have ended here.

No. 30—Sullivan prolonged the match with a "birdie" 3, on this hole when his pitch landed within 1 foot of the pin. Stickney dormie 6.

No. 31—Sullivan was all wrong on this hole and took 5 strikes to reach the green, while Stickney was on in 3. Stickney rolled up to within 3 feet and was down on his fifth, Sullivan taking 7. Stickney 7 up, 5 to play.

Stickney First Won City Title in 1901

S. G. STICKNEY, who yesterday won the St. Louis Golf Association championship at Midland Valley for the fourth time, first won the title 17 years ago, in 1901. Stickney later won the district championship in 1902 and 1910, when the cup emblematic of the title ownership passed into his permanent possession, he having been first to win it three times.

Stickney also won the State championship and the Transmississippi title once each.

He has participated in several Western and national championships and for years, up to the last four or five seasons, has been given a national and Western handicap rating of 4.

His best effort in the national was in the year Herreshoff lost to the Englishman, Harry Hilton, 1 up in 37 holes. In the same tourney, second round Herreshoff eliminated Stickney, 1 up in 37 holes.

YEATMAN TALLIES 3 RUNS IN NINTH TO CLINCH TITLE

Fries Weakens in Final Round and McKinley Is Beaten in Interscholastic Playoff, 5-3.

Three solid hits, mixed with a base on balls and an error, gave Yeatman High School three runs in the ninth inning of yesterday's game with McKinley and netted the team a 5—3 victory in the play-off contest to decide the Interscholastic League championship. The game was played at High School Field, with a good-sized crowd in attendance.

In the final round with one out, Stephens singled. Wellman was sent in as a pinch-hitter and tripled, scoring Stephens, while he himself tallied on Sphueler's error. Oetzel walked and Maguolo doubled, scoring Oetzel. Up to the final inning, Fries had pitched good ball, but he weakened badly in this round.

McKinley was the first to score, putting over two runs in the second ining. Bolin beat out an infield hit. Sphueler went out, but G. Thompson doublod, scoring Bolin. Thompson stole third and socred when Fries singled.

Had McKinley won the contest, the South Siders would have won three of the four Interscholastic championships for the season.

QUESTION OF ABOLISHING FOOTBALL WILL AGAIN BE TAKEN UP BY CONFERENCE

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 8.—The question of abolishing intercollegiate football in the Western Conference colleges for the duration of the war has again come up. It was learned here today that President William Lowe Bryan of Indiana University has written a letter to the presidents of the other universities in the conference asking their views.

President Bryan had the matter up last year, not only with the conference colleges, but with President Wilson. It was the general opinion that all athletics should be retained, as it was believed that the training was excellent for the young men of the country, and in this President Wilson agreed.

Since last fall, it is said new problems have arisen, which make the subject vital at this time.

FORMER C. B. C. GRID PLAYER JOINS NAVY

Paul H. Murphy, for several years prominent in athletics here, enlisted in the navy yesterday. He will await a call to report to the School for Ensigns at the Municipal Pier, Chicago.

Murphy, who is 24 years old, was best known as a football player with Christian Brothers College, playing quarterback in 1913, '14, '15 and '16 for the Brothers. He also was a member of the baseball, basketball, track and soccer teams at the college.

After graduating from C. B. C. Murphy continued in athletics as a member of the champion Ben Miller soccer team of the St. Louis Soccer League. He played fullback for the Millers. He lives with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Anson Murphy, at 3651 Lafayette avenue.

TWO WORLD'S SWIMMING RECORDS ARE SHATTERED

OAKLAND, Cal., June 8.—Two world's swimming records were broken here today when Clarence Lane of Honolulu completed a 25 yards dash in 10 2-5 seconds, cutting one-fifth of a second from the former record, and Frank Norris of San Francisco made 100 yards free style in 55 3-5 seconds, a second less than the former record. Duke Kahanamuko was second in the 00-yard race.

Somewhere in France.

SOMEWHERE in France there is a boy
Who is his mother's pride and joy;
The mother sits with furrowed brow
And wonders what he's doing now,
Somewhere in France.

She gazes fondly on the bed
Where he was wont to lay his head;
Then kneels and offers up a prayer
For her brave soldier "over there,"
Somewhere in France.

Somewhere in France there is a girl
With eyes of blue and teeth of pearl;
There sits beside her on a bench
A boy to whom she's teaching French
Somewhere in France.

He's learning how to "parlez vous,"
And also how to bill and coo;
And when the boy has won renown
He'll wed the maid and settle down—
Somewhere in France.

HOLDERS OF GOLF CUPS WILLING TO TRADE THEM IN FOR THRIFT STAMPS

NEW YORK, June 8.—Winners of golf cups are willing to turn in their trophies to the metals market here to be melted and made into coin, in exchange for thrift stamps if they can be assured that such a transaction will not automatically transfer them from the amateur class to the professional, according to Mrs. Joseph Griswold Deane, manager of the market.

Mrs. Deane said today that since Miss Marion Hollins turned over her 38 silver cups won at gold matches, she had received hundreds of letters from other winners who are willing to give their trophies, provided their amateur standing is not affected. It was intimated that golf and tennis officials would be asked to make a ruling.

ASHLAND TO PLAY SHAW FOR SCHOOL HONORS TOMORROW

Post-Dispatch Trophy Will Go to Winner of Finals in Grammar Circuit.

HAVE GREAT RECORDS

Both Nines Captured Seven Straight Games in Getting Chance for Title.

The Ashland School team of Group G will play tomorrow afternoon at High School Field for the championship of the Public School Baseball League and the Post-Dispach trophy and medals. The trophy last season was won by Bryan Hill, which during the present campaign failed to get into the elimination series.

In working their way into the finals both Ashland and Shaw played great ball. Neither nine suffered a defeat—winning seven straight games, five in the regular season and two in the eliminations. To reach the final, Ashland shut out Rock Spring, 3—0, Siebothen and Shuerman, the teams' pitchers, yielding only one safety. Shaw, on the other hand, had an easy time of it, walloping Harrison, 12—6.

The game tomorrow will be the second in which Shaw has been a contender for the championship. In 1915 the outfit worked its way into the finals only to be beaten by Benton in a poorly played game, when Deveggia, the team's star pitcher of that season, went to pieces. It will be Ashland's first appearance in a final.

Benton Was First Winner.

The Post-Dispatch trophy, which will got to the winner of the championship, has been in competition four years. It is a silver shield on an oak panel, being about four feet high. The team winning it three times will gain permanent possession of the trophy.

It was first played for in 1915, when Benton was the winner over Shaw; in 1916, Cote Brilliante defeated Madison in the final, and last year Bryan Hill defeated Fanning. Benton this season reached the eliminations, but was beaten by Shaw by a score of 17—1. Cote Brilliante, because of lack of material, did not enter the 1918 competition.

The probable lineups for the contending teams in the finals will be as follows:

ASHLAND.	SHAW.
Quigley, rf.	Mathis, rf.
Fortner, 3b.	Palazzo, lf.
Schuerman, 1b.	Vetter, 1b.
Imboden, c.	Hurst, p.
Goeman, ss.	Emery, c.
Cianciala, cf.	Costello, 1b.
Siebothen, p.	Meyer, ss.
Ralls, 2b.	Lederer, 2b.
Hamblin, lf.	Scherer, cf.

Crippen and Hebberger will be in charge of the game.

LOCAL TRAPSHOOTERS TO COMPETE IN TROPHY EVENT THIS AFTERNOON

The first contest of a series of 10 shoots to be held during the coming season will take place this afternoon at the St. Louis Trapshooters Association Park. A special event consisting of 50 targets will be shot for the Marquette Hotel Trophy. This will be a challenge contest open to all amateurs, entrance price of targets with optional sweeps. Interstate Association rules will govern the competition. The Elliott Sliding Handicap System will be used.

The schedule of shooting dates covering these contests are as follows: June 9 and 23, July 14 and 28, Aug. 11 and 25, Sept. 8 and 22, Oct. 13 and 27. Practice shooting for club trophies will be held in conjunction with the contest for the Challenge trophy for those who do not wish to compete in the main event.

The local shooters are eager to compete in trophy matches and this is the first of its kind to be staked for several years. Officials in announcing the conditions for the challenge trophy believe it will be the means of increasing the attendance at the club shoots. Shooting starts at 2 p. m.

JOHREN IS WINNER OF SUBURBAN HANDICAP; FAVORITE IS FOURTH

NEW YORK, June 8.—Harry Payne Whitney's imported chestnut colt, Johren, won the Suburban Handicap at one mile and a quarter over the Belmont Park race course today. He is the fourth 3-year-old to be returned winner of this turf classic. A. K. Macomber's Hollister finished second, and P. A. Clark's Battle was third. The favorite, Cudgel, carrying the top weight of 133 pounds, was fourth, with Hendrie fifth and Spur, the second choice, last of the field of six starters.

The time, 2:06, was the slowest for this event since 1907, but the track had not dried out from the deluge of Friday and under the conditions the winner's performance was very good. The value of the race to the winning owner was $5850.

515 GRADUATES TO BE AWARDED DIPLOMAS BY HIGH SCHOOLS THIS WEEK

Commencement Exercises Wednesday, Thursday and Friday—Four Who Are Absent in Military Service to Get Diplomas.

The six St. Louis public high schools will award graduation diplomas this week to 515 pupils. The commencement exercises will be held as follows: Central and McKinley, Thursday night; Soldan, Thursday morning; Yeatman and Cleveland, Friday morning; Sumner (for negroes) Wednesday night.

Central High School will award diplomas to four students who are absent in the service of the country. They are Ryland Conwell, Bruce and Alfred Charles Schnaus, in the navy, and Harold Corcoran and Albert B. Pfaff, in the army.

Winners of Scholarships.

The names of the winners of the Washington University scholarships have been announced by four schools. The winner at Yeatman has not yet been determined. The winner at Soldan High School was Miss Edith Virginia Conzelman, 18 years old, of 5043 Vernon avenue.

At McKinley High School the scholarship was won by Miss Arline Marie Prichard, 17 years old, of 2015 Park avenue. Her average for the four-year course was 95 97-100 per cent.

The winner at Central High School was Max Rodolsky, 18 years old, of 4643A Page boulevard. Miss Mabel Benson won the scholarship at Grover Cleveland High School.

NEW FIGURES PUT RED CROSS TOTAL FOR COUNTY AT $140,472

Earlier Report Said to Have Failed to Include Contributions of $40,370 From Webster Groves.

Reports printed last week of St. Louis County's accomplishment in the last Red Cross campaign do not do full justice to the county, according to Franklin Kean, who points out that Webster Groves had an independent chapter, whose reports were not included with those of the rest of the county.

Kean has given out the following figures as the true contribution of the county, with some small amounts yet to be added:

	Quota.	Subscriptions.
Webster Groves	$30,000	$40,370.00
Maplewood	9,000	11,691.74
Richmond Hghts	2,000	2,555.81
Kirkwood	18,500	23,553.19
Clayton	29,000	34,037.48

The total contribution of the county was $140,427.98, and the quota $100,000.

Step Lively! Corns Quit With "Gets-It"

The Great Corn-Loosener of the Age. Never Fails. Painless.

Watch my step? What's the use! I go along "right side up without care," even with corns, because I use "Gets-It," the painless, off-like-a-banana-peel corn-remover. I tried other ways galore, until I was blue in the face and red in the toes. No more for me. Use

Corns Simply Can't Stop Us. We Use "Gets-It"!

"Gets-It." It never fails. Touch any corn or callus with two drops of "Gets-It" and "Gets-It" does the rest. It's a relief to be able to stop cutting corns, making them bleed, wrapping them up like packages and using sticky tape and salves. It removes any corn clear and clean, leaving the toe as smooth as your palm. You can wear those new shoes without pain, dance and be frisky on your feet. It's great to use "Gets-It."

"Gets-It," the guaranteed, money-back corn-remover, the only sure way, costs but a trifle at any drug store. M'f'd by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill.

Sold in St. Louis and recommended as the world's best corn remedy by Judge & Dolph Drug Co.; Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Enderle Drug Co., Pauley Drug Co., Keiffer Drug Co. and Lowell Drug Co.—ADV.

WORK ON MOTORS PLANT WAITS UPON DELIVERY OF DEED

Instrument Expected to Be Ready This Week and Construction Will Follow the Next Day.

HEAVY OUTLAY ON SITE IS PLANNED

Start to Be by Company on 40 Acres, With Steady Extension to Cover the Entire Tract.

By Berry Moore.

According to authentic report, construction of the proposed plant of the General Motors ompany here will be launched the day after the Mercantile Trust Company delivers the deeds to the site, at the northwest corner of Natural Bridge road and Union boulevard. The instruments are in process of preparation by the legal department of the Trust Company, and will be ready to submit this week.

As a start, it is stated that there will be erected on the site a factory occupying 40 acres and which ultimately will embrace the entire 105 acres. An outlay has been authorized for the execution of this project on the most extensive scale. It will comprise an assembling plant and factory for bodies for the Buick, Cadillac, Oldsmobile and Chevrolet automobiles and the Northway trucks, all of which are manufactured by the General Motors Co., the headquarters of which are at Detroit, Mich.

The site comprises 105 acres and was purchased at the instance of R. King Kauffman, vice president and real estate officer of the Mercantile Trust Co. Of this area 98 acres were owned by the Hydaulic Press Brick Co. and seven acres by the Polar Wave Ice and Fuel Co., the latter part being at the northwest corner of Natural Bridge road and Union boulevard. Both holding are embraced in an industrial subdivision laid out and improved by the Hydraulic Press Brick Co., under the switch property department of the Mercantile Trust Co. It is served by the Belt Line of the Terminal Railway Association, which meanders through the subdivision, and which renders the sit highly advantageous for industrial plants.

Real Estate Features Few.

The week was devoid of real estate features, so far as the conclusion of large transactions was concerned, but several deals of more than ordinary importance are in progress.

The most notable of these contemplates the purchase of a commanding Locust street corner as a site for a building for one of the leading trust companies of the city. As executor of the estate which owns the corner part of the site, the trust company is in a fair position to obtain control of the property sought for this purpose.

The Rosenbaum-Hauschulte Real Estaet Co. announces the sale of 190x152 feet on the north side of Olive street, east of Taylor avenue, to the University Investment Co. The site, which is vacant, will be improved with four buildings, each comprising 36 apartments, with stores on the first floor. The building was originally owned by Mrs. Cora Nugent, who gave it in part payment to the Sam Koplar Real Estate and Building Co. for an apartment building on the south side of Berlin avenue, near Belt.

Furniture Company Leases Building.

The Phoenix Furniture Co. has acquired a long lease of the seven-story and basement building at 1226 Olive street, of which it will take possession about Aug. 1.

The concern, one of the largest and best known in the retail furniture line in St. Louis, has been located at the northwest corner of Eleventh and Olive streets for more than 28 years, it having been the first large furniture house to locate on this thoroughfare.

The building at 1226 Olive street, which was occupied for 10 years by the Ingalls Furniture Co., for which it was erected, will be altered and remodeled at a large expense, the Phoenix company contemplating a store on a new and larger scale.

The lease was effected by the Martin-Breitt Real Estate Co. on behalf of Mrs. Marceline R. Sparks, owner of the property.

The International Shoes Co. has leased through the Martin-Breitt Co. the six-story and basement building at 1427-29 Lucas avenue. The building which comprises 40,000 square feet, will be used for a factory for shoes and for the storage of raw material.

The lessee was the L. & A. Scharff Distilling Co.

New University Club at Grand and Washington Avenues Which Will Be Opened in a Few Days

LIBERTY PLACE PUT ON MARKET, SALES TO START NEXT SATURDAY

Northwest District Offered by Greulich Company Embraces 246 Lots Near Big Industries.

The John C. Greulich Realty Co. announces the placing of Liberty Place, consisting of six city blocks containing 246 lots, on the market. Sales will be inaugurated next Saturday.

The subdivision is located at Goodfellow and Florissant avenues and embraces Floy, Era, Mimika, Heights, Goodfellow and Florissant avenues. It has the Bellefontaine street car line, also Wabash train service, Heights station of the Wabash being located on the ground. Regular train service is maintained. The subdivision is also in close proximity to the district which the Pullman shops, Certain-teed Products Co., Bridge & Beach Stove Co., General Motors Co. and other factories have chosen for new plants.

BIGGEST WEEK'S BUSINESS AT RIVERVIEW GARDENS REPORTED

Sales Exceed $8000, Lifting Aggregate Value of Site Transfers to $170,000.

The Riverview Gardens Realty Co. reports its biggest week's business for the current season, sales exceeding $8000, making the total for that North St. Louis tract more than $170,000. Improvements of the Gardens is practically complete. The agents say that he warm weather is bringing out a host of inquirors, many of whom became buyers when it is seen how rapidly the choice locations are being taken.

Riverview Gardens is the only section left in St. Louis having the advantage of view up and down the river. Some high-class homes are being built, especially in the restricted parts facing the river. In the valleys are picturesque sites for summer homes and cottages.

C. M. McDONALD R. E. CO.

The C. M. McDonald Real Estate Co. reports having closed the following sales, aggregating $21,600:

3427-29 Locust street, lot 50x134 feet, improved with two-story building, for the Morbre Realty Co. to a client of the Paul Jones Realty Co.

3015 North Taylor avenue, lot 57x140 feet, improved with an 11-room dwelling, for F. G. Gotwald of Harrisburg, Pa., to John E. Hughes and George C. Welmeier.

5836 Terry avenue, lot 30x130 feet, improved with a four and five room flat, for William P. Nolan to Matilda Meyer.

1352 North Garrison avenue, lot 22 feet front, improved with two-story building for two families, for Rose Sheff of New York City to Max Cohn.

Vacant lot, 30x140 feet, on the south side of Waterman avenue, east of Pennsylvania avenue, for Anton Pohrell, represented by Thomas W. Droege of the Mercantile Trust Co.

Also made loans aggregating $30,000 at 6 per cent interest.

REAL ESTATE MEN TO TOAST ENLISTED DICKMANN BOYS

When Real Estate row learned of the enlistment of Barney and Otto Dickmann, sons of former Sheriff Dickmann, who is now in the real estate business with his sons, the boys on the street determined to give them a send-off which they would remember all the way to France. The two Dickmann boys were enrolled as marines.

A committee, composed of John J. Dowling, J. W. Hannauer, Charles Roeder, C. M. McDonald, Tom Watts, J. P. Young and Edward Thornhill, immediately got into action and engaged Gnauck's "Rest-a-While Inn" on the Gravois road for the occasion. After the chicken dinner, patriotic speeches and singing will be the order of the evening. Thomas S. Ingersoll of Minneapolis, secretary of the National Association of Realtors, who is here in the interest of the national convention, and A. R. Schollmeyer, will be the speakers. Former Sheriff Dickmann will be the guest of honor.

NOVELTY COMPANY LEASES HOME

The Weisels-Gerhart Real Estate Co. reports having leased the four-story building at 517-19 Olive street to the Palace Novelty Co. The building is in lot 25x115 feet. The lease was made for the James M. Carpenter Realty Co., which was represented by James M. Carpenter & Co.

Through negotiations conducted by the Weisels-Gerhart Company, the S. S. Kresge Co. purchased the unexpired lease of the Palace Novelty Co. on 516 Washington avenue, which is part of the site of the S. S. Kresge building now in course of construction at Sixth street and Washington avenue. The Palace Novelty Co. will remove to the Olive street location on June 24.

STODTMAN & STODTMAN.

Stodtman & Stodtman reports the following sales:

Six-room bungalow at 4429 Bessie avenue, for James H. Dille to William Zimmermann.

Six-room bungalow, with one acre of ground, at Jennings, for Holly Real Estate Investment Co. to J. H. Meyer.

Double set of flats, 1411-13 North Nineteenth street, for R. A. Boles to S. P. Forbes.

B. H. Stoltmann R. E. Co., 4006 Chouteau avenue, reports the following sale: 4244 Sarpy avenue, one-story three-room frame cottage, all improvements made, lot 25x130 to alley. Sold for Charles Nabel to Karl Husbauer for $1000 cash. Will make this his home.

MORRIS ACH REALTY CO.

The Morris Ach Realty Co. reports the sale of a lot on the southwest corner of Seventh and Mullanphy streets, having a front of 36 feet, for Milton D. Mendle to George C. Weber and wife.

Also sold the two-story residence at 3063 Lincoln avenue to William E. Nell and wife, a client of R. J. Broaders, who assisted in the sale.

UNIVERSITY CLUB ANNOUNCES HOME OPENING JUNE 18

Construction of 13-Story Building at Grand and Washington Avenues, Delayed by War, Nears Completion.

After a year and a half of construction, delayed by war contingencies, the $550,000 University Club Building, at Grand and Washington avenues, is so near completion that the formal reception for members is announced for June 18.

This is the 13-story structure whose snowy pile dominates the mid-St. Louis district, of which Grand avenue is the center.

The club building is fireproof. The frame is of re-enforced concrete faced on the outside with light gray brick and Bedford stone trimmings.

The design recalls the palace architecture of the Renaissance in Italy adapted to the necessities of the modern tall building.

The club has its own entrance on Washington avenue, with private elevators and stairs to the club quarters, which occupy the top four stories. The tenth floor will be subdivided into 24 bedrooms for members, while the eleventh floor constitutes the main club quarters. On the twelfth floor are the library, card rooms and kitchens, while on the top floor is the main dining room on the south part and the gymnasium and squash courts on the north.

The main entrance to the office portion of the building is in the center of the Grand avenue front, with shops on each side. From the second to the tenth floors the building is fitted for offices, a portion of which is especially arranged for physicians and dentists.

The design of the structure is by Eames & Young, with Guy C. Mariner as associate. The Selden-Breck Construction Co. is the contractor. The building was promoted by Isaac T. Cook.

CHARLES GUNDLACH.

Charles Gundlach reports the sale of 2156 Linton avenue, a five-room bungalow; lot with 50-foot frontage; for Charles L. Friend and wife to Joseph and Cathrina M. Pircher. Gundlach sold this property within six days after it was listed.

HIGHER RAIL RATE NOT TO HANDICAP REALTY CONVENTION

National Secretary Ingersoll Says Central Location of St. Louis Will Attract a Flattering Attendance.

ARRANGEMENTS ARE ALMOST COMPLETE

Booth Being Erected at Union Station From Which Delegates to Meeting June 17-20 Will Be Welcomed.

Tom Ingersoll, secretary of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, yesterday expressed the belief that the eleventh annual convention of that organization, to be held here June 17-29, will have a flattering attendance, notwithstanding the higher passenger rate that will go into effect tomorrow. This is predicated on the central geographical location of the city, according to Ingersoll, who declares that many who otherwise would forego attendance will be present.

"W. A. Giraldin, president of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange, and I went to Washington some time ago," said Ingersoll, "and besought Secretary McAdoo to make a concession in the rate for the convention, but without avail, and all who attend will have to pay the regular fare."

The round-trip rate between St. Louis and Los Angeles, Cal., which at this time last year was $87.50, and which now is $112.50, according to Ingersoll, will be $165 when the increased rate is inaugurated. This naturally would operate, he says, to lower the usual attendance at the convention but for the accessibility of St. Louis, which is the focal point of 28 or more railroads.

City's Dominance Emphasized.

"The fact that the General Motors Co.," Ingersoll added, "has decided to establish in St. Louis its main assembling and distributing plant for the Buick, Oldsmobile, Cadillac and Chevrolet automobiles and the Northway truck, is recognition of the dominant position of this city. And St. Louis was selected for this large enterprise only after the most complete survey and analysis of the industrial situation of the country, and the individual advantages for distribution of each point under consideration in this connection."

Ingersoll, whose home is in Minneapolis but who has been in Washington working for the national Government for $1 a year, came to St. Louis two weeks ago to lend his aid to the local committees in behalf of the convention. He has one boy in the navy and one in the officers' training camp at Fort Sheridan, Ill. Both are students of the University of Minnesota.

All arrangements have practically been completed by the local committees for the convention, according to reports received by James M. Franciscus, general chairman of the Convention Committees, from the chairman of each of the 17 committees of the Real Estate Exchange.

Real estate firms along Realty Row, embracing Chestnut street from Broadway to Twelfth street, have started decorating their offices in preparation for the convention. John W. Gibson, chairman of the Decorations Committee, has supervision of this work. Besides the national colors, which will fly from every office window, large streamers have been provided for the entire row, and will be put in place during this week.

General Chairman Franciscus yesterday announced that Archbishop John J. Glennon will deliver the invocation at the opening of the convention on the afteroon of June 17. The business sessions will be held at the American Theater. Prior to the official opening of the convention, a complimentary luncheon will be tendered by the local exchange committee of the national association and to visiting presidents of real estate boards, at the Planters Hotel. This will be at 12:15 p. m. of the first day. Coincidentally, all visiting secretaries will be given a luncheon at the American Annex Hotel.

Many Autos for Delegates.

More than 200 automobiles have been promised the Automobile Committee for use during the convention. The commitee, headed by C. M. McDonald, hopes to have at least 500 machines at its disposal for the use of visiting delegates. An appeal has been issued to all owners of automobiles, who can spare them for a few hours on Tuesday and Wednesday of the convention week to communicate with Chairman McDonald. The committee points out that it is important to show the visiting realtors all parts of St. Louis and St. Louis County, and to do this fully 500 machines will be needed.

At the weekly meeting of the Finance Committee, held Tuesday, Chairman Wiliam A. Giraldin reported additional contributions to the convention fund, including a substantial one from the Hotel Statler, through its general manager, Frank Hinkley of Buffalo, N. Y. The committee is working diligently and further contributions are expected during the coming week.

Requests for hotel rasarvations are coming in from boards in every section of the country. Reservations now being made point to the largest convention yet held by the association, according to Chairman A. R. Schollmeyer.

B. F. Dickmann, chairman of the Ladies' Committee, has enlisted in the United States Marines, and his resignation as chairman has been received by Franciscus. Tom M. Grace was appointed to succeed him.

Chairman Charles C. Kunz of the Registration Committee, reports that all is in readiness to receive the visiting delegates at registration headquarters in the local Real Estate Exchange. Twelve clerks will assist the committee in registering the visitors. At the time of registering each delegate will be given his official program, entertainment coupons and other convention data.

Arrangements have been completed by Chairman R. King Kauffman for the dinner to be given visiting delegates at the Sunset Hill Country Club on Tuesday evening, the second day of the convention. The dinner will follow an automobile tour through St. Louis and St. Louis County.

An attractive booth is being prepared by Chairman Joseph M. Ebeling of the Welcoming Committee, to be erected in Union Station. Upon their arrival the realtors will be met by the committee and escorted to their respective hotels, after which they will be taken to registration headquarters. Each member of the Real Estate Exchange has been appointed a member of the reception committee, with President Giraldin as chairman. The members will wear an official badge, saying, "Ask Me; I Live Here."

The five-minute talk contest for the Chicago Real Estate Board silver trophy cup will be held at the American Theater at 8 p. m. Wednesday. C. M. McDonald, chairman of the committee in charge of the contest, announces that the judges will be Prof. Isaac Lippincott of Washington University; the Rev. Robert S. Johnston, S. J., of St. Louis University, and George W. Lubke Jr., an attorney.

FOREIGN GOODS FOR DISPLAY MAY GET 'FREE PORT' HERE

St. Louis Expected to Obtain Benefit From Alliance With Company Having Perpetual Federal Grant.

Through an alliance with a corporation that has taken over the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Exchange of New York City, and in which Alfred I. du Pont of Wilmington, Del., is one of the principal figures, it is said to be probable that the Exhibit Corporation, which has undertaken to convert the Southern Hotel into a permanent exhibit institution, will have in that enterprise the home of a virtually "free port."

The Delaware capitalist named is said to be one of the financial powers behind the Allied-America Association of Chicago, which also is an exhibit concern and with which the Exhibit Corporation has entered into a contract for floor space for such displays as are planned to be made in St. Louis as the hub of its national circuit.

Under act of Congress in 1912, the Merchants and Manufacturers' Exchange of New York is made a "free port" in perpetuity. That is, the act permits the exchange to import merchandise of all kinds without payment of duty and place it on exhibition in such buildings as the company may control. When sold the merchandise is subject to duty, and unless disposed of may be returned to the country from which it came without such payment. The DuPont company has acquired the leasehold of the Grand Central Palace in New York, a 13-story structure, and is having it reconstructed as headquarters and display center. It is stated that DuPont, who has large interest in the powder manufacture, but is not actively engaged in that industry, has during the last year been instrumental in forming several large companies, which have entered the field of international trade.

When the Allied-America Association entered into the contract with the Exhibit Corporation, a few weeks ago, it was stated to the officials of the latter that within six months at most it would require fully 20,000 feet of space for exhibits here.

CLIFTON HEIGHTS RISING IN FAVOR WITH HOME BUYERS

Subdivision in Southwest Section of City Given "First Class" Rating in Recent Zone System.

AMPLE RESIDENCES STRIKING FEATURE

Have Served Original Purpose for Family Rearing, and Many Owners Now Willing to Sell.

Inquiries for medium-sized residences have been notable in the southwestern section of the city during the last two weeks. Several additions have been opened along the Tower Grove and Cherokee car lines within the last few years and these as a rule are held by persons who bought for home purposes and are unwilling to dispose of their property except at unusual values. There are, however, older additions where there is property for sale, but as a rule it has not been pushed on the market.

One such subdivision, which is being sought out by prospective buyers, is Clifton Heights, thought by many persons to be a suburban town, but which is well within the city limits. This subdivision has attracted considerable attention because it is the largest tract on the South Side that the recent zoning system marked as "first class," which means devoted to single residences. There are only three flat buildings in or near it.

Some Willing to Sell Homes.

This subdivision is improved chiefly with six and nine room houses, mainly frame, of good architecture and built before the bungalow style prevailed. Many of these homes are owned by families who bought them as a place to rear children, and these children having grown up, there is not the strong desire to retain the ample lots and residences. For this reason a number of them can be bought, although "for sale" signs are not so prominent in this section as in many other parts of the city.

The community has three churches—Christian, Presbyterian and Methodist—and is about the center of the triangle formed by The Epiphany, St. James and St. Aloysius Catholic churches. It has been promised by the School Board that the next 14-room school ordered will be on a site already purchased for this district.

Adjoining the subdivision is the new Wentworth addition, which has been built up with brick residences within the last three years. Southwest to the city limits includes Gratiot, which has built up very rapidly within the last two years.

Tower Grove Car Service.

The community is reached by the Tower Grove line, which ends at Columbia and Tamm avenues. Contrary to the general belief, this car line carries its passengers west almost with the rapidity of the lines running straight west. There is not more than 10 minutes' difference between the time necessary to reach 6400 Columbia and the equal number on the West End lines.

There is no industrial development in this district and the danger of such is remote. There is but one building that could be used for industrial purposes—the old Vera Hall, on the Frisco railroad—and even should this be so used, its location is such that it would draw traffic more from the Manchester car line, which serves other industrial interests between the Frisco and Missouri Pacific tracts. These industries do not affect the residence district.

LAST OF HI-POINTE UNRESTRICTED LOTS IS REPORTED SOLD

More Than One-Fourth Those for Residences on Subdivision Also Disposed of, Agent Announces.

UPBUILDING OF TRACT IS RAPID

Adoption of Landscape Architect's Improvement Plan Declared to Have Been Found Happy One.

More than one-fourth of the lots comprising Hi-Pointe have been disposed of, according to Charles W. de Largy, real estate officer of the Broadway Savings Trust Co., agent for the subdivision. All the corner lots on Clayton boulevard, the only ones in the plat not restricted against business, have been sold.

The upbuilding of this subdivision on a handsome scale is foreseen in the building plans of the purchasers, handsome residences and dwellings of the bungalow type being contemplated for the interior lots and imposing business blocks for the Clayton boulevard corners.

Linking its activities with the early summer demand for home sites in Hi-Pointe, which lies between Washington University and the tract on which is to be erected the vast Christian Brothers' College plant, the Trust Company made great progress upon its improvement undertaking the past week. At the same time the company's salesmen have had few idle hours because of the wide interest among those seeking best locations for future homes.

"We have found it to have been a happy idea that led us to first turn the tract over to Henry Wright, the landscape architect, and to have adopted his plan of curved streets, small parks and other features lending distinction to the subdivision," De Largy said yesterday. "It was an expensive improvement plan, but it has brought to us many who might not have been attracted merely by advantageous location and other considerations of eligibility. It is an enlarged duplication of Brentmoor, perhaps the most popular subdivision ever promoted here, so far as streets and parks go."

ANDERSON-STOCKE-BUERMANN.

Anderson-Stocke-Buermann Realty Co. reports sales as follows:

For Jacob Rubin and wife to Anton Loddeke the double flat at 4205-05A-07-07A De Tonty street, containing four flats each, on lot 46x135 feet.

BEAUTIFUL COUNTRY PLACE

"Crag Darragh"—

Near Sunset Hill Golf Club

A charming all-the-year country home with every city convenience.

THE house—built of stone and unique and individual in both design and environment—is located on a high wooded knoll which overlooks the picturesque Meramec Valley, and the grounds border the Sunset Hill Golf Club Links. It has 11 large rooms, including a delightful living room (20x30ft.) with beamed ceiling, specially designed fireplace; three bathrooms and extra lavatories; laundry, cold storage and storage rooms; hardwood floors and finish throughout; steam heat. Designed and construction supervised by T. P. Barnett.

There is both garage and stable, and cottages for the help. County water and electricity. The house is built on heavy stone foundation, reinforced with steel girders—built for the owner's use and its many special features must be seen to be appreciated.

This mansion may be had with 12 acres or more (up to 78). May be inspected. Take Robyn Road from Denny—half-mile West of Sunset Club. Good automobile road to door. Apply at house—'phone Bell, Kirkwood 116—or to

THE VIEW FROM

Beautiful Riverview Gardens

Riverview Gardens—the Marvel of the Realty Market.
$170,000 in Sales Already.

Reasons: First, Riverview Gardens is the only spot in St. Louis where a home site may be had overlooking the great Mississippi. Second, its marvelous natural beauty—rolling, well-drained ground, shaded with the forest trees and cooled by the breezes from the river. You'll have to hurry.

315 acres, divided into large tracts 100 ft front and from 170 to 400 ft. deep. Prices from $320 to $1000. Terms $25 down, $10 per month without interest or taxes for one year. Title perfect.

Take North Broadway car to Baden avenue and change there to Municipal line direct to Gardens, or call office for appointment.

PARADISE

for the man with a Motor

JUST enough of the open to make it country, just enough of distance to make it suburban—yet with every possible city convenience, and at a price no sane man can afford to ignore. Such is

Hi-Pointe

Thousands of automobiles pass this property and you who ride by why not stop and investigate this most attractive residence section — the aristocrat of all subdivisions? You can still buy some good lots at

$40

You will have no assessments for making streets or laying sewers. The price includes paving, curbs and sidewalks with all gas and water mains laid and electric light and telephone poles up. The one figure price covers everything. Even the alleys will be paved.

And if you seek an investment, here it is, and as safe as realty can be, which is absolute safety. Buy now and hold for the rise. It's on the way and the shrewd and the knowing will find here the best thing they ever bought.

The Highest Point in St. Louis

Right here at Skinker and Clayton, the particular area known as Hi-Pointe is the very highest you can ever buy. It means health, glorious health for the man who erects a home and thus provides his family with ideal living conditions.

Stores, schools, churches? Yes, across the way, and directly opposite is Forest Park—a perpetual park to add to the value of your own park-like possession.

Investigate! Stop today and see just what we have to offer you. Take the Market street line direct, Hamilton Av. line now being run through property.

14 TARDY CANDIDATES FILE DECLARATIONS

Election Commissioners Hold Open Offices Until Midnight.

Fourteen Republicans and Socialists yesterday filed declarations of candidacy for nominations at the August primaries, notwithstanding the ruling of the Secretary of State that Thursday was the last day on which such announcements could legally be made. The Board of Election Commissioners kept their offices open until midnight to accommodate tardy candidates.

Among those who filed declarations was Former Assistant Circuit Attorney Richard M. Johnson, who is a candidate for Clerk of the Court for Criminal Causes.

Ernest C. Dodge, Republican, announced himself as a candidate for a six weeks' term as Judge of the Circuit Court.

John C. Boepple, who filed Thursday as a candidate for Republican Committeeman from the Sixth Ward, yesterday made a declaration of candidacy for the office of Justice of the Peace in the Fourth District.

George T. Kollas, former member of the House of Delegates, filed as Republican candidate for committeeman from the Fourteenth Ward, opposing Edgar S. Nicolai, who now holds that position and is a candidate for re-election. Nicolai is also Clerk of the Board of Aldermen and is a candidate for the office of License Collector.

Former Republican City Committeeman Maurice J. Gordon declared his candidacy for the office of Representative from the First District.

Frederick L. Heinrichsmeyer filed as a candidate for the Republican nomination as Constable of the First District.

S. L. Weiner, Republican, joined the race for the Republican nomination as License Collector, for which office there are now four candidates.

K. S. Preissle, Republican, filed his candidacy for nomination as Representative from the First District.

Charles E. Osterman filed for the Republican nomination as Clerk of the Court of Criminal Correction.

Arthur G. Printz, Republican, filed his declaration of candidacy for the office of Justice of the Peace in the Second District.

Socialist candidates who filed their declarations of candidacy for various offices were: D. Onken, for Justice of the Peace, Seventh District; Jacob Grimm, committeeman, Twenty-fifth Ward; Charles A. Seifert, committeeman, Twenty-sixth Ward; Emil Simon, committeeman, Fifteenth Ward.

Edward H. Rabenberg, whose name appeared in the Post-Dispatch yesterday as candidate for the Republican nomination for the office of Representative from the Second District, filed as a candidate in the First District, and his name should have been so listed.

COMMENCEMENT AT WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY ON THURSDAY

President James of University of Illinois Will Speak—Diplomas to 169 Students.

Graduation exercises will be held at Washington University Thursday, beginning at 9:15 a. m. The principal address will be delivered at 10 a. m. in the David R. Francis gymnasium, by President Edmund J. James of the University of Illinois, following which Chancellor Hall will confer degrees. Senior classes, exclusive of medicine, law and dentistry, contain a total of 169 students.

The exercises will include the presentation of two stone benches to the university by the classes of 1917-18, an academic procession from Graham Memorial Hall to the gymnasium, and there will be a luncheon for the graduates by the Washington University Union, on the walk north of Liggett Hall, at 12:30.

In some of the classes for professional training, such as law, there had been a decrease in enrollment during the last year, due to the war, but not nearly so pronounced as in other large universities.

AIRPLANE MAIL STAMPS ON SALE IN ST. LOUIS

Miss Katherine Stinson to Attempt to Fly From Chicago Here on June 22.

Airplane mail stamps have been on sale in St. Louis for a week, it was learned yesterday upon announcement that Miss Katherine Stinson would fly from Chicago to St. Louis on June 22 to test the feasibility of establishing regular airplane service between the two cities.

The stamps sell for 24 cents each and are useless as far as St. Louis business men's ability to use them to hurry up delivery is concerned. Many persons have bought them as souvenirs. The stamps may be used as regular postage, but they will only get airplane service for a letter mailed in a city where airplane service is established. A letter mailed in St. Louis for New York would not be picked up en route by an airplane carrier.

Postmaster Selph and J. S. Bemis, president of the Aeronautical Society of St. Louis, will tour the city today to select a landing place for Miss Stinson.

Frieda Hempel Married.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 8.—Miss Frieda Hempel, colatura soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Co., and William B. Kahn, a prominent business man, were married here today at St. James' Church by the Rev. Dr. J. B. Reminsnyder. Miss Hempel, German-born, by her marriage became an American citizen.

Dynamos, drills and other machinery offers appear from day to day in the Post-Dispatch Want pages.

TRADING ONLY FAIR IN NEW YORK CURB MARKET

Houston Oil Is Strong Issue During Week at New High Record.

NEW YORK, June 8.—The trading on the Broad street curb this week generally showed an uncertain tone, with frequent advances and declines, but the majority of issues recorded losses after numerous rallies and reactions.

Aetna Explosives was strong for a time, selling at 14¾, but dropped to 15⅝ on the decreased earnings shown in the April statement. Curtiss Airplane, which was active early in the week, selling at 37½, later dropped to 34. Wright-Martin ranged from 10¼ to 9¾, and Submarine was traded in from 16¾ to 16.

There was evidence of accumulation of the motor stocks for special purposes. Chevrolet sold early at 128, and after dropping to 122 rallied to 127, with the trading almost wholly connected with arrangements for the absorption of the property by General Motors. There was evidence of accumulation in United Motor, which after dropping from 28¼ to 26¾, rose to 27⅜.

Houston Oil Is Strong.

A feature of the trading in the independent oil stocks during the week was the advance in Houston Oil to the new high record of 68¼. After reacting to 58⅜, the stock again rose to above 68. Merritt Oil dropped from 26½ to 21¼, but recovered this loss yesterday. Midwest Refining, which sold at the beginning of the week at 113, dropped to 105, with a rally to 108. Sinclair Gulf ranged from 17 to 19⅝.

Mining stocks were irregular, a feature of the trading being an advance in West End from 81 cents to $1.12. The buying was attributed to expectation of a favorable decision in the suit of the company against the Jim Butler Mines. Jim Butler dropped from 72 cents to 65 cents.

The appearance of new interests in Big Ledge was reflected in an advance in that stock to 1¼. Mother Lode developed weakness because of dissatisfaction over the proposed deal by which the present shares are to be exchanged for those of the new corporation, the new stock dropping from 4½ to 3⅜.

Bank Statement.

NEW YORK, June 8.—The actual condition of clearing-house banks and trust companies for the week shows that they hold $44,118,210 reserve in excess of legal requirements. This is an increase of $11,165,280 from last week. The statement follows:

Actual condition—Loans, discounts, etc., $4,493,719,000; decrease, $11,809,000. Cash in own vaults, members Federal reserve banks (A) $100,677,000; increase, $1,967,000. T. P. A. DELEGATES WILL BE HERE TODAY FOR CONVENTION

Commercial Travelers Arrange Big Program for Twenty-Ninth Gathering.

Hundreds of traveling men and their families will arrive here today to attend the twenty-ninth annual convention of the Travelers' Protective Association, which will be held at the American Theater. The guests will register at the American this morning between 8 and 10 o'clock. This afternoon they will attend the baseball game at Sportsman's Park.

The convention proper will begin tomorrow morning at 10:30. It will open with addresses and patriotic songs. The afternoon will be devoted to memorial services. Tomorrow night, following a dinner for the national officers, there will be an informal dance for the delegates and all local members of the T. P. A. at the Arcadia, 3519 Olive street. All business sessions are open to the local members of the T. P. A.

The object of the T. P. A. is to obtain for commercial travelers recognition from railroads, favorable terms of transportation, favorable hotel accommodations, repeal of all laws enforcing a license tax on commercial travelers, and to elevate the profession.

ROOSEVELT HERE TOMORROW

Col. Theodore Roosevelt will speak in the Coliseum tomorrow night, under the auspices of the National Security League. His St. Louis address is one of two to be delivered in behalf of the League, for which he came West. The other speech was at Omaha last night.

The Colonel is expected to arrive here tonight from Omaha, and will be entertained at a private luncheon at Hotel Jefferson, and probably at one of the country clubs, but will probably make no public appearance except the one at the Coliseum. He is still feeling the effects of his recent severe illness and does not care to undertake the pace of his campaigning of a few years ago.

CATTLE MARKET IS ACTIVE AND PRICES ARE UP

Trade for the Week Is Satisfactory at the National Stockyards.

Reported for the Post-Dispatch by the National Livestock Commission Co., National Stockyards, Ill.

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.

	Last week.	Week before.	Last year.
Cattle	20,400	18,500	26,500
Hogs	49,500	47,100	50,000
Sheep	7,400	7,200	9,800

There was an active trend to the cattle market last week, with closing prices 25c per cwt. higher on fat steers, stockers and feeders, with cows, mixed stuff, canners and bulls 25c to 50c higher.

Prime to fancy beef steers are quoted at $16.50 to $17.85; choice to price, $15.25 to $16.25; good to choice, $14 to $15.25; medium to good, $12 to $14; common to medium, $10.25 to $13; good to choice stockers and feeders, $10.50 to $13.25; medium to good, $10 to $10.50; common to medium, $9 to $10; good to choice stock cows, $8.35 to $8.75; good to choice stock heifers, $8.75 to $9.50, choice to prime fat yearling butcher cattle, $14.50 to $16.50; good to choice, $13 to $14.50; common to medium, $9 to $13; choice to fancy heavy beef cows, $12 to $14; good to choice, $10 to $12; common to medium, $9 to $10; cutters, $8 to $9; canners, $7.25 to $8; good fat beef bulls, $11.50 to $12; heavy sausage bulls, $9.50 to $11.60, and light sausage bulls, $8.25 to $9.50.

In scoring a general advance of 40c per cwt, compared with a week ago on the light and heavy hogs, and 25c per cwt. on pigs and roughs, this trade closed in very aggressive condition, the demand on general account proving satisfactory with an extreme top of $17 for choice light hogs, compared with $16.60 a week ago yesterday.

On yesterday's market the trade throughout was strong compared with Friday, the extreme top being $17.00, with the only exception of note being for pigs which have little support, owing to the fact that eastern orders were very limited for the last day of the week.

Bulk of the good to choice hogs 170 to 250 pounds sold on yesterday's market at $16.60 to $16.95; heavier hogs $16.25 to $16.50; lights, 120 to 170 pounds, $16.75 to $16.95; lighter pigs, $15.50 to $16.50 and rough hogs, $15.25 to $15.50.

In spite of the fact that the week's supply was rather generous, the sheep market maintained a very active trend and closed fully 25c highr on all varieties. Good to choice clipped lambs brought $17 to $17.25; choice fat mutton sheep, $13.50 to $14; choice black-faced breeding ewes, $14 to $15; bucks, $11; choppers, $10; canners, $7. Good spring lambs are quoted at $19.50 to $20.25, the latter price being paid for prime Kentucky and Tenhessee lambs.

COTTON IS UP 27 TO 36 POINTS IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, June 8.—The cotton market was comparatively quiet, but made a generally steady showing during today's early trading.

The opening was steady at a decline of 1 to 10 points, but the market soon rallied, with active months selling about 12 to 22 points net higher, on renewed covering. There was a fair demand for July, especially from houses with New Orleans connections, with that delivery leading the advance, and selling at 26.00c, compared with 23.75c for October.

Weather conditions were considered favorable, although there was a little nervousness over prospects for further local rains east of the river, and no changes were reported in the cotton goods or ocean freight situation.

Realizing caused some irregularity during the middle of the morning, but there was nothing more than slight reactions and the market firmed up again toward the close on Liverpool buying of July and covering for over the week-end. July sold at 26.06c, and October at 22.95c, with the close very steady at a net advance of 27 to 36 points.

MISSOURI'S WHEAT CROP PROMISE IS 50,179,000 BU.

Condition Shown in Joint Report Is 96 Per Cent, and Harvest Drive Will Be on by June 26.

BIG YIELD ALSO IN CORN AND OATS

Freezes Damage Fruits, but Gardens, Especially Potatoes, Are Excellent—Cotton Late, but Doing Well.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 8.—Missouri's wheat crop for 1918 showed marked improvement during May and will yield 50,179,000 bushels, according to a joint crop report issued today by H. A. Logan, field agent of the United States Bureau of Crop Reports and Jewell Mayes, secretary of the State Board of Agriculture.

Wheat stands at 96 per cent of a full crop, oats at 94, corn at 88, apples at 63, hay at 85, pasturage at 90 and potatoes at 97 per cent. Except for hay, the year promises to be a record-breaker in point of production.

Missouri's total wheat yield in 1917 was 27,540,000 bushels, while for a period running over five years the State average was only 31,470,000 bushels.

Following is the report in part:

Harvest Drive on by June 20.

"Improvement was greatest in North Missouri, while the southeast and south central districts went back slightly. Overflow losses occurred in Cape Girardeau, New Madrid, Stoddard counties and along the Gasconade. A few chinchbugs are present in Vernon, Lawrence, Bates and Dade counties, but no county reports Hessian fly. Four counties have red rust, and smut is found at several points. Hail damaged small areas in Ray, Atchison, Chariton, Polk and Morgan. The harvest drive will be on in full force by June 20.

"Winter wheat in the United States is 83.80, against 79.9 last year, an average of 80.8, now indicating 587,000,000 bushels, against 418,070,000 in 1917 and 552,594,000 average.

"Spring wheat acreage in Missouri is more than doubled, now 12,950 acres at 92 per cent, indicating 180,000 bushels. Heaviest seeding in Adair, Nodaway, Harrison, Shelby, Schuyler, Scotland and Livingston counties. Spring wheat acreage in the United States, 22,500,000, condition 95.2 per cent, 91.6 in 1917 and 93.7 average, now indicating 344,000,000 bushels, compared with 232,758,000 in 1917 and 256,751,000 average.

Rains Improve Oats.

"Oats in Missouri improved from rains, especially in the north, where it is too dry. Large areas have short straw. Too much rain south of the river for best development. Smut appears in many sections and hail damaged a few places. Condition 93 per cent, same as 1917, and 83 average; 1918 crop is 1,480,000 acres, indicating 43,400,000 bushels, against 59,200,000 in 1917 and 30,705,000 average.

"Acreage oats in the United States, 44,500,000, against 43,572,000 in 1917 and 39,456,000 average. Condition, 93.2 per cent, against 88.8 in 1917, 89.4 average. Indicated yield, 1,500,000,000 bushels, 1,587,286,000 in 1917, and 1,296,406,000 average.

Hay in Missouri improved slightly. Following a hard winter, spring was too dry for much improvement from recent rains. Condition, 84 per cent, same as in 1917, and 81 average, indicating yield of 3,740,000 tons. Clover is short in north, but good in southern portion. Acreage now 561,000 against 488,000 in 1917. Condition, 90 per cent, against 79 in 1917 and 82 average. Alfalfa acreage is slowly increasing, confined mostly to bottom lands, except in Northwest. First cutting in north was short, damaged by rain, but second is promising. Condition, 93 per cent, same as last June, and 89 average. Hay in United States is 89 per cent against 85.1 in 1917 and 88 average, indicating 107,000,000 tons, against 94,930,000 in 1917, and 95,371,000 average.

Condition of Missouri apples is 60 per cent, against 69 in 1917 and 62 average. Crop damaged by freezes in South, snow in the North in April, dropped the new fruit. Peaches are a failure. Pears, 62 per cent of normal, against 55 in 1917. Watermelons and cantaloupes show better condition than in 1917.

Corn prospects in Missouri are 88 per cent. Stand is generally good, due to careful seed selection. Replanted fields are seen in all sections from poor seed and washing rains. Corn in North is farther advanced than last June, while in South and Southeast sections planting has been delayed two to four weeks by excessive rains. The second cultivation is in progress.

Gardens are good. Cabbage 92 per cent, onions 94. Potatoes are especially good, with 97 per cent on a large planting. Bugs are active.

Cotton was planted late, some replanting from bad seed and wet weather, but in heavy growing counties is now doing well.

General crop prospects, excepting hay, are the best in years. The northern half of the State had a favorable season, but south of the Ozark divide the season was unfavorable and is two to four weeks late. Stock are healthy.

SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH'S REVIEW OF MARKET CONDITIONS

STOCK MARKET IS FIRM ON GOOD CROP OUTLOOK AND BETTER WAR NEWS

Sharp Gains Are the Rule for the Week in Wall Street Trading.

CURB LIST IRREGULAR

Houston Oil at New High Record Is Feature of Outside Market.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 8.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted weekly financial review, says:

"The Government's forecast in yesterday's monthly crop report, of a wheat yield running to 931,000,000 bushels in 1918, was a not unexpected bit of testimony to an almost perfect growing session. Had it not been for a dry spell shortly after the planting of winter wheat last autumn, as a result of which a considerable acreage had to be abandoned, it is entirely probable that this 'June indication' would have been for a total crop of more than a billion bushels.

"Even as it is, a good possibility exists for a general harvest which will exceed the 1,026,000,000 bushels of the famous wheat year, 1915, and will surpass all records in our agricultural history.

"Winter wheat, for instance, which is now virtually at harvest, is almost certain to run beyond the Government's present estimate of yield, for that estimate allows for the acreage reported in April as 'winter killed,' whereas, experience teaches that, in a spring season when weather conditions are wholly favorable, a great part of the crop reported as 'abandoned' will be reclaimed and harvested.

Spring Wheat Favorable.

"Furthermore, the initial estimate on spring wheat in a favorable season is usually far below the actual result. In 1915 the final harvest of spring wheat was larger than yesterday's forecast for the same crop in 1918, but in the crop report of June, 1915, the estimate was smaller than yesterday's by 70,000,000 bushels. The estimate was raised progressively every month between then and harvest, precisely as has already happened with this year's winter wheat crop.

"There will still remain the various hazards of the summer months through which the crop must pass. But the grain trade is agreed that the later wheat has started out under almost perfect auspices, and that the chances are in its favor to an exceptional degree.

"What the harvesting of a wheat crop of the promised magnitude will mean to our farmers, our export trade, our home consumers, our allies and our national prosperity, hardly needs to be pointed out. Very rarely history, if indeed ever, was such an agricultural windfall more opportune.

"The great wheat crop of 1915 came before the present condition of exhausted European reserves had arisen; a crop of a billion bushels, harvested in 1917, would have found the merchant fleet unable to transport it. The coming autumn's great harvest will be gathered at a time when it 's more urgently needed than at any time in a century, and it will reach the seaboard at exactly the moment when the output of new ocean carriers from our shipyards is reaching its maximum.

Stock Market Is Firm.

"The fact that the stock market ends the week with the net changes from a week ago quite negligible, notwithstanding numerous short-lived advances and declines since last Saturday, would seem to indicate that prices have now fairly settled down to the higher level fixed by last month's substantial advance. What this week has tested, more perhaps than anything else, is the question whether the financial community was to be seriously disturbed in mind over the plans for increased taxation. Thus far, the reasonable inference would be that it is taking the matter calmly.

"No doubt, judgment in the matter will be held more or less in abeyance until the actual tax bill is reported from committee, and there is much dislike at the fact that Congress is plunging into its revenue legislation with so incomplete and untrustworthy estimates of what the fiscal year's war costs will actually be.

"But there are at least two reasons why the matter should for the present be taken with greater equanimity than it was when the present tax schedules were being framed last autumn.

"One is that, while the contemplated increase must all along have been taken for granted, surplus earnings and dividends after providing for the tax profits of 1917, have continued so exceptionally large in companies engaged in war work.

"The other consideration is that the committees appear to be recognizing now that a sane and scientific measure must be drawn, which will tax primarily the real 'war profits,' that are the legitimate mark for war taxation. We have probably seen the last of an effort at punitive taxation—for the period of war at any rate."

London Review.

LONDON, June 8.—"It is believed, in financial circles here, that Germany's submarine campaign on your Atlantic Coast is an experiment, its continuance depending on the measure of tangible success. The attitude of your people towards this new development is admired, and we do not doubt your successful handling of the problem. Nevertheless, it is worth while to recall that the self-reliance, resources and chivalry of the allies are the very things which at the outset of the war occasioned the initial mistake of under-estimating the enemy's capabilities, as well as his disregard of humanity.

"The American successes on the Western front have been the brightest feature in an anxious week. The city continues to regard the situation as a whole seriously, although still relying firmly on our ability to hold the position until your full power is operative. Germany is obviously endeavoring at all costs to obtain a decisive issue in France before your full military power can be felt on that front.

"Your Government's policy of heavily increased taxation, in the face of comparatively dear money, excites interest here because our own policy is changed. A close ring has been formed to prevent any financial institutions from giving over three per cent for money.

To Aid War Loans.

"The object is to concentrate resources on the war bonds, which are likely to respond greatly through increased subscriptions in the next few weeks. It must be remembered, however, that we have now a new system, allowing through the Bank of England, special high rates for foreign money held on balance here; the present total of which is fairly large.

"Nevertheless, your policy of fairly dear money, in the face of heavy taxes, if consistent with continued success in Liberty Loan flotations, and with proper willingness and ability to finance the war, will bring you enormous advantages when the war ceases, by restricting any sort of inflation. It is considered, however, that your additional taxation, as proposed, will be a severe test of American patriotism.

"German municipalities are now borrowing in Holland. Spain shows unmistakable signs of being over-supplied with gold, and is endeavoring to increase its internal circulation."

CORN FUTURES GAIN SHARPLY FOR THE WEEK

Buying Lifts Market 3 Cents; Wheat Crop Is 931,000,000 Bushels.

Despite the U-boat raid and a recurrence of peace gossip, the corn market here last week has scored a rapid advance. Torrential rains in Iowa, together with efforts of industries to prepare for any likelihood of harvest time shipping preference to wheat were the chief bullish factors. Compared with a week ago corn yesterday was 3c to 4⅛c net higher. Oats were up 2⅝c.

Although the activities of submarines off the American coast brought about a sudden rush of selling in the corn market the bearish flurry that resulted was quickly ended. A brisk rally followed and then traders devoted attention mainly to the promising crop outlook, until on Thursday the market began to bulge owing to anxiety over Iowa advices of excessive rains and floods.

Reports were also current that cultivation in important sections elsewhere, epecially in the Ohio valley, was being delayed and that receipts were thus likely to be diminished.

Improved cash demand from industries was a later bullish influence, which was subsequently offset to some extent by peace gossip. Yesterday's market was barely steady.

Oats developed strength with corn, but export business lacked volume and a bearish Government report was a restraining influence.

Forecast for 931,000,000 bushels of wheat this year was made Friday by the Department of Agriculture from June 1 conditions. The winter wheat crop was estimated at 587,000,000 bushels and spring wheat production at 344,000,000 bushels. Winter wheat condition was 83.8 per cent of a normal. Spring wheat condition was 95.2, and the acreage 22,489,000. The total crop indicated is the largest on record, with the exception of the billion-bushel harvest of 1915.

Production of oats was forecast at 1,500,000,000 bushels, the acreage 44,475,000 and the condition 93.2.

CHICAGO CORN LOWER AFTER AN EARLY RISE

CHICAGO, June 8.—Corn moved upward in price today, largely as a result of buying in anticipation of small receipts and of increased cash demand later. Opinions prevailed that wheat would be given preference in the movement of grain from producing sections. The readiness with which offerings were absorbed made sellers cautious.

Opening prices, which ranged from the same as yesterday's finish to ⅛c lower, with July $1.36⅞ to $1.37⅛, were followed by a material advance all around, with July at $1.38¾.

Dealers in oats appeared to regard the bearish character of the Government crop report as having been fully discounted in advance. Export inquiry was again in evidence. After opening ⅜c off to a like advance, the market scored a substantial gain to 67⅜c.

Provisions hardened owing to the strength of corn. Trade was light.

Subsequently, profit taking and week-end adjustments of trades more than wiped out the gains. Prices closed unsettled, at the same as yesterday's finish to ½c lower, with July $1.36⅞ to $1.37, and Aug., $1.38.

MRS. CAIN—TheDouay Bible says that Cain's wife was a daughter of Adam, and Cain's own sister, God dispensing with such marriages in the beginning of the world, as mankind could not otherwise be propagated. * * * It is the tradition of the Hebrews, that Lamech in hunting slew Cain, mistaking him for a wild beast, and that having discovered what he had done, he beat so unmercifully the youth, by whom he was led into that mistake, that the youth died of the blows. * * * The mark set upon Cain is supposed to have been a trembling of the body; or a horror and consternation in his countenance.

MRS. J. H. D.—Chief troubles of oleanders are scale and mealy bug. Sponge off the scale, hose will dislodge bug. Sometimes buds open poorly or not at all. This is often due to imperfect ripening of the wood. The flowers are borne on the growth of the year, which should be well ripened in June in order to get many strong buds. Give the plants plenty of light and air and water more sparingly when the vegetative growth seems finished. After flowering, give less water. Protect from frost in winter; keep, if necessary, in a light shed. In April prune back the old wood which has borne flowers and give more warmth and water. Ripened leading shoots may be rooted in bottle of water. Oleanders are poisonous and some have died from carelessly eating the flowers. Cattle have been killed by eating the foliage. E. S. Miller says: "We have good success in rooting ripe wood in winter. Cuttings remain three to four weeks in the sand, with moderate bottom heat. They grow like weeds when potted."—Bailey's Encyclopedia.

I. G. S.—Persons who want to be fat should live an easy, care-free life, eat nutritious, fat-producing foods, take light exercise, keep warm—staying in the sunshine as much as possible—sleep 10 or 12 hrs. every night; in fact, take things easy and not try to keep up with the strenuous life. A dietary for the lean person would be an abundance of fat, salad oil, butter, cream, milk, cocoa, chocolate, bread, potatoes, beans, peas, cereals, especially oatmeal and cornmeal; tapioca, rice and sago pudding with sugar and cream; cake, sweets, honey, syrup and sweet fruits. The thin person should avoid pickles, acid fruits and should eat very sparingly of green vegetables. Light exercise should be taken, especially exercise to strengthen digestive organs. First thing in the morning, take 10 or 15 deep breaths at an open window. Learn to breathe abdominally, as this deep breathing strengthens the stomach and aids the digestion of food. Then try this exercise: Lie flat on back, raise feet perpendicular, bend knees and make legs go as if you were riding a wheel. Better than this would be a ride on a wheel in open air, breathing deep as you ride.

H. A. S.—Flies on cattle: At Minnesota Experiment Station rancid lard, 1 pound, and kerosene, half pint, mixed thoroughly until a creamy mass forms, was found to give excellent results as a fly repellant, lasting two or three days, when rubbed not too thickly over the backs of cows with a bloth or with the bare hand. Similar good results were obtained by applying a mixtnre of three parts of fish oil and one of kerosene, with a small spray pump. A mixture of two parts crude cottonseed oil or fish oil, with one part of pine tar, applied with a large paint brush, was found to be successful [illegible] Mississippi Experiment Station, the effects persisting several days. A mixture of one part crude carbolic acid to about 10 parts fish oil will repel flies two or three days when applied by means of a cloth or sponge dipped into the liquid, squeezed partly dry and passed lightly over the hair. It should not be rubbed in, as it is liable in that case to cause blistering. The following mixture proved the most useful fly repellant tried at the South Dakota Experiment Station: Fish oil, 100 parts; oil of tar, 50 parts; crude carbolic acid, 1 part. This was applied by means of a small hand spray pump. One application proved efficient for two days.

RECEPTIONS.—Wedding reception: Have as many flowers in drawing and dining rooms as one can afford, but there should be no attempt at precise decorations. The blossoms will be most effective if put into jars and vases. A chandelier twisted with asparagus vines sounds pretty, but in point of fact it kills the light and lacks effect. A charming back or green in front of which the newly married couple may receive is made by stretching chicken wire from a frame that may be fashioned by nailing together four strips of wood of desired height and width. Asparagus vine is run through this and a few flowers may be caught in. Ice cream should be brought in after the other food has been eaten, and if molded in fancy forms may be placed on the center tables, serving being done from there. If bride cuts the cake, she does so at this time. It is unnecessary to have maids in dining room at informal supper, though useful for removing dishes. At any evening function where guests are not seated at tables the men are always supposed to wait upon the women, and thus maids may be dispensed with. A good menu for such a supper includes bouillon in cups, creamed oysters, chisken or lobster salad, followed by ice cream and cakes.

W. E. M.—Butterflies: Take small glass jar (say pint glass fruit jar with screw cover) and put ½ inch of cotton in bottom and cover with round paper cut to fit jar. Make a number of holes in the paper with a large pin. When butterflies are to be killed, drop a dozen drops carbon disulphide into jar and drop butterflies in. Carbon disulphide vaporizes in a few seconds and the butterflies are suffocated almost instantly. If chlororm is used many butterflies will recover. If dead butterflies are left in jar all night in atmosphere saturated with vapor of carbon disulphide they will be better relaxed than when first dead and will be more easily mounted. To mount, make groove ⅜ inch wide and ⅝ inch deep lengthwise of a 5-inch soft white pine board. Thrust pin perpendicularly through thorax (the part the legs are fastened to) and down to bottom of groove. Spread out wings with toothpick until lower edge of front wing is at right angles with groove and hinder wings in natural position, as shown by the margins. Then hold wings with narrow strip of thick paper pinned over them into the soft board. After butterfly has dried a week in dry weather it may be removed to case with some bottom to receive the pin. If box is well fumigated with carbon disulphide butterflies will keep many years in airtight and insect tight case. If not insect tight small mites will get in and destroy all butterflies. If their presence is discovered by dust under the mounted specimens, they may be again killed by the same kind of fumigation.

DEATHS

In Memoriam.

In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Maurice Michaelin Hillerman, who departed this life June 10, 1915. Sadly missed by

BROTHERS AND RELATIONS.

In Memoriam.

In memory of my beloved husband and our dear father, Peter Albig, who passed away 20 years ago, June 1, 1898.

Twenty years have passed
Since our father was laid to rest,
But it was God's will
For He always knows best.

Sadly missed by his WIFE, CHILDREN, AND GRANDCHILDREN.

In Memoriam.

In loving memory of J. Herman Belz, who departed this life June 5, 1917.

Silently the shades of evening
Gather round our lonely door;
Silently they bring before us
The dear face we see no more.

Sadly missed by the bereaved
WIFE AND SON.

In Memoriam.

In loving memory of my beloved husband, Warren Decker, who departed this life one year ago June 7, 1917.

Sad and sudden was the call,
One who was loved by all.
There are griefs that cannot find comfort,
And wounds that cannot be healed;
There are sorrows so deep in the human hearts
They cannot be half revealed.

Sadly missed by
WIFE AND DAUGHTER.

In Memoriam.

In memory of my dear niece, Amelia Murphy, who died two years ago, June 5, 1916.

The month of June again is here,
To us the saddest in all the year;
It took from us upon the fifth day
Our dear Amelia and niece away;
And while you rest in peaceful sleep,
Your memory we shall always keep.

Your loving aunt,
MRS. T. SCHUMANN.

DEATHS

In Memoriam.

In loving remembrance of my dear husband and son, Peter M. Egan, who died June 6, 1917.

Days of sadness still come o'er us,
Tears in silence often flow;
For memory keeps you ever near us,
Though you died just one year ago.

Sadly missed by
WIFE, MOTHER, FATHER AND SISTERS.

In Memoriam.

In loving remembrance of our dear mother, Phillapina Gain (nee Recker), who died June 7, 1916.

Just two years ago today
Since our dear mother passed away;
Oh, loving mother, true and kind,
No friend like you on earth we'll find.
For all of us she did her best,
May God grant her eternal rest.

Sadly missed by her CHILDREN.

In Memoriam.

In loving memory of our dear daughter, Clara Harrington (nee Goetz), who departed this life one year ago June 12, 1917.

Although you are gone and far away,
We miss you day by day.
Our hearts are sad and aching,
Since the day you went away.

Sadly missed by little daughter, DOROTHY, PARENTS, MRS. AND MRS. J. GOETZ, SISTERS AND BROTHER.

In Memoriam.

In loving remembrance of our dear husband and father, Henry Knecht, who departed this life two years ago today, June 9, 1916, at Columbia, Mo.

Day by day we sadly miss you,
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the grief
That is within our hearts today.

Sadly missed by
WIFE, DAUGHTER AND SON.

In Memoriam.

In loving remembrance of Frank Newman, who departed this life June 8, 1917.

In his lonely grave he is sleeping,
As the shadows onward fall,
And my lonely heart is weeping,
No more his presence I can call.
Do not ask me if I miss him;
O, there's such a vacant place;
Oft I think I hear his footsteps
Or I see his smiling face.

Sadly missed by ELLA.

In Memoriam.

In memory of my dear son, Chas. C. Gerling, who departed this life June 8, 1917.

A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we love is stilled;
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.
God in his goodness has recalled
The boon his love has given,
And although the body is resting here,
The soul is safe in heaven.

Sadly missed by
MOTHER AND SISTERS.

In Memoriam.

In loving memories of our dear mother, Debora Rosenstein, who departed this life June 10, 1917.

Sad and sudden was the call
For my dear mother, loved by all.
We little thought on that day she would be called away.
We saw her suffer, saw her sigh,
But God, who loves her best,
Has taken her home to rest.

Sadly missed by her children.
LOUIS ROSENSTEIN,
ELIZABETH ROSENSTEIN,
JOSEPH ROSENSTEIN.

In Memoriam.

In loving memory of my beloved husband and our dear father and brother, Michael Kissel, who departed this life four years ago, June 9, 1914.

A shadow fell upon our lives
When death, the reaper, came
And took our father, dear,
Away from earthly care and pain.
But some time, some day, our eyes shall see
The face we love so well;
Some time our hands shall press in his
And never say farewell.

WIFE, DAUGHTER AND SISTER. (c)

In Memoriam.

In loving remembrance of my onlp darling child, Leroy George Bucher, who departed this life Tuesday, June 6, 1916, aged 11 years.

A bud the Great Gardener gave me,
A pure and loving child.
He gave to my keeping to cherish undefiled.
Just as the bud was opened to the glory of the day,
Down came our heavenly Father and took my darling away.

So sadly missed by his MOTHER, MISS L. HACKER, AND GRANDPARENTS, MR. AND MRS. W. HACKER.

In Memoriam.

In loving memory of our dear wife and mother, Lydia Schauwann, who departed this life June 6, 1917.

Just one year ago you left us.
How we miss you, mother dear,
And remember all your kindness,
As we drop a silent tear.
Sad and sudden was the call
Of our dear mother, loved by all;
We little thought that on that day
Our dear mother would be called away.
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But little know the grief within our hearts concealed.
She shall never be forgotten,
Never from our memory fade;
Loving hearts will always linger
Around the grave where she is laid.

Sadly missed by
HUSBAND AND CHILDREN.

In Memoriam.

In loving memory of Geraldine M. Keller (nee Burgess), who died June 4, 1916.

In the graveyard softly sleeping,
Where the flowers gently wave,
Lies the one we love so dearly
In her lonely, silent grave.
Those who saw her in her casket,
Pure and white and, oh, so fair,
Tho't she was the light of heaven,
As she lay so sweetly there.
Just two years ago today she left us,
How we miss you, Geraldine, dear,
And remember all your kindness
As we drop a silent tear.
Day by day we sadly miss you.
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the grief
That's within our hearts concealed.
Some time, some day our eyes shall see
The face we love so well;
Some time our hands shall press
With hers and never say farewell.
Her merry laugh we hear no more,
The voice we love is stilled,
And all that is left for memory
Is her grave on a distant hill.
The memory of her beautiful life
Is engraved upon the hearts of those who loved her.

The War's Demands

Have probably taken a major part of the cash which you had intended investing in a new car. Has it occurred to you that many used cars are as dependable and good looking as new ones? And cars that have only been driven one-tenth of their allotted mileage can be bought at less than one-half their original cost. We make a specialty of renewed used Cole Automobiles and have an assortment of touring cars and chummy roadsters. Every one a bargain.

Headquarters FOR USED CARS

Before hot weather arrives we are going to clean house. That means some real honest-to-goodness bargains. There are demonstrator cars which have had the best of care—rebuilt cars in which the worn parts have been replaced with new. Being late models and refinished they are extra-good-bargain-priced used cars that are as good as new.

You can take the same pride in these cars that you would if you bought them new at full list price, plus freight and war taxes. They are cars you can be proud of:

Studebaker, series 18, 3-passenger roadster, 6-cylinder, rebuilt and refinished; has had best of care; $300 down and $75 per month for 10 months.

Studebaker, series 17, 4-cylinder, 5-passenger; new paint and good tires; $300 down and $50 per month for nine months.

Maxwell, 1916; 5-passenger; rebuilt and in good order; $250 down and $50 per month for seven months.

Overland, 1916, model 83; 5-passenger; good car at a low price; $250 down and $40 per month for 10 months.

Mitchell, 1916; 5-passenger; rebuilt and repainted; in fine order; self starter; $300 down and $50 per month for seven months.

Studebaker, 18 series, 4-cylinder touring; rebuilt and repainted; good tires; $300 down and $50 per month for 10 months.

Studebaker, 1914, 4-cylinder, 5-passenger; rebuilt and repainted; good order in every way; $200 down and $50 per month for six months.

Studebaker, 1915; 6-cylinder touring; new paint; good tires; $250 down and $50 per month for eight months.

Also a nice lot of other bargains.

HarWard Piston Rings

Meeting with wonderful success.

HarWard Mfg. Co. report they have recently contracted for 30,000 HarWard rings in Kansas City, Mo., also closed Chicago territory with initial order of 50,000 rings.

The HarWard is a one-piece piston ring, with many new features. L. S. James, who was recently appointed general sales manager, has employed several salesmen, among them W. S. Speer, city sales manager. Mr. Speer is well known among the automobile trade, and states all HarWard ring users are boosters.

HarWard Mfg. Co. is adding new machinery, and expect to double their production in the next few weeks. (c)

SAVING GARBAGE BY FEEDING IT TO CHICKS

Food Administration Announces Result of Massachusetts Man's Experiments.

Successful results announced by the United States Food Administration following the feeding of city garbage to hogs, have stimulated interest in the use of garbage along other lines. An interesting contribution to the pool of experience is a letter from a Massachusetts poultryman who outlines his results from feeding garbage to poultry on a large scale. Two kinds are fed—"house" garbage and "hotel" garbage. The latter is secured from hotels, restaurants and clubs, and contains a greater proportion of edible food than the "house" garbage, which is obtained from private homes.

"I feed a flock of 1500 free-range pullets," this poultryman writes, "for four months (July, August, September and October) each year on house garbage, and in November they go into the laying house in excellent condition. I do not feed garbage to chicks until they are strong and well feathered. Furthermore, it can be fed successfully to young stock only during the warm months. Eating wet garbage chills small chicks in the cold spring or fall months.

"We have two movable platforms on our range in which the garbage is fed. A two-horse team drives up and deposits the loads in barrels on each platform. We then spread the garbage out on the platforms two or three times a day, and let the chickens pick it over thoroughly each time. At the end of the day we scrape the platforms clean. So thoroughly is the garbage picked over that there remains scarcely a bushel from an entire load.

"The other grade of garbage—hotel garbage—is fed young stock in V-shaped troughs. When feeding hotel garbage which has much water in it, I stir in 12 quarts of bran to about 60 quarts of garbage and mix well before feeding.

"We have our layers in free-range flocks, 1000 in a flock. Their feed consists for each flock of 72 quarts (6 pails) of hotel garbage in the morning. At noon they are fed the same and at night about 36 quarts of grain. Dry mash is kept before them at all times. Flocks fed this way have laid better for me than those fed entirely on a grain ration."

Precautions to Observe.

The chief precautions to observe in feeding garbage to poultry are these:

It is not a suitable food for chicks less than 10 weeks old, nor for breeding stock.

Platforms or troughs used for garbage feeding should be moved frequently, and the ground worked to prevent souring of the soil as well as more thoroughly to distribute the added fertility.

There must be sufficient land for keeping garbage-fed stock separate from breeders and baby chicks.

When more than one grade of garbage can be secured, give the better grade to the laying hens.

The Food Administration believes this subject of sufficient importance to merit the consideration of poultrymen, and will receive, with interest, any additional experience in this branch of garbage utilization. Details of methods and results are especially desired.

Nest Eggs Attract Hens to Places for Laying

Tests carried out at the Iowa Experiment Station poultry plant show that nest eggs of any kind make the nests more attractive to hens. This fact has been commonly understood for many years, but the Iowa experiments show just how much the hens prefer the nest eggs on a percentage basis. When given free choice 83 to 87 per cent of their eggs were laid in the nests containing the nest eggs.

Four kinds of nest eggs were used—natural, wooden, china and plaster of paris eggs. The plaster of paris eggs seemed to be the most attractive to the hens, for most of their laying was done in nests containing thees eggs. Strange as it may seem, the wooden eggs came next as to choice, even excelling the natural eggs in this respect, which were third in the list. The china eggs came last.

No proof has yet been given that nest eggs will make hens lay more eggs than otherwise, but the benefit in the use of nest eggs is realized from the fact that they tend to induce hens to lay where you want them to. They discourage the hiding of nests and lead the hens to lay where the eggs will be safe until gathered.

FAILS TO BLOCK FORECLOSURE

Woman Said She Did Not Sign Deed.

Judge Jones yesterday refused to grant a temporary injunction restraining Charles A. Bennett from foreclosing on a deed of trust held by him against property at 3023 Clay avenue, which is occupied by his son, Alvin W. Bennett, and the latter's wife as their home.

The injunction was asked by Mrs. Bennett, who said she did not sign the deed, although her name was affixed to it. She asked that the document be canceled. Her husband said that she signed the deed.

THE 1918 APPLICATION OF AN OLD FABLE

AESOP tells the story of the Ant and the Grasshopper, in which the grasshopper, jumping about a field one summer's day, and singing and enjoying himself to his heart's content, came across an ant, struggling to carry an ear of corn to his nest.*

The grasshopper inquired why he did not stop awhile and talk, but the ant replied that he must store up food for the winter so that he would not go hungry when cold weather came and food was scarce. The grasshopper, unheeding, went on enjoying himself, but when winter came he slowly starved, after seeing the ants well fed from the grain which they had laid up. The moral of the fable was "It is best to prepare for the time of necessity."

Here we see Miss Carefree skipping about on the lawn, while her young aunt works on the winter's store of mufflers and sweaters for our soldiers and sailors abroad. The question is: Which shall it be this summer, the yarn ball or the tennis ball?

AFTER TWO MONTHS OF DAYLIGHT SAVING HOW DO YOU LIKE IT?

Canvas of offices, stores and factories indicates that it has almost unanimous approval in St. Louis—Thousands of persons taking recreation in Public Parks and elsewhere of kinds they never took before—"It's like getting a present of an hour," worker says and the bosses agree that it is "fine"—Little, if any, saving of coal here -:- -:- -:- -:-

DAYLIGHT saving, after having been on trial a little more than two months, may consider that it has a vote of confidence so far as St. Louis is concerned. Of the 162,032 persons in the city who cast ballots in the last national election, at least 162,000 are "for" the new idea, and perhaps the other 32, too. In office, store, factory, or wheresoever "How do you like daylight saving?" may be asked, the answer is uniform to this effect:

"It's all RIGHT!"

Boss and worker agree on that point if not on all others.

A search in many directions discovers only one business that pushing the clock forward an hour for the summer has injured, and the men in that line approve the scheme, on patriotic grounds, in spite of the harm it is doing them. They are the operators of airdomes.

There is, however, one set of downright objectors to the whole business. It comprises those youngsters who have not yet outgrown early bedtime hours. That may sound like a joke, but it isn't. Ask the mothers. They will tell you how much argument and persuasion it takes to induce a lively little son or daughter, pretty much awake at any time, to go to sleep in broad daylight.

Generally speaking, daylight saving appears to be achieving what was promised for it. Whether it is causing any marked saving of coal in St. Louis, through the burning of less light, is open to question, but the extra hour away from work afternoons is turning thousands of persons to healthful recreations in which they never before have indulged, including the doubly useful one of thrift gardening.

The public parks never before have had so many visitors. Commissioner Cunliff approximates the increase in their use in the last two months, in comparison with April and May of last year, at 200 per cent.

"The bulk of this increase," he says, "is due to daylight saving. We know this because of the flood of people that begins to come into the parks about 5 o'clock in the afternoon that did not come in former year. It is made up of persons who formerly took little outdoor recreation, but went directly to their evening meal from work. Daylight saving has caused them to change their schedules. They come to the parks now from work and some of them play games until 8 o'clock or even later before going home to eat. I have lately seen golfers at it as late as 8:45. Not a few of the men have their families come to the parks and join them, bringing lunches.

"We are glad to see all this and are trying to do our part. For instance, the Forest Park Zoo is kept open two hours later than formerly and we are encouraging the formation of a 'twilight' baseball league, whose games will be played in the late afternoon at Fairground, O'Fallon and other parks. We are now considering the question of night lighting on the Forest Park tennis courts. Play starts on the courts and golf links as early as 5 o'clock in the morning, and we are working double shifts of help to serve the players. The extra hour for recreation in the afternoon is making many differences. It is resulting in more definite use of the public parks.

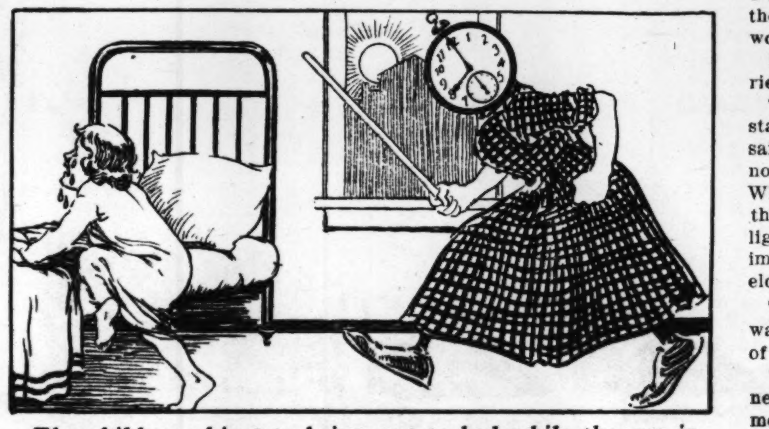
Employers and employes in several large establishments were equally enthusiastic over daylight saving.

"Of benefit to the employe, daylight saving is bringing directly observable benefits to our business," said an official of a department store. "The change of an hour in time now brings our people to work while the morning is still cool, and they get a 'good start' for the whole day. We observed in former years that the last hour of the day in hot weather was probably the most trying of the day for our help and daylight saving permits them to escape going through it at the store. What I say for our employes applies to myself. I personally enjoy the earlier morning start and the earlier getting away in the afternoon. I'm playing more golf than I ever did before."

"Finest thing that ever happened," is what the president of an employes' welfare association in one of the big stores said. "It scarcely seems possible one hour could make so much difference as it does."

The woman welfare secretary in one of the stores touched on a point mentioned by no one else and which might be bigger than it looks at a glance.

"Some of the girls are so situated," she said, "that they still have to depend on such time as they can get after the supper hour for recreation. The extra hours of daylight permits such girls to walk or to sit in the parks and get the fresh air they need and to return to their homes before dark."



The children object to being put to bed while the sun is still shining.

A young woman clerk gave her answer a turn which seems to sum up a pretty large part of the whole daylight saving idea.

Purposes of Daylight Saving; What It Is Doing in St. Louis

WHEN the "daylight saving" bill was proposed in Congress it was said that if it were passed its principal effects would be:

Great saving of illuminants, such as oil, gas and electricity, with a marked conservation of coal as a result.

Increased manufacturing productivity as the result of improved working conditions.

General benefit to the national health because of an additional hour of daylight for recreation.

Reduction of the cost of living through home gardening.

ON the first point no statistics are yet available, but probably no great conservation of coal has come from daylight saving in St. Louis for the reason that electricity is chiefly used for lighting, and in the summer time the city gets a large proportion of its electric current from the Keokuk dam; there may be, however, a considerable saving to individuals on their light bills because of the shorter length of time lights are burned at night.

In all other respects it may be said that so far as St. Louis is concerned daylight saving is meeting every claim made in its behalf.

"It isn't really so hard to get up a little early in the summer," she said, "and then you have a whole extra hour in the afternoon. It's like getting a present of an hour."

The president of a big shoe manufacturing concern needed only a couple of sentences to give his opinion.

"I think it's a fine thing, and everyone around me thinks it's a fine thing," he said. "I believe they like it at the plants, too, but you can go out and ask them yourself."

"I come in contact with thousands of the men and girls and I recall hearing just one of them say he did not like daylight saving," a factory superintendent asserted. "The general expression is a hope that it will be put into effect every summer."

Mrs. A. C. Arnold, chairman of the Women's Food Production Committee in connection with the national food conservation movement had a good word to say for daylight saving in its effect on thrift gardening.

"I am sure it has helped," she said, "and probably has resulted in many new gardens. I have been taking a particular interest in the work of the children, and I know they have taken full advantage of the extra hour of daylight after school to work their gardens."

Persons who are ill are direct beneficiaries of daylight saving.

"The sick, especially those who are constantly in bed, have difficulty in sleeping," said a physician. "They are susceptible to noises and waken early in the morning. What might be called the quieting down of the town earlier than usual because of daylight saving helps them to get the rest so important to them. The same is true of elderly persons who retire early."

The attitude of the airdome proprietors was expressed by Joseph Mogler, president of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League.

"Daylight saving is hurting our business," he said, "but it is a Government measure, for the benefit of the Government in the war, and we are for anything which will help the Government. We are not complaining, but merely trying to meet the situation as best we can."

Most of the electric current for lighting in St. Louis is supplied by the Union Electric Light and Power Co. Charles S. Ruffner, vice president of that company, said he had no figures by which it would be possible to determine whether there had been any saving of coal because of daylight saving in April and May.

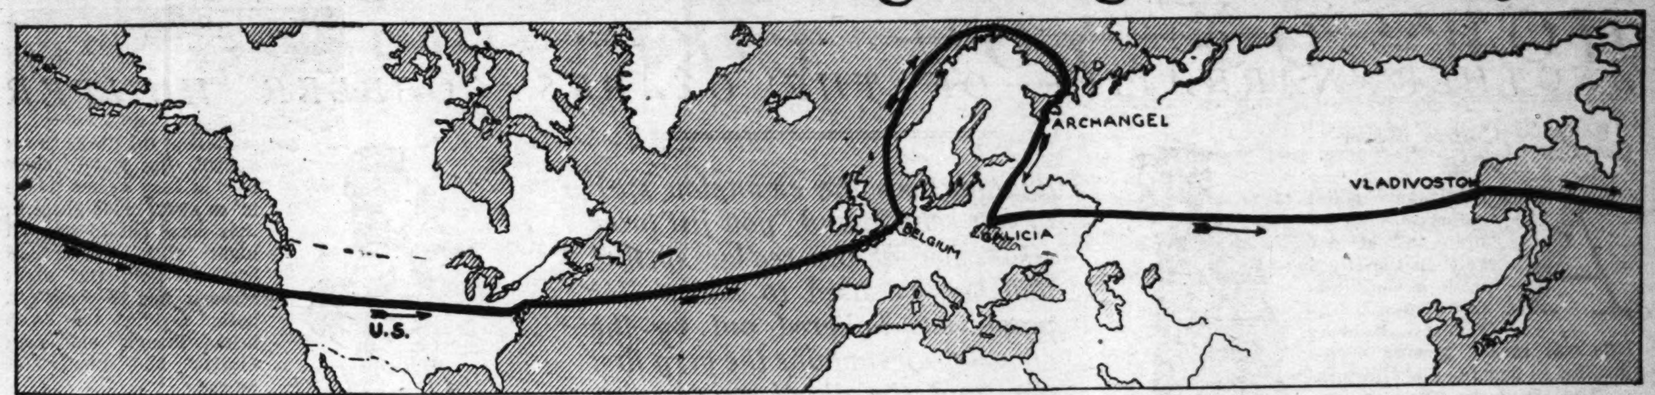
"It is a common fallacy of logic," he said, "that anything which happens after a given event happens in consequence of it. So many different elements enter into the situation that it is not possible to make an intelligible coal consumption analysis and comparison."

Elements which he mentioned as affecting conditions, in comparison with a year ago, were the increase in the number of the company's customers and possible differences in weather, as to whether unusually light or unusually dark. He said daylight saving had had the effect of "flattening out the peak load" of the company's lighting business; that is to say, of scattering the evening demand for current over more hours than formerly.

An official of the Laclede Gas Light Co. said it could give no figures with regard to fuel consumption with relation to daylight saving because it dealt almost exclusively in gas for fuel.

Fuel dealers expressed the belief that the Government's expectations would be realized in cities generating electricity exclusively with coal.

Around the World to Fight Again in Belgium



Route Taken by the Belgian Veterans on Their Journey Around the World.

Early in the war a force of King Albert's soldiers was sent to Russia and traveled 6000 miles to reach the Eastern front—Now all that are left of them have just passed through the United States on their way home and will have completed the circuit of the globe—Stories of their exploits and difficulties they encountered in leaving Russia—Some had brides with them, having married Russian women. :: :: :: :: :: ::

A COUPLE of weeks ago St. Louis was privileged to entertain nearly 100 picked fighters from the most famous fighting organization in France—the "Blue Devils." All of them had been in the war virtually since its beginning, all had been wounded, and all wore one or more medals for bravery.

There passed through the country at about the same time a contingent of soldiers from another country whose records are hardly less brilliant than those of the "Blue Devils," the party consisting of 353 Belgians on their way home after fighting nearly three years on foreign soil.

Early in the war these men, members of an armored motor corps, were ordered to Russia because Russia was in need of armored cars and men to operate them. To reach the Russian front they traveled nearly 6000 miles. When they arrive in Belgium they will have traveled entirely around the world. The story of their experiences is an intensely interesting one, and here it is:

WHEN the Germans swept over Belgium, they left their homes and their families and went out to fight. Quickly the war was transformed into trench fighting and the armored cars were of no use. When a call came from Russia King Albert of Belgium asked for volunteers.

So many stepped forward that count was lost. But of the host of those selected these 353 are the remnants. With their immature tanks, they sailed from a port in France, traversed the submarine zone, rounded the Scandinavian peninsula; then entered the Arctic Ocean. Traversing the White Sea, they landed at Archangel, in the far north of Russia.

Hundreds of miles inland they traveled, and at last they reached Gen. Brussilof. They left France in November, 1915; they attained their destination in time for the June drive of 1916. The journey had been made after more than a year of fighting on the Belgian front. They had gone already from Liege to the Marne, from the Marne to Ypres; some had been in Louvain and Antwerp.

Petrograd and Moscow were visited on their way to Galicia, where they were to fight. In the Russian capital the Czar met them and invited them to Tsarkoe Selo, and in his honor they gave a parade. At that time there was no thought but that Russia would fight as Belgium and France were fighting and as Britain was fighting.

They saw much fighting in Galicia. At one time, when 69 of them were in a front line, only 29 came back. On another occasion they saved an entire Russian division.

This Russian division was hard pressed by the Austrians, who had driven a deep V into their center. Into this the little band of Belgians crashed with their motor cars, fighting with such fury and such reckless disregard of consequences that before the Austrians could rally the Belgians had driven through from one side to the other of the triangle, breaking it completely. Their daring surprised the Austrians to such an extent that they were demoralized, thinking the whole Russian army had swept down on them. As a result, the Russians advanced and captured 20,000 prisoners, many guns and an abundance of supplies. This feat was accomplished by 400 Belgians, with 20 motor cars.

They would have been fighting there yet, according to their own declarations, but the revolution came on and the Russian army was demoralized. They met Kerensky and of him they speak highly. He was everywhere, they said, unmindful of bullets, careless of danger, whether it was from within or without.

Almost all these veterans wear medals, some having six strung across their breasts. They are medals granted by the French and Belgian Governments and by the Russian Government, Kerensky having conferred the Cross of St. George on many of the Belgians.

When it was seen that Russia was through as a combatant, it would have been easy for these men to have scattered and thus ended all fighting so far as they were concerned. Some had married Russian girls and the agents of the Bolsheviki were busy among them. Inducements were offered for them to continue to bear arms for the Bolshevik cause, but these were refused. Belgium needed them, the soldiers said, and to Belgium they proposed going.

But there were obstacles in the way. The Belgians were at Kiev, which is some thousands of miles from Flanders. Also there were the Bolsheviki to be reckoned with. Permission to depart was refused. Then permission to go was given, but the arms must be left behind. Finally a start was made. Then the train was shunted back and the Bolshevik ultimatum given—the Belgians were to stay in Russia.

Quietly, the veterans got out and formed, unloading their machine guns also. There was no more trouble and they were allowed to proceed across Siberia. Their food they purchased along the way. They got to Vladivostok and then to Harbin, where they set sail for San Francisco, arriving there May 12.

Since their arrival in this country they have given the impression of being a lot of boys—boys on an expedition of pleasure. They sing, they laugh, they chaff one another. They tell stories, they play pranks. It is only when their faces are in repose that lines chiseled by the war appear.

In their arms were the same rifles they had borne in Belgium, France and in Russia, and which they purposed bearing again in Belgium. The same bugles that called them in Belgium, France and Russia assembled them here; the same band played on the streets.

As subjects for interviews, they are most unsatisfactory, even those who speak English.

"Our families?" repeated Lieut. Edgar Vanderdouckt, "we do not know of them. The Germans came and"—The officer shrugged his shoulders.

"Yes, but we're going back," said another young Lieutenant," his English precise and formal. "We are going back to fight."

"That is what we are thinking about," continued Lieut. Vanderdouckt. "We are trusting that those near and dear to us have escaped. But until we wrest our land back we can think only of Belgium as a country and not as it relates to any one of us."

In Chicago Lieut. Vanderdouckt was embraced fervently by a middle-aged man. He was an uncle of the young Lieutenant who hadn't seen him since he was a baby, but picked him out almost instantly.

Lieut. John B. Brasseur, one of the escorts of the party, came to America 27 years ago from Belgium and for many years has been an American citizen. Up to 1915 he was a practicing physician in Norway, Mich. But he forsook his practice when the call came, went overseas and enlisted.

Lieut. Brasseur has not been wounded, although his steel helmet has been shattered several times by shells and he has been in the thick of the fighting since he enlisted. His family was visiting in Brussels when the Germans invaded Belgium, but escaped to Holland through friends, and his wife and children are now safe in Christiania, Norway. He has not seen them since 1914.

Lieut. Brasseur is in America on furlough and must return to the front by Sept. 15. He is 53 years old.

Captain-Commander Paul Roze, chief de corps elite, led the Belgian veterans on the Russian front. Capt. Roze wears glasses. One eye is useless—he having been wounded on the Russian front. But he is going back to fight.

There are 11 women in the party, the soldiers who married in Russia taking their wives with them. One of them, a slight woman with a pleasant face, is the wife of Capt. Roze. When the Germans poured into Belgium she escaped into Holland, then into France, and in that country she found her husband. Having found him she would not leave him, so when he left for Russia, she went, too, taking her son, Henri, now 10 years old. When he was wounded she nursed him back to health. To the boy the trip is one grand adventure. He

When Tillyannie Licked the Goos-ites

ANOTHER NARRATIVE OF THE OZARKS GOBBLER HUNTER

By Alice Curtice Moyer-Wing.

Tillyannie was the champion speller of her school, and "you jist orter c-saw her at the reg'lar spellin' matches we used to have. Her name was hollered out by the choosin'-up captains the very first one, and she didn't never miss, hardly." -:- -:- -:- -:-

AMONG the many quaint characters who "drap in" at our shack in the Ozark woods is the "Gobbler Hunter." The Gobbler Hunter's title was earned because of his prowess in bagging the wild turkey, and his stories of actual incidents are peculiarly and characteristically interesting. Here is one of them:

"Ever sence I was knee high to a duck, as the sayin' is, I have felt it in my bones that I could write fer the magazines if I could jist git to the pint where I could turn myself loose.

"Why, when I was a kid there jist wasn't nobody in our school that could come noways nigh to me in writin' compersitions. In fact, I writ all the essies they was fer the boys. Also, fer a right smart of the girls. Law-zee! I can jist see them kids now a-settin' around and a-chawin' their pencils on a Thursday, tryin' to git a idee fer their Friday compersitions, while mine was done wrote and fergot.

" 'Old Hoss,' Billy Bubb would say, 'here's a agate that wins ever game of marbles I play with her. She's a shore dead shot. What'll you take to write me a essie?'

" 'The agate,' I says. Which I did.

"But when I growed up and got married, and the fambly come happenin' along and I was a-diggin' fer a livin', I jist didn't have no time to git down to real business in the writin' line. Oh, of course, I scribbled along and paid postage both ways on a mess of stuff once in a while, jist to sorter keep my hand in. But nothin' serious.

"Then, bime-by, all the fambly was married and gone. Things had went purty well with us on the farm, and me and Tillyannie would set by the old farplace on chilly evenin's and plan what we would likely do with the money I was goin' to earn when I got to writin'.

" 'We'll take a trip to Californy,' says Tillyannie. Tillyannie always did have her heart set on a trip to Californy.

" 'You never was any great shakes on spellin',' she says, after thinkin' a while.

" 'No, I says, 'and I don't know sich a blamed sight about kotation marks and postrofees, but I always did use purty good language,' I says.

"And then I told her about that newcomer from some place down in Texas who says 'you-all' fer 'you'n's.' Some people's grammar is shore enough to make a person laugh.

" 'Remember how I used to turn you down in the spellin' classes,' says Tillyannie, a-laughin' kinder shy, as she comes back to the subject.

" 'I remember how you didn't do no sich thing,' I says, pinchin' her arm. It was a big joke when we was kids and didn't have no idee that we'd ever be a-settin' up with each other, how Tillyannie would whisper on the sly and tell me how to spell the word, even when she was workin' fer the headmarks, which she ginerally got. She jist couldn't bear, somehow, to spell me down.

"You jist orter a-saw her at the reg'lar spellin' matches we used to have at night, with people a-comin' to 'em frum fur and near. Her name was hollered out by the choosin'-up captains the very first one and she didn't never miss, hardly. The thing ginerally busted up with her still a-spellin'. She shore carried off the blue ribbon ever time, so to speak.

" 'But,' says Tillyannie, t'other evenin', a-pokin' up the far kinder vigorous, 'you must git started.'

" 'Yes,' I says, 'I must git started. I reckon it will take a right smart of readin',' I says, 'and bustin' around. Think I'll run up to Sent Louis fer a few days and butt in among 'em, as it were.' Which I did.

"I shore got a heap of information up in Sent Louis. One feller, he told me that you had to know how to use big words and a heap of 'em to write successful. Another told me, confidential, that you must write about high life to make a go of it. He said a "g" on sich words as doin' and put on a heap of dawg. But he was shore discouragin'. I never did go in much fer society and I 'lowed I'd make a plumb gawm at that kind of writin', so he said, then, that he couldn't help me none, as that was his line.

"One feller said that all you need is a plot. Said once a person got a plot that the story would jist natcherly write itself. He said that Sent Louis was plumb full of plots, when you once got the inside track—and there I was again.

"Well, I lammed around in the city fer a week er two, and come back to Tillyannie plumb discouraged.

" ' 'Tain't no use, honey,' I says. 'It's all about the things I ain't had no experience with. That's what the magazines all want—jist the things that I don't know a blamed thing about.'

" 'Go out and git a turkey er two,' says Tillyannie. 'You ain't put a new notch on your old gun fer some time. I'm plumb hongry fer turkey. Maybe you'll find a plot while you're gone.'

" 'They don't grow on trees,' I says to her. 'I shore wish they did grow on trees,' I says to myself, as I set on a log, listenin' fer a gobble. 'I'd walk up to a plot tree, feel of this one and t'other, testin' 'em like they was apples, er somethin', and when I found one that jist suited me, a nice, meller one, maybe, I'd shore pack it home in my britches pocket and set it to work.'

"I 'lowed to myself that maybe I'd take one with a few villains in it—the kind you wouldn't shed no tears over if you was to kill 'em off when they got to rippin' around.

"And, of course, I'd have a girl in it, a girl with blue eyes, I reckon, and yaller hair in long braids a-hangin' down her back, and her cheeks a-blazin' like two roses. Say, if you had a-saw Tillyannie along about the time she rid old Jigger to the spellin' match! Haw! haw haw! I'll never fergit that the longest day I live. Our school was a-goin' to spell agin Goose Creek. We didn't have no more than 15 scholars and the whole caboodle of us was in all our spellin' matches. Most of us ginerally went together in one big wagon, driv by the pa of some of us, but Tillyannie always rid on hossback with her brother, them a-livin' off kinder to theirselves, count of their daddy's land a-takin' up so much room.

"Well, the time fer us to wallop Goose Creek was a-comin' along, and the nigher it got, the wuss we was excited. We heerd that Sam Slinker and his brother Joe was jist a-eatin' their old spellin' books alive, gittin' ready fer it, Sam and Joe bein' the main spellers of the Goose Creek School. But just to show us that they wasn't thinkin' so awful much about it, they come out to stay all night with Tillyannie's brother, Bob, the night afore it was to come off, both a-ridin' the same hoss, though old man Slinker had plenty of hosses.

" 'Say! They's a whole passel of bee trees on the creek jist down below our house about a mile,' says Sam the next mornin'. 'Let's git 'em today.'

" 'Shore,' says Bob. 'We're gitting plumb out of honey. Pa was jist a-sayin' yisterday that he must look up another bee tree somewheres.'

" 'If we could all ride a hoss apiece,' says Joe, 'we could go round by the old Jamison place and make a heap better time. 'Course, we don't want to miss the spellin' tonight.'

" 'Shore,' says Bob. Bob was the obligin'est feller I ever knowed. 'Shore,' he says. 'You jist ride Trixie, and I'll lead her back so's Tillyannie can have her fer tonight. Reckon we won't be gone no longer than noon.'

" 'Reckon not,' says Sam.

"But when noon come, they wasn't no Bob. Four o'clock and still no Bob. At half past five Tillyannie was gittin' oneasy. 'I ort to be started, pa,' she says. 'It's a right smart piece to Goose Creek.'

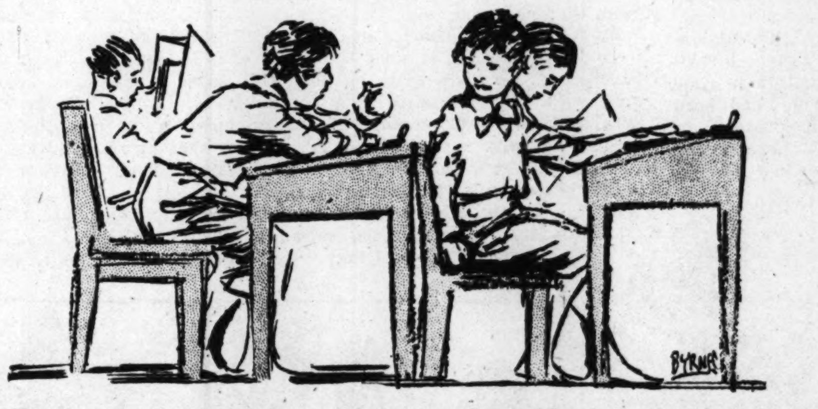
"She looked at her pa and he looked at her. Both of 'em was a-thinkin' the same thing.

"You don't hardly reckon that he'd do sich a thing, do you pappy—Sam Slinker—managin' somehow to keep Bob so I cain't have Trixie to ride?'

" 'His father would a-done it,' says my future father-in-law, sorter ruminatin'. 'Him and me was boys together.'

" 'Pappy,' says Tillyannie, 'I don't aim to let no sich doin's cheat me out of goin' to that spellin'. I'll ride John er Kit. They ain't broke very well, but I ain't afeerd of 'em.'

" 'Shore, honey, if I could only git 'em fer you in time. If I'd only knowed. I jist tuck 'em to the lower farm day before yisterday. And say! Sam knowed it! shore's you live, he knowed it! I met him and his pa on their way to town that mornin'.'



"Here's a agate that wins every game of marbles I play with her. She's a shore dead shot. What'll you take to write me a essie?"

" 'Pappy,' and her eyes got big and detarmined. 'Pappy, when old Jigger was a calf, me and Bob rid him any place we wanted to. And he's growed up gentle. You know he's awful gentle fer a full-blooded Durham.'

" 'Yes,' says Tillyannie's pap, kinder stutterin'.

" 'Well, pappy, they cain't no Sam Slinker come no sich trick over me. Jist put a halter on old Jigger fer me, will you, while I slip into my cloes.'

" 'But, honey'——

" 'Pappy, they cain't no Sam Slinker play no sich a trick on me as that, I tell you. Why, it's to the whole school he's a-playin' it. Goose Creek has jist natcherly got to be licked. Ketch old Jigger fer me, pappy. Right now!'

"Well, say! I never seen sich a sight in all my borned days. The spellin' hadn't commenced yet when Tillyannie comes up a-ridin' that old bull and a-guidin' him with a little short stick she held in her hand, looking like a young goddess—er somethin'.

"A passel of us fellers was a-standin' around a-talkin'. We all looked up and seen her, and Sam Slinker, he commenced a snigger, a snigger that never growed up. The swipe I let him have with the back of my hand sort of stunted it. It was a plumb runt the balance of its life.

" 'Well, her brother ain't here, nohow,' he roared, soon as he could speak fer the blood in his mouth. 'And he won't find his way out of the swamp in time to git here, nuther. Couldn't nobody git out of it in the night, frum the place where I left him a-watchin' a bee tree while I went to borry a ax.'

" 'She can clean up the whole bunch of you without

From Neustrelitz to Dulmen

WE had one bucket in each barracks, and as these buckets were used for both washing and drinking, they were always dirty. We boiled the water when we washed the clothes, to get rid of the cooties, and that left a settling in it that looked just like red lead. We had to get the water from a hydrant outside of the barracks, and for a while we drank it. But after several of the boys had gone west and we could not figure out why, a man told us he thought the water was poisoned, and a Russian doctor, who was a prisoner, slipped us word about it also. So after that, very few of us drank water from the hydrant. I was scared stiff at first, because I had had some of the water, but after that I did not touch hydrant water.

It was a good thing for us that there was always plenty of snow in Germany, and even luckier that the Huns did not shoot us for eating it. It was about the only thing they did not deprive us of—it was not verboten.

I thought I knew what tough cooties were in the trenches, but they were regular mollycoddles compared to the pets we had in the prison camps. After we boiled our clothes we would be free from them for not more than two hours, and then they would come back, with reinforcements, thirsting for vengeance.

The men would sit in the barracks with their shirts off searching for cooties, and they got to calling it "reading the news." It looked just as though they were reading a newspaper. It is not a very nice thing to talk about, but you can figure for yourself how swarming with lice we were when I tell you that we even had them on our shoestrings and in our eyebrows.

It was real labor "reading the news," and I got sick of doing it, so I figured out a way of getting rid of my little friends. It was bitter cold at night, so I soaked my shirt in the water bucket and then hung it on the barbed wire, thinking I could freeze them out. Next morning it was frozen stiff and hard as a rock, and I took it back in the barracks and dried it. It took a long time, and I did not see a single cootie. So I was all swelled up about it, and I told the other fellows I had done the trick at last, and the boys figured that they would have the barbed wire covered with shirts every night.

But when it was dry and I had put it on, I found out that you cannot freeze them. And how they did kick me! I think they were hungrier than ever, because they had not had anything to nibble at all night, and the fresh air gave them an extra appetite. So there were no more shirts hung out on the barbed wire.

The camp at Neustrelitz was surrounded by big dogs, which were kept just outside the barbed wire. We had them going all the time. Every once in a while some fellow would throw a stone at a dog and he would make an awful racket, and the next thing we knew, there was Fritz coming like a shot, with musket at his hip, just as they carry them in a charge, and blowing whistles at each other until they were blue in the face. Whenever they thought someone was escaping they ran twice as fast as I ever saw them run, except when the Foreign Legion was on their heels at Dixmude.

When they got up to the dogs, they would first talk to them, and after that, they would rest their rifles on the wire and yell "Zuruck!" at us. We all enjoyed this innocent pastime very much, and we were glad they had the dogs.

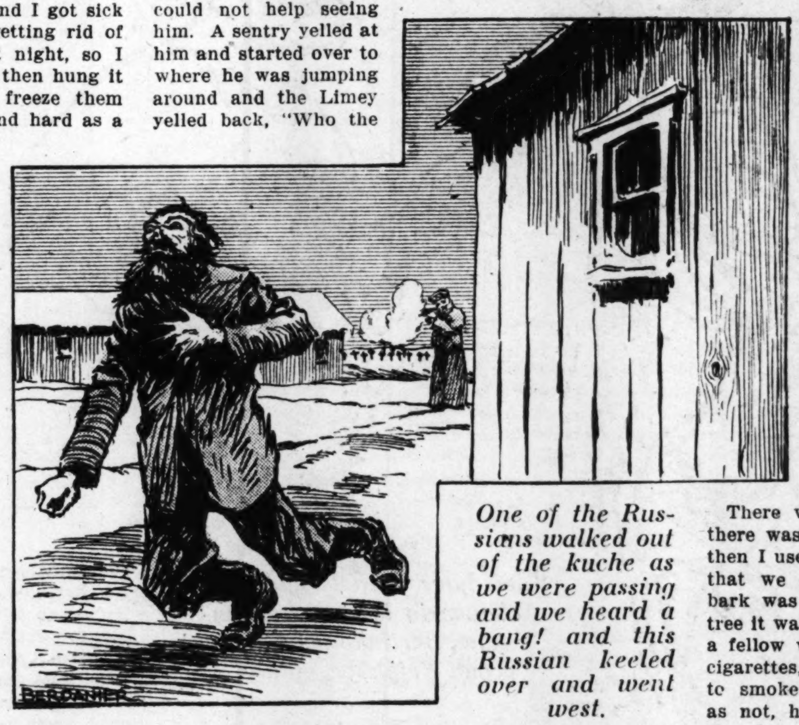
There were some things the Huns did that you just could not explain. For instance, one of the Russians walked out of the kuche, as we were passing, and we heard a bang! and the Russian keeled over and went west. Now, he had not done anything, and the other Russians said he had behaved himself, worked hard and had never had any trouble. They just killed him, and that is all there is to it. But not one of us could figure out why.

After we had been at Neustrelitz for three weeks they drilled us out of the camp to a railway station, and stood us in the snow for four hours waiting for the train. We were exhausted and began falling, one by one, and each time one of us fell, the sentries would yell, "Nicht krank!" and give us the rifle butt. We had our choice of standing up and dying or falling down and being killed, and it was a fine choice to have to make.

Young American sailor tells of suffering of himself and others, as they were transferred in the dead of winter, wearing insufficient clothing and in a state of starvation—Brutalities of the German sentries, how the slightest misdemeanors were punished out of all proportion to the offense, and the never-ending fight with "cooties"

The cars finally pulled in, and, as usual, the windows were smashed, the doors open, and the compartments just packed with snow. When we saw this, we knew we were going to get worse treatment, even, than we had been getting, and many of us wanted to die. It had not been unusual for some of the men to tell the Germans to shoot them, at Neustrelitz, but they never would when we wanted them to, and it seemed as though it was always a man who wanted to live who did get it and went west.

But when they were drilling us into the cars, one of the men had all he could stand, so he got out of the car they had just put him in, and began to dance around so that they could not help seeing him. A sentry yelled at him and started over to where he was jumping around and the Limey yelled back, "Who the hell do you think you are, you dirty German ——!" and we thought he surely would get his.



One of the Russians walked out of the kuche as we were passing and we heard a bang! and this Russian keeled over and went west.

But instead of plugging him, the sentry took him by the arm and put him in his own compartment, and late that night gave him a cigarette stub. So you see, when you want to die, they will not kill you.

However, all of us nearly got killed when we reached Wittenberg. When the train stopped there, we saw a big wagon load of sliced bread on the station platform and we all stared at it. We stood it as long as we could, and then we made a rush for it. But when we got nearer, we saw that there were four sentries guarding it and four women issuing it out to the German soldiers. They would not give us any, of course.

So we stood around and watched the Huns eat it, while they and the women laughed at us, and pretended that they were starving and would groan and rub their stomachs and say, "Nichts zu essen," to each other, and then grab a big hunk of bread and eat it. What we did not say to them was very little indeed. We were certainly wild if any men ever were.

Then some of us said we were going to get some of that bread if we went west for it. So we started a fight, and while they were attending to some of us, the others grabbed and hid all the bread they could. They rousted us back into the cars and we were just starting to divide up the bread when they caught us with it and took it way. We were wilder than ever then, but we could not do anything.

It got colder after we left Wittenberg, and the snow blew into the cars through the windows and doors until we were afraid to sleep for fear of freezing. It was the worst night I have ever seen, and the coal bunkers on the Yarrowdale seemed like a palace compared to the compartments, because we could at least move around in the ship, while in the train we could not move at all, and were packed so close that we could not even stretch our legs and arms. Some of the men did die, but not in my compartment, though most of us were frostbitten about the face.

We thought that night would never end, but day came finally, and though it seemed to get colder and colder, we did not mind it so much. At about 11 that morning we arrived at a place called Minden and saw a prison camp there—just a stockade near the tracks, with the boys out in the open. We waved to them, and they waved back and gave a cheer-oh or two. We felt sorry for them, because we knew we were not going to that camp, and from what little we saw, we knew we could not be going to a worse place than they were in. I shall never forget Minden, because it was here that I received the only cigarette I had while I was in Germany.

Minden is quite a railway center, I guess, and when we pulled into the depot, we saw many troops going to the front or coming back. As at all important German railway stations, there was a Red Cross booth on the platform, with German girls handing out barley coffee and other things to the German soldiers. I saw a large shanty on the platform, with a Red Cross painted over the door. I saw the girls giving barley coffee to the soldiers, and I thought I would have a try at it and at least be polite enough to give the girls a chance of refusing me. I was refused, all right, but they were so nasty about it that I put down my head and let something slip. I do not remember just what it was, but it was not very complimentary, I guess. Anyhow, I did not think anyone near there understood English, but evidently someone heard me who did, for I got an awful boot that landed me 10 or 12 feet away. I fell on my hands and knees, and about a yard away I saw a cigarette stub. I dived for it like a man falling on a football, and when I came up that stub was safely in my pocket. And it stayed there until I reached Dulmen and had a chance to light it behind the barracks. If any of the other men had smelled real tobacco, they would probably have murdered me, and I could not have blamed them for it.

That was the first and last cigarette I got in Germany and you can believe me when I say that I enjoyed it.

There was not much to it, but I smoked it until there was not enough left to hold in my mouth, and then I used what was left and mixed it with the bark that we made cigarettes out of. Incidentally, this bark was great stuff. I do not know what kind of tree it was from, but it served the purpose. Whenever a fellow wanted to smoke and lit one of these bark cigarettes, a few puffs were enough. He did not want to smoke again for some time afterward, and like as not, he did not want to eat either. They were therefore very valuable.

It is very hard to get matches in the camps, and when any prisoner does get hold of one, it is made to last a long time. Here is how we made a match last. Someone gives up the sleeve of his coat, and the match is carefully lit, and the coat sleeve burned to a crisp. Then we take a button from our coats—the buttons are brass, with two holes in them—pass a shoe string through the holes, knot the ends, and, with the button in the center of the string buzz it around as you have seen boys do, with the string over both hands, moving the hands together and apart until the button revolves very fast.

We then put a piece of flint against the crisped cloth and buzz the button against it until a spark makes the crisp glow, and from this we would light our bark cigarettes. I do not think any man in the world could inhale one of these bark cigarettes; some of us tried it and went right to sleep.

Late that night we arrived at Dulmen, Westphalia. We were rousted out of the carriages, mustered on the platform, counted, then drilled through the streets. In spite of the lateness, the streets were pretty well filled with people, and they zig-zagged us through all the streets they could, so that all the people would have a chance to see the crazy men, as they called

The Million Dollar Freight Train

By FRANK H. SPEARMAN

IT was the second month of the strike, and not a pound of freight had been moved. Things did look smoky on the West End. The general superintendent happened to be with us when the news came. "You can't handle it, boys," said he, nervously. "What you'd better do is to turn it over to the Columbia Pacific."

Our contracting freight agent on the coast at that time was a fellow so erratic that he was nicknamed "Crazy Horse." Right in the midst of the strike Crazy Horse wired that he had secured a big silk shipment for New York. We were paralyzed. We had no engineers, no firemen and no motive power to speak of. The strikers were pounding our men, wrecking our trains and giving us the worst of it generally; that is, when we couldn't give it to them. Why the fellow displayed his activity at that particular juncture still remains a mystery. Perhaps he had a grudge against the road; if so, he took an artful revenge. Everybody on the system with ordinary railroad sense knew that our struggle was to keep clear of freight business until we got rid of our strike. Anything valuable or perishable was especially unwelcome. But the stuff was docked, and loaded, and consigned in our care before we knew it. After that, a refusal to carry it would be like hoisting the white flag; and that something which never yet flew over the West End.

"Turn it over to the Columbian," said the general superintendent; but the general superintendent was not looked up to on our division. He hadn't enough sand. Our head was a fighter, and he gave tone to every man under him. "No," he thundered, bringing down his fist. "Not in a thousand years. We'll move it ourselves. Wire Montgomery (the general manager) that we will take care of it. And wire him to fire Crazy Horse—and to do it right off." And before the silk was turned over to us Crazy Horse was looking for another job. It is the only case on record where a freight hustler was discharged for getting business.

There were 12 carloads; it was insured for $85,000 a car; you can figure how far the title is wrong, but you never can estimate the worry that stuff gave us. It looked as big as $12,000,000 worth. In fact, one scrub car-tink, with the glory of the West End at heart, had a fight over the amount with a skeptical hostler. He maintained that the actual money value was $120,000,000; but I give you the figures just as they went over the wire, and they are right.

What bothered us most was that the strikers had the tip almost as soon as we had it. Having friends on every road in the country, they knew as much about our business as we ourselves. The minute it was announced that we should move the silk, they were after us. It was a defiance; a last one. If we could move freight—for we were already moving passengers, after a fashion—the strike might be well accounted beaten.

Stewart, the leader of the local contingent, together with his followers, got after me at once. "You don't show much sense, Reed," said he. "You fellows here are breaking your necks to get things moving, and when this strike's over, if our boys ask for your discharge, they'll get it. This road can't run without our engineers. We're going to beat you. If you try to move this silk, we'll have your scalp when it's over. You'll never get your silk to Zanesville, I'll promise you that. And if you ditch it and make a million-dollar loss, you'll get let out anyway, my buck."

"I'm here to obey orders, Stewart," said I. What was the use of more? I felt uncomfortable; but we had determined to move the silk; there was no more to be said.

When I went over to the roundhouse and told Neighbor the decision, he said never a word; but he looked a great deal. Neighbor's task was to supply the motive power. All that we had, uncrippled, was in the passenger service, because passengers should be taken care of first of all. In order to win a strike, you must have public opinion on your side.

"Nevertheless, Neighbor," said I, after we had talked awhile, "we must move the silk also."

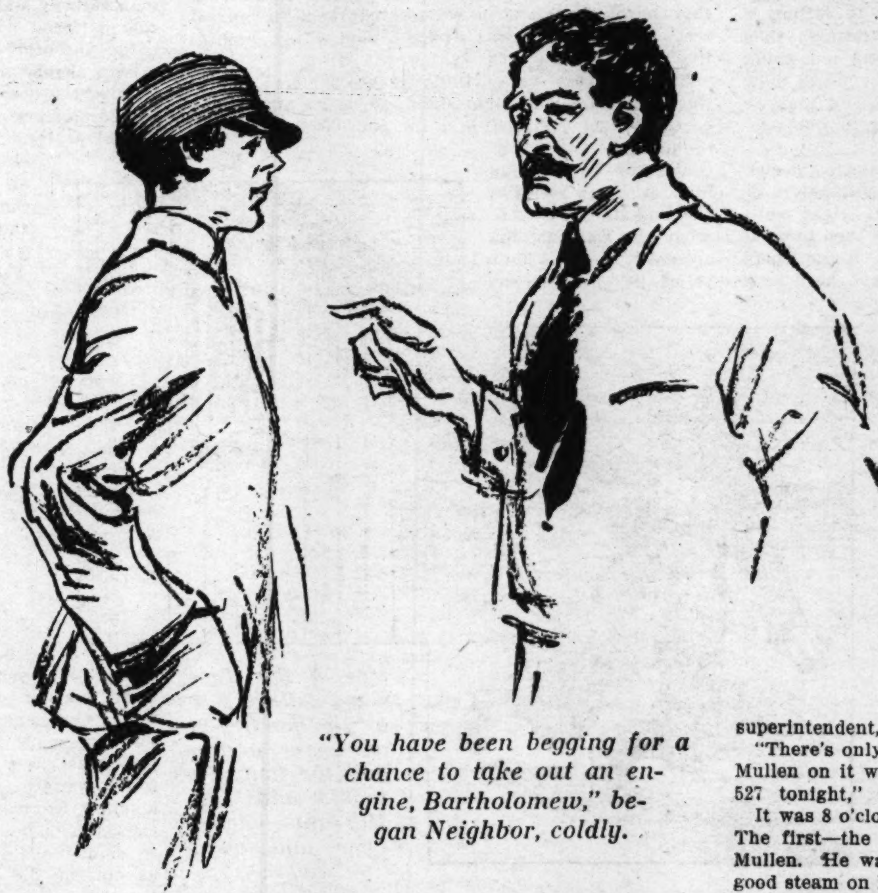
Neighbor studied; then he roared at his foreman. "Send Bartholomew Mullen here." He spoke with a decision that made me think the business was done. I had never happened, it is true, to hear of Bartholomew Mullen in the department of motive power; but the impression the name gave me was of a monstrous fellow, big as Neighbor, or old man Sankey, or Dad Hamilton. "I'll put Bartholomew ahead of it," said Neighbor, tightly.

I saw a boy walk into the office. "Mr. Garten said you wanted me, sir," said he, addressing the master mechanic.

"I do, Bartholomew," responded Neighbor.

The figure in my mind's eye shrunk in a twinkling. Then it occurred to me that it must be this boy's father who was wanted.

"You have been begging for a chance to take out an engine, Bartholomew," began Neighbor, coldly; and I knew it was on.



"You have been begging for a chance to take out an engine, Bartholomew," began Neighbor, coldly.

"Yes, sir."

"You want to get killed, Bartholomew?"

Bartholomew smiled as if the idea was not altogether displeasing.

"How would you like to go pilot tomorrow for McCurdy? You to take the 44 and run as first 78. McCurdy will run as second 78."

"I know I could run an engine all right," ventured Bartholomew, as if Neighbor were the only one taking the chances in giving him an engine. I know the track from here to Zanesville. I helped McNeff fire one week."

"Then go home and go to bed; and be over here at 6 o'clock tomorrow morning. And sleep sound, for it may be your last chance."

It was plain that the master mechanic hated to do it; it was simply sheer necessity. "He's a wiper," mused Neighbor, as Bartholomew walked springily away. "I took him in here sweeping two years ago. He ought to be firing now, but the union held him back; that's why he don't like them. He knows more about an engine now than half the lodge. They'd better have let him in," said the master mechanic grimly. "He may be the means of breaking their backs yet. If I give him an engine and he runs it, I'll never take him off, union or no union, strike or no strike."

"How old is that boy?" I asked.

"Eighteen, and never a kith or kin that I know of. Bartholomew Mullen," mused Neighbor, as the slight figure moved across the flat, "big name—small boy. Well, Bartholomew, you'll know something more by tomorrow night about running an engine, or a whole lot less; that's as it happens. If he gets killed, it's your fault, Reed."

He meant that I was calling on him for men when he couldn't supply them.

"I heard once," he went on, "about a fellow named Bartholomew being mixed up in a massacre. But I take it he must have been an older man than our Bartholomew—nor his other name wasn't Mullen, neither. I disremember just what it was; but it wasn't Mullen."

"Well, don't say I want to get the boy killed, Neighbor," I protested. "I've got plenty to answer for. I'm here to run trains—when there are any to run; that's murder enough for me. You needn't send Bartholomew out on my account."

"Give him a slow schedule, and I'll give him orders to jump early; that's all we can do. If the strikers don't ditch him he'll get through somehow."

It stuck in my crop—the idea of putting that boy on a pilot engine to take all the dangers ahead of that particular train; but I had a good deal else to think of besides. From the minute the silk got into the McCloud yards we posted double guards around. About 12 o'clock that night we held a council of war which ended in our running the train into the out-freighthouse. The result was that by morning we had a new train made up: It consisted of 14 refrigerator cars loaded with oranges, which had come in mysteriously the night before. It was announced that the silk would be held for the present and the oranges rushed through at once. Bright and early the refrigerator train was run down to the icehouse, and 20 men were put to work icing the oranges. At 7 o'clock McCurdy pulled in the local passenger with engine 105. Our plan was to cancel the local and run him right out with the oranges. When he got in he reported that the 105 had sprung a tire; this threw us out entirely. There was a hurried conference in the roundhouse.

"What can you do?" asked the superintendent, in desperation.

"There's only one thing I can do. Put Bartholomew Mullen on it with the 44, and put McCurdy to bed for 527 tonight," responded Neighbor.

It was 8 o'clock. I looked into the locomotive stalls. The first—the only—man in sight was Bartholomew Mullen. He was very busy polishing the 44. He had good steam on her, and the old tub was wheezing away as if she had the asthma. The 44 was old; she was homely; she was rickety; but Bartholomew Mullen wiped her battered nose as deferentially as if she had been a spick-span, spider-drive, tail-truck mail racer. She wasn't much—the 44. But in those days Bartholomew wasn't much; and the 44 was Bartholomew's.

"How is she steaming, Bartholomew?" I sang out. He was right in the middle of her. Looking up, he fingered his waste modestly and blushed through a dab of crude petroleum over his eye. "Hundred and thirty pounds, sir. She's a terrible free steamer, the old 44. I'm all ready to run her out."

"Who's marked up to fire for you, Bartholomew?"

Bartholomew Mullen looked at me fraternally. "Neighbor couldn't give me anybody but a wiper, sir," said Bartholomew, in a sort of a wouldn't-that-kill-you tone.

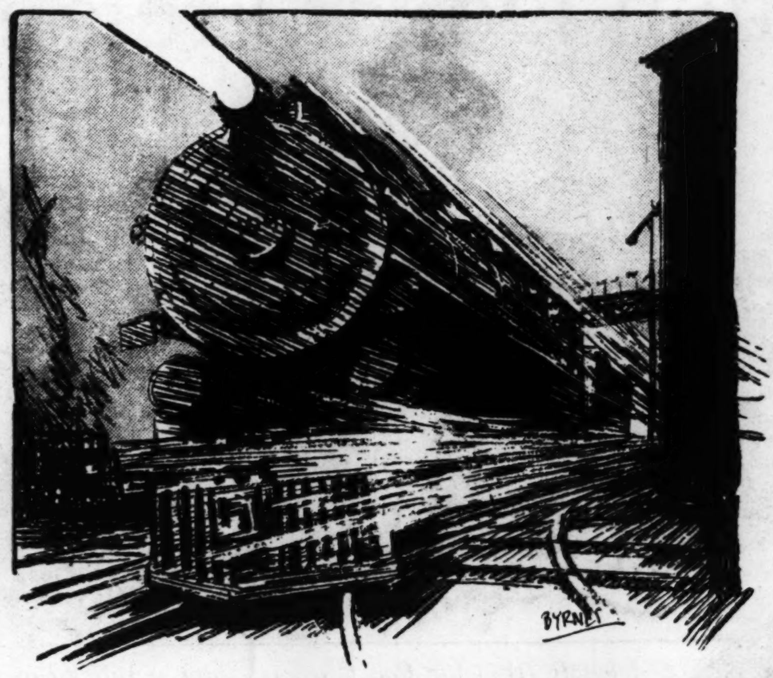
The unconscious arrogance of the boy quite knocked me, so soon had honors changed his point of view. Last night a despised wiper, at daybreak an engineer, and his nose in the air at the idea of taking on a wiper for fireman. And all so innocent.

"Would you object, Bartholomew," I suggested gently, "to a trainmaster for fireman?"

"I don't—think so, sir."

"Thank you, because I am going down to Zanesville this morning myself, and I thought I'd ride with you. Is it all right?"

The Million Dollar Freight Train (Continued)



When the 109 suddenly stuck her paws through an open switch we bounced against the roof of the cab like footballs.

"Oh, yes, sir—if Neighbor doesn't care."

I smiled. He didn't know whom Neighbor took orders from; but he thought, evidently, not from me.

"Then run her down to the oranges, Bartholomew, and couple on, and we'll order ourselves out. See?"

The 44 looked like a baby carriage when we got her in front of the refrigerators. However, after the necessary preliminaries, we gave a very sporty toot, and pulled out. In a few minutes we were sailing down the valley.

For 50 minutes we bobbed along with our cargo of iced silk; for I need hardly explain that we packed the silk into the refrigerators to confuse the strikers. The great risk was that they would try to ditch us.

I was watching the track as a mouse would a cat, looking every minute for trouble. We cleared the gumbo cut west of the Beaver at a pretty good clip, in order to make the grade on the other side. The bridge there is hidden in summer by a grove of hackberries. I had just pulled the door open to cool her a bit when I noticed how high the water was on each side of track. Suddenly I felt the fill going soft under the drivers; felt the 44 wobble and slew. Bartholomew shut off hard, and threw the air as I sprang to the window. The peaceful little creek ahead looked as angry as the Platte in April water, and the bottoms were a lake.

Somewhere up the valley there had been a cloudburst, for overhead the sun was bright. The Beaver was roaring over its banks and the bridge was out. Bartholomew screamed for the brakes; it looked as if we were against it—and hard. A soft track to stop on; a torrent of stormwater ahead and $1,000,000 worth of silk behind, not to mention equipment.

I yelled at Bartholomew and motioned for him to jump; my conscience is clear on that point. The 44 was stumbling along, trying like a drunken man to hang to the rotten track.

"Bartholomew!" I yelled; but he was head out and looking back at his train while he jerked frantically at the air lever. I understood; the air wouldn't work; it never will on those old tubs when you need it. The sweat pushed out on me. I was thinking of how much the silk would bring us after the bath in the Beaver. Bartholomew stuck to his levers like a man in a signal tower, but every second brought us closer to the open water. Watching him, intent only on saving his first train—heedless of his life—I was actually ashamed to jump. While I hesitated he somehow got the brakes to set; the old 44 bucked like a bronco.

It wasn't too soon. She checked her train nobly at the last, but I saw nothing could keep her from the drink. I gave Bartholomew a terrific slap, and again I yelled; then turning to the gangway, I dropped into the soft mud on my side; the 44 hung low, and it was easy lighting.

Bartholomew sprang from his seat a second later; but his blouse caught in the teeth of the quadrant. He stooped quick as thought and peeled the thing over his head. Then he was caught fast by the wristbands, and the ponies of the 44 tipped over the broken abutment. Pull as he would he couldn't get free. The pilot dipped into the torrent slowly. But losing her balance, the 44 kicked her heels into the air like lightning and shot with a frightened wheeze plump into the creek, dragging her engineer with her.

The head car stopped on the brink. Running across the track, I looked for Bartholomew. He wasn't there; I knew he must have gone down with his engine. Throwing off my gloves, I dived, just as I stood, close to the tender, which hung half submerged. I am a good bit of a fish under water, but no self-respecting fish would be caught in that yellow mud. I realized, too, the instant I struck the water, that I should have dived on the upstream side. The current took me away whirling; when I came up for air, I was 50 feet below the pier. I scrambled out, feeling it was all up with Bartholomew; but to my amazement, as I shook my eyes open the train crew were running forward, and there stood Bartholomew on the track above me, looking at the refrigerator. When I got to him, he explained how he was dragged under and had to tear the sleeve out of his blouse under water to get free.

The surprise is how little fuss men make about such things when they are busy. It took only five minutes for the conductor to hunt up a coil of wire and a sounder for me, and by the time he got forward with it, Bartholomew was half-way up a telegraph pole to help me cut in on a live wire. Fast as I could, I rigged a pony, and began calling the McCloud dispatcher. It was rocky sending, but after no end of pounding I got him and gave orders for the wrecking gang, and for one more of Neighbor's rapidly decreasing supply of locomotives.

Bartholomew, sitting on a strip of fence which still rose above water, looked forlorn. To lose in the Beaver the first engine he ever handled was tough, and he was evidently speculating on his chances of ever getting another. If there weren't tears in his eyes, there was storm water, certainly. But after the relief engine had pulled what was left of us back six miles to a siding, I made it my first business to explain to Neighbor, who was nearly beside himself, that Bartholomew not only was not at fault, but that by his nerve he had actually saved the train.

"I'll tell you, Neighbor," I suggested, when we got straightened around. "Give us the 109 to go ahead as pilot, and run her around the river division with Foley and the 216."

"What'll you do with No. 6?" growled Neighbor. Six was the local passenger west.

"Annul it west of McCloud," said I instantly. "We've got this silk on our hands now, and I'd move it if it tied up every passenger train on the division. If we can get the stuff through, it will practically beat the strike. If we fail, it will beat the company."

By the time we had backed to Newhall Junction, Neighbor had made up his mind my way. Mullen and I climbed into the 109, and Foley, with the 216, and none too good a grace, coupled on to the silk, and, flying red signals, we started again for Zanesville over the river division.

Foley was always full of mischief. He had a better engine than ours, and he took great satisfaction the rest of the afternoon in crowding us. Every mile of the way he was on our heels. I was throwing the coal, and have reason to remember. It was after dark when we reached the Beverly Hill, and we took it at a lively pace. The strikers were not on our minds then; it was Foley who bothered.

When the long parallel steel lines of the upper yards spread before us, flashing under the arc lights, we were away above yard speed. Running a locomotive into one of those big yards is like shooting a rapid in a canoe. There is a bewildering maze of tracks, lighted by red and green lamps, which must be watched the closest to keep out of trouble. The hazards are multiplied the minute you pass the throat, and a yard wreck is a dreadful tangle; it makes everybody, from roadmaster to flagman furious, and not even Bartholomew wanted to face an inquiry on a yard wreck. On the other hand, he couldn't afford to be caught by Foley, who was chasing him out of pure caprice.

I saw the boy holding the throttle at a half and fingering the air anxiously as we jumped over the frogs; but the roughest riding on track so far beats the ties as a cushion, that when the 109 suddenly stuck her paws through an open switch we bounced against the roof of the cab like footballs. I grabbed a brace with one hand, and with the other reached instinctively across to Bartholomew's side to seize the throttle. But as I tried to shut him off, he jerked it wide open in spite of me, and turned with lightning in his eye. "No!" he cried, and his voice rang hard. The 109 took the tremendous shove at her back and leaped like a frightened horse. Away we went across the yard, through the cinders, and over the ties; my teeth have never been the same since. I don't belong on an engine, anyway, and since then I have kept off. At the moment, I was convinced that the strain had been too much, that Bartholomew was stark crazy. He sat clinging like a lobster to his levers and bouncing clear to the roof.

But his strategy was dawning on me; in fact, he was pounding it into me. Even the shock and scare of leaving the track and tearing up the yard had not driven from Bartholomew's noodle the most important feature of our situation, which was, above everything to KEEP OUT OF THE WAY OF THE SILK TRAIN.

I felt every moment more mortified at my attempt to shut him off. I had done the trick of the woman who grabs the reins. It was even better to tear up the yard than to stop for Foley to smash into and scatter the silk over the coal chutes. Bartholomew's decision was one of the traits which make the runner—instant perception, coupled with instant resolve. The ordinary dub thinks what he should have done to avoid disaster after it is all over; Bartholomew thought before.

On we bumped, across frogs, through switches, over splits and into target rods, when—and this is the miracle of it all—the 109 got her forefeet on a split switch, made a contact, and, after a slew or two, like a bogged horse, swung up sweet on the rails again, tender and all. Bartholomew shut off with an under cut that brought us up stuttering, and nailed her feet with the air, right where she stood. We had left the track and plowed a hundred feet across the yards and jumped onto another track. It is the only time I ever heard of its happening anywhere, but I was on the engine with Bartholomew Mullen when it was done.

Foley choked his train the instant he saw our hind lights bobbing. We climbed down and ran back. He had stopped just where we should have stood if I had shut off.

Bartholomew ran to the switch to examine it. The contact light (green) still burned like a false beacon; and lucky it did, for it showed that the switch had been tampered with and exonerated Bartholomew Mullen completely. The attempt of the strikers to spill the silk in the yards had only made the reputation of a new engineer. Thirty minutes later the million-dollar train was turned over to the East End to wrestle with, and we breathed, all of us, a good bit easier.

Bartholomew Mullen, now a passenger runner who ranks with Kennedy and Jack More and Foley and George Sinclair himself, got a personal letter from the general manager complimenting him on his pretty wit; and he was good enough to say nothing whatever about mine.

We registered that night and went to supper together—Foley, Jackson, Bartholomew and I. Afterward we dropped into the dispatcher's office. Something was coming from McCloud, but the operator to save his life couldn't catch it. I listened a minute; it was Neighbor. Now, Neighbor isn't great on dispatching trains. He can make himself understood over the poles, but his sending is like a boy's sawing wood—sort of uneven. However, though I am not much on running yards, I claim to be able to take the wildest ball that ever was thrown along the wire, and the chair was tendered me at once to catch Neighbor's extraordinary passes at the McCloud key. They came something like this:

"To Opr. Tell Massacree"—that was the word that stuck them all, and I could perceive that Neighbor was talking emphatically. He had apparently forgotten Bartholomew's last name, and was trying to connect with the one he had "disremembered" the night before. "Tell Massacree," repeated Neighbor, "that he is a-l-l-l right. Tell hi-m I give him double mileage for today all the way through. And tomorrow he gets 109 to keep.—Neighbor." (Copyright.)

Canned Ostrich Eggs May Find a Market in London.

SIGNS reading "Newly canned ostrich eggs for sale" may soon meet the eyes of the housewife looking into the windows of grocery stores in London, says the Popular Science Monthly. This statement is based on the fact that ostrich eggs are being packed experimentally in South America for shipment to England in liquid form. One ostrich egg is equal to about two dozen hen's eggs. If the canning of these eggs proves successful it will mean the salvation of the ostrich-growing industry, which has suffered considerably as a result of the war.

LONG LIVE THE KING!

BY MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

CHAPTER XXXII.

NIKKY AND HEDWIG.

NIKKY had gone back to his lodging, where his servant was packing his things. For Nikky was now of his majesty's household, and must exchange his shabby old rooms for the cold magnificence of the palace.

Toto had climbed to the chair beside him, and was inspecting his pockets, one by one. Toto was rather a problem, in the morning. But then everything was a problem now. He decided to leave the dog with the landlady, and to hope for a chance to talk the authorities over. Nikky himself considered that a small boy without a dog was as incomplete as, for instance, a buttonhole without a button.

He was very downhearted. To the Crown Prince, each day, he gave the best that was in him, played and rode, invented delightful nonsense to bring the boy's quick laughter, carried pocketfuls of bones, to the secret revolt of his soldierly soul, was boyish and tender, frivolous or thoughtful, as the occasion seemed to warrant.

And always he was watchful, his revolver always ready and in touch, his eyes keen, his body, even when it seemed most relaxed, always tense to spring. For Nikky knew the temper of the people, knew it as did Mathilde, gossiping in the market, and even better; knew that a crisis was approaching, and that on this small boy in his charge hung that crisis.

The guard at the palace had been trebled, but even in that lay weakness.

"Too many strange faces," the Chancellor had said to him, shaking his head. "Too many servants in livery, and flunkies whom no one knows. How can we prevent men, in such livery, from impersonating our own agents? One, two, a half-dozen, they could gain access to the palace, could commit a mischief under our very eyes."

So Nikky trusted in his own right arm and in nothing else. At night the palace guard was smaller, and could be watched. There were no servants about to complicate the situation. But in the daytime, and especially now with the procession of milliners and dressmakers, messengers and dealers, it was more difficult. Nikky watched these people, as he happened on them, with suspicion and hatred. Hatred not only of what they might be, but hatred of what they were, of the thing they typified, Hedwig's approaching marriage.

The very size of the palace, its unused rooms, its long and rambling corridors, its rambling wings and ancient turrets, was against its safety.

Since the demonstration against Karl, the riding-school hour had been given up. There were no drives in the park. The illness of the King furnished sufficient excuse, but the truth was that the royal family was practically besieged, by it knew not what. Two police agents had been found dead the morning after Karl's departure, on the outskirts of the city, lying together in a freshly plowed field. They bore marks of struggle, and each had been stabbed through the veins of the neck, as though they had been first subdued and then scientifically destroyed.

Nikky, summoned to the Chancellor's house that morning, had been told the facts, and had stood rather still and tense, while Mettlich recounted them.

"Our very precautions are our danger," said the Chancellor. "And the King"—— He stopped and sat, tapping his fingers on the arm of his chair.

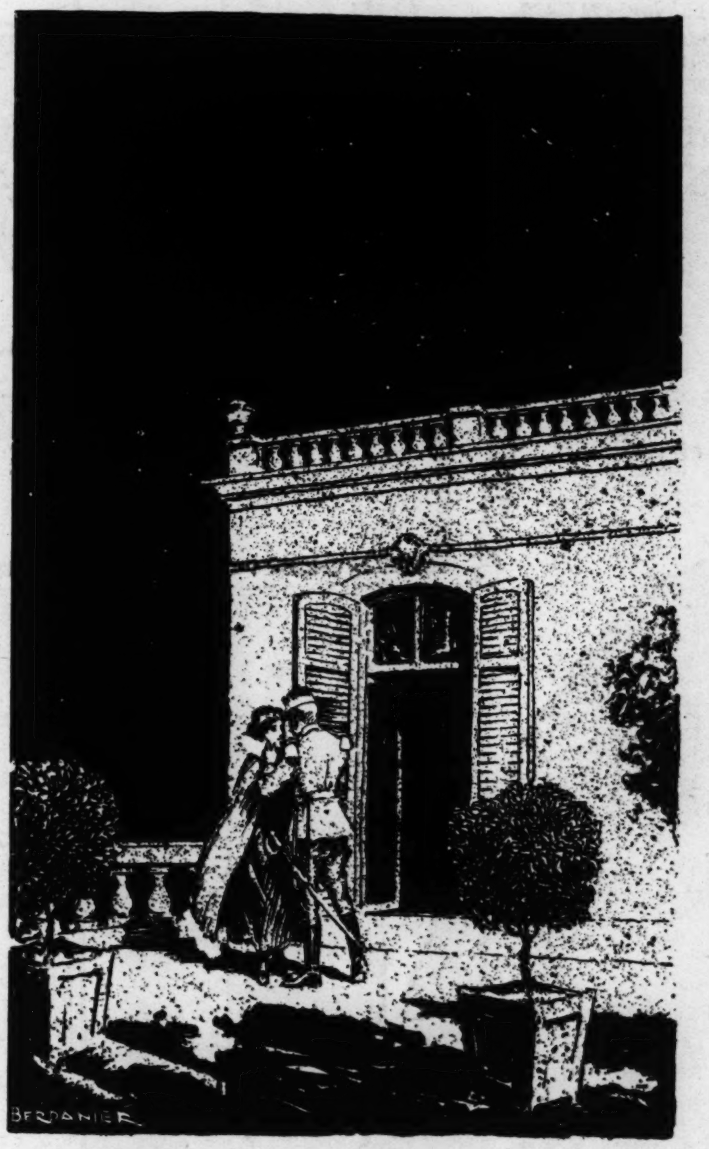
"And the King, sir?"

"Almost at the end. A day or two."

On that day came fresh news, alarming enough. More copies of the seditious paper were in circulation in the city and the surrounding country, passing from hand to hand. The town was searched for the press which had printed them, but it was not located. Which was not surprising, since it had been lowered through a trap into a subcellar of the house on the Road of the Good Children, and the trapdoor covered with rubbish.

Karl, with Hedwig in his thoughts, had returned to mobilize his army not far from the border for the spring maneuvers, and at a meeting of the King's Council the matter of a mobilization in Livonia was seriously considered.

Fat Friese favored it, and made an impassioned speech, with sweat thick on his heavy face.



"Sweetheart!" he said. "Sweetest heart!"

"I am not cowardly," he finished. "I fear nothing for myself or for those belonging to me. But the duty of this Council is to preserve the throne for the Crown Prince, at any cost. And, if we cannot trust the army, in what can we trust?"

"In God," said the Chancellor grimly.

In the end nothing was done. Mobilization might precipitate the crisis, and there was always the fear that the army, in parts, was itself disloyal.

It was Marschall, always nervous and now pallid with terror, who suggested abandoning the marriage between Hedwig and Karl.

"Until this matter came up," he said, avoiding Mettlich's eyes, "there was danger, but of a small party only, the revolutionary one. One which, by increased effort on the part of the secret police, might have been suppressed. It is this new measure which is fatal. The people detest it. They cannot forget, if we can, the many scores of hatred we still owe to Karnia. We have, by our own act, alienated the better class of citizens. Why not abandon this marriage, which, gentlemen, I believe will be fatal. It has not yet been announced. We may still withdraw with honor."

He looked around the table with anxious, haunted eyes, opened wide so that the pupils appeared small and staring in their setting of blood-shot white. The Chancellor glanced around, also.

"It is not always easy to let the people of a country know what is good for them and for it. To retreat now is to show our weakness, to make an enemy again of King Karl, and to gain us nothing, not even safety. As well abdicate, and turn the country over to the Terrorists! And, in this crisis, let me remind you of something you persistently forget. Whatever the views of the solid citizens may be as to this marriage—and once it is effected, they will accept it, without doubt—the Crown Prince is now and will remain the idol of the country. It is on his popularity we must depend. We must capitalize it. Mobs are sentimental. Whatever the Terrorists may think, this I know: that when the bell announces his majesty's death, when Ferdinand William Otto steps out on the balcony, a small and lonely child, they will rally to him. That figure, on the balcony, will be more potent than a thousand demagogues, haranguing in the public streets."

The Council broke up in confusion. Nothing had been done, or would be done. Mettlich of the iron hand had held them, would continue to hold them.

The King, meanwhile, lay dying, Dr. Weiderman in constant attendance, other physicians coming and going. His apartments were silent. Rugs covered the corridors, that no footfall disturb his quiet hours. The nursing sisters attended him, one by his bedside, one always on her knees at the priedieu in the small room beyond. He wanted little—now and then a sip of water, the cooled juice of fruit. Injections of stimulants, given by Dr. Weiderman himself, had scarred his old arms with purplish marks, and were absorbed more and more slowly as the hours went on.

He rarely slept, but lay inert and not unhappy. Now and then one of his gentlemen, given permission, tiptoed into the room and stood looking down at his royal master. Annunciata came, and was at last stricken by conscience to a prayer at his bedside. On one of her last visits that was. She got up to find his eyes fixed on her.

"Father," she began.

He made no motion.

"Father, can you hear me?"

"Yes."

"I—I have been a bad daughter to you. I am sorry. It is late now to tell you, but I am sorry. Can I do anything?"

"Otto," he said, with difficulty.

"You want to see him?"

"No."

She knew what he meant by that. He would have the boy remember him as he had seen him last.

"You are anxious about him?"

"Very—anxious."

"Listen, father," she said, stooping over him. "I have been hard and cold. Perhaps you will grant that I have had two reasons for it. But I am going to do better, I will take care of him and I will do all I can to make him happy. I promise."

Perhaps it was relief. Perhaps even then the thought of Annunciata's tardy and certain-to-be bungling efforts to make Ferdinand William Otto happy amused him. He smiled faintly.

Nikky, watching his rooms being dismantled, rescuing an old pipe now and then, or a pair of shabby but beloved boots—Nikky, whistling to keep up his courage, received a note from Hedwig late that afternoon. It was very brief:

"Tonight at 9 o'clock I shall go to the roof beyond Hubert's old rooms, for air. HEDWIG."

Nikky, who, in all his incurious young life, had never thought of the roof of the palace, save as a necessary shelter from the weather, a thing of tiles and gutters, vastly large, looked rather astounded.

"The roof!" he said, surveying the note. And fell to thinking, such a mixture of rapture and despair as only 23, and hopeless, can know.

Somehow or other he got through the intervening hours, and before 9 he was on his way. He had the run of the palace, of course. No one noticed him as he made his way toward the empty suite which so recently had housed its royal visitor. Annunciata's anxiety had kept the doors of the suite unlocked. Knowing nothing, but fearing everything, she slept with the key to the turret door under her pillow, and an ear opened for untoward sounds.

In the faint moonlight poor Hubert's rooms, with their refurbished furnishings covered with white linen, looked cold and almost terrifying. A long window was open, and the velvet curtain swayed as though it shielded some dismal figure. But, when he had crossed the room and drawn the curtain aside, it was to see a bit of fairyland, the roof moonlit and transformed by growing things into a garden. There was, too, the fairy.

Hedwig, in a soft white wrap over her dinner dress, was at the balustrade. The moon, which had robbed the flowers of their colors and made them ghosts of blossoms, had turned Hedwig into a pale, white fairy, with extremely frightened eyes. A very dignified fairy, too, although her heart thumped disgracefully. Having taken a most brazen step forward, she was now for taking two panicky ones back.

Therefore, she pretended not to hear Nikky back of her, and was completely engrossed in the city lights.

So Hedwig intended to be remote, and Nikky meant to be firm and very, very loyal. Which shows how young and inexperienced they were. Because anyone who knows even the beginnings of love knows that its victims suffer from an atrophy of both reason and conscience, and a hypertrophy of the heart.

Whatever Nikky had intended—of obeying his promise to the letter, of putting his country before love, and love out of his life—failed him instantly. The Nikky, ardent-eyed and tender-armed, who crossed the roof and took her almost fiercely in his arms, was all lover—and 23.

"Sweetheart!" he said. "Sweetest heart!"

When, having kissed her, he drew back a trifle for the sheer joy of again catching her to him, it was Hedwig who held out her arms to him.

"I couldn't bear it," she said simply. "I love you. I had to see you again. Just once."

"If he had not entirely lost his head before, he lost it then. He stopped thinking, was content for a time that her arms were about his neck, and his arms about her, holding her close. They were tense, those arms of his, as though he would defy the world to take her away.

But, although he had stopped thinking, Hedwig had not. It is, at such times, always the woman who thinks. Hedwig, plotting against his honor and for his happiness and hers, was already, with her head on his breast, planning the attack. And, having a strategic position, she fired her first gun from there.

"Never let me go, Nikky," she whispered. "Hold me, always."

"Always!" said Nikky, valiantly and absurdly.

"Like this?"

"Like this," said Nikky, who was, like most lovers, not particularly original. He tightened his strong arms about her.

"They are planning such terrible things." Shell No. 2, and high explosive. "You won't let them take me from you, will you?"

"God!" said poor Nikky, and kissed her hair. "If we could only be like this always! Your arms, Hedwig—your sweet arms!" He kissed her arms.

Gun No. 3 now: "Tell me how much you love me."

"I—there are no words, darling. And I couldn't live long enough to tell you, if there were." Not bad that, for inarticulate Nikky.

"More than anybody else?"

He shook her a trifle in his arms. "How can you?" he demanded, huskily. "More than anything in the world. More than life, or anything life can bring. More, God help me, than my country."

But his own words brought him up short. He released her, very gently, and drew back a step.

"You heard that?" he demanded. "And I mean it. It's incredible, Hedwig, but it is true."

"I want you to mean it," Hedwig replied, moving close to him, so that her soft draperies brushed him; the very scent of the faint perfume she used was in the air he breathed. "I want you to, because—Nikky, you are going to take me away, aren't you?"

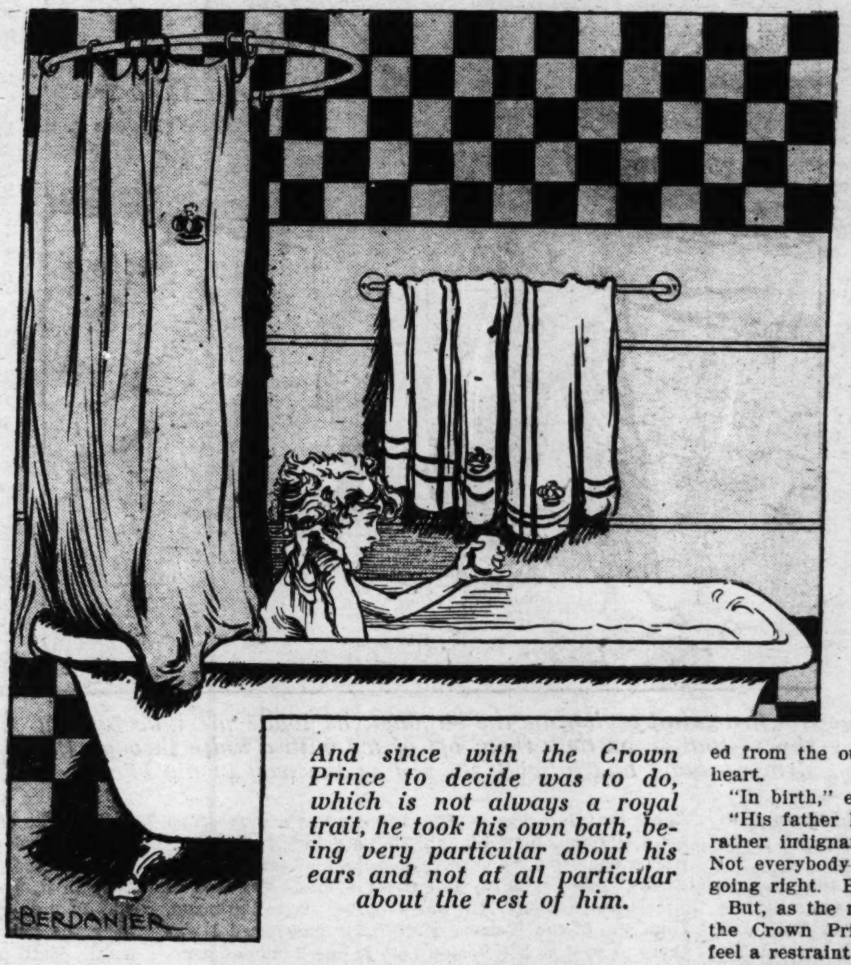
Then, because she dared not give him time to think, she made her plea—rapid, girlish, rather incoherent, but understandable enough. They would go away together and be married. She had it all planned and some of it arranged. And then they would hide somewhere, and—"And always to be together," she finished, tremulous with anxiety.

And Nikky? His pulses still beating at her nearness, his eyes on her upturned, despairing young face, turned to him for hope and comfort, what could he do? He took her in his arms again and soothed her, while she cried her heart out against his tunic. He said he would do anything to keep her from unhappiness, and that he would die before he let her go to Karl's arms. But if he had stopped thinking before, he was thinking hard enough then.

"Tonight?" said Hedwig, raising her tear-stained face. "It is early. If we wait something will happen. I know it. They are so powerful, they can do anything."

After all, Nikky is poor stuff to try to make a hero of. He was so human, and so loving. And he was very, very young, which may perhaps be his excuse. As well confess his weakness and his temptation. He was tempted. Almost he felt he could not let her go, could not loosen his hold of her. Almost—not quite.

He put her away from him at last, after he had kissed her eyelids and her forehead, which was by way of renunciation. And then he folded his arms, which were treacherous and might betray him. After that, not daring to look at her, but with his eyes fixed on the irregular sky line of the city roofs, he told her many things, of his promise to the King, of the danger, imminent now and very real, of his word of honor not to make love to her, which he had broken.



And since with the Crown Prince to decide was to do, which is not always a royal trait, he took his own bath, being very particular about his ears and not at all particular about the rest of him.

Hedwig listened, growing cold and still, and drawing away a little. She was suffering too much to be just. All she could see was that, for a matter of honor, and that debatable, she was to be sacrificed. This danger that all talked of—she had heard that for a dozen years, and nothing had come of it. Nothing, that is, but her own sacrifice.

She listened, even assented, as he pleaded against his own heart, treacherous arms still folded. And if she saw his arms and not his eyes, it was because she did not look up.

Halfway through his eager speech, however, she drew her light wrap about her and turned away. Nikky could not believe that she was going like that, without a word. But when she had disappeared through the window, he knew, and followed her. He caught her in Hubert's room, and drew her savagely into his arms.

But it was a passive, quiescent and trembling Hedwig who submitted, and then, freeing herself, went out through the door into the lights of the corridor. Nikky flung himself, face down, on a shrouded couch, and lay there, his face buried in his arms.

Olga Loschek's last hope was gone.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

THE DAY OF THE CARNIVAL.

ON the day of the carnival, which was the last day before the beginning of Lent, Prince Ferdinand William Otto wakened early. The palace still slept, and only the street sweepers were about the streets. Prince Ferdinand William Otto sat up in bed and yawned. This was a special day, he knew, but at first he was too drowsy to remember.

Then he knew—the carnival! A delightful day, with the place full of people in strange costumes—peasants, imps, jesters, who cut capers on the grass in the park, little girls in procession, wearing costumes of fairies with gauze wings, students who paraded and blew noisy horns, even horses decorated, and now and then a dog dressed as a dancer or a soldier.

He would have enjoyed dressing Toto in something or other. He decided to mention it to Nikky, and with a child's faith he felt that Nikky would, so to speak, come up to the scratch.

He yawned again and began to feel hungry. He decided to get up and take his own bath. There was nothing like getting a good start for a gala day. And, since with the Crown Prince to decide was to do, which is not always a royal trait, he took his own bath, being very particular about his ears, and not at all particular about the rest of him. Then, no Oskar having yet appeared with fresh garments, he ducked back into bed again, quite bare as to his small body, and snuggled down in the sheets.

Lying there, he planned the day. There were to be no lessons except fencing, which could hardly be called a lesson at all, and as he now knew the "Gettysburg Address," he meant to ask permission to recite it to his grandfather. To be quite sure of it, he repeated it to himself as he lay there:

"'Fourscore and seven years ago our fathers brought forth on this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created free and equal.'

"Free and equal," he said to himself. That rather puzzled him. Of course, people were free, but they did not seem to be equal. In the summer, at the summer palace, he was only allowed to see a few children, because the others were what his Aunt Annunciata called "bourgeois." And there was in his mind also something Miss Braithwaite had said, after his escapade with the American boy.

"If you must have some child to play with," she had said severely, "you could at least choose someone approximately your equal."

"But he is my equal," he had protested from the outraged depths of his small democratic heart.

"In birth," explained Miss Braithwaite.

"His father has a fine business," he had said, still rather indignant. "It makes a great deal of money. Not everybody can build a scenic railway and get it going right. Bobby said so."

But, as the morning advanced, as, clothed and fed, the Crown Prince faced the new day, he began to feel a restraint in the air. People came and went, his grandfather's equerry, the Chancellor, the Lord Chamberlain, other gentlemen, connected with the vast and intricate machinery of the court, and even Hedwig, in a black frock, all these people came, and talked together, and eyed him when he was not looking. When they left they all bowed rather more than usual, except Hedwig, who kissed him, much to his secret annoyance.

Nikky Larisch had arrived just as Hedwig departed; and even the Crown Prince had recognized something wrong. Nikky had stopped just inside the doorway, with his eyes rather desperately and hungrily on Hedwig, and Hedwig, who should have been scolded, according to Prince Otto, had passed him with the haughtiest sort of nod.

The Crown Prince witnessed the nod with wonder and alarm.

"We are all rather worried," he explainted afterward to Nikky, to soothe his wounded pride. "My grandfather is not so well today. Hedwig is very unhappy."

"Yes," said Nikky, miserably, "she does look unhappy."

"Now, when are we going out?" briskly demanded Prince Ferdinand William Otto. "I can hardly wait. I've seen the funniest people already—and dogs. Nikky, us. Most of the people were women, and as soon as they saw us coming, they began singing the "Watch on the Rhine" or some other German song, and it was funny to see windows opening and fat fraus, with nightcaps on, sticking their heads out of the windows. They would give us a quick once-over, and then pipe up like a boatswain: "Schweinhund—Vaterland—Wacht am Rhein"—all kinds of things and all mixed up.

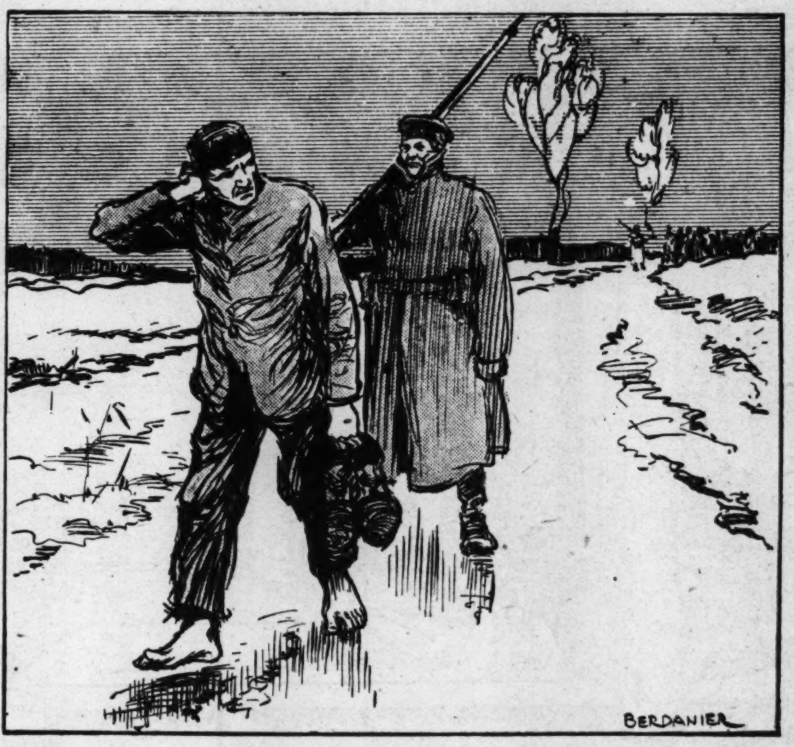
So we gave them "Tipperary" and "Pack Up Your Troubles" and showed them how to sing. Our guards had no ear for music and tried to stop us, but though they knocked several men down, we did not stop until we had finished the song. Then, after we had admitted to each other that we were not downhearted, we shut up.

We would have done so, anyway, because by this time we were on the outskirts of the town, and we needed all the breath we had. The road we were on was just one long sheet of ice, and we could hardly walk more than four steps without slipping and falling. My shoes had wooden soles, and it was just one bang after another, with the ice and myself trying to see which could hit the hardest. Every time we fell—smash! came a rifle over the back.

I was getting pretty tired, so I said to some of the fellows that I was going to sit down and rest, and they said they would be damned if they did not, also. So we dropped out and waited until the guards behind had just about caught up with us, and then we would go on. We did this several times until they got on to us, and we could not do it any more.

Up the road a piece I fell again, and this time I thought I did not care what happened, so I just sat there in the middle of the road until Fritz came up. But instead of giving me the bayonet he made me take off my shoes—that is, he took them off of me with a knife through the strings—and I had to walk the rest of the way in my bare feet. It was about four miles altogether from the station to the camp.



But instead of giving me the bayonet, he made me take off my shoes—that is, he took them off of me with a knife through the strings—and I had to walk the rest of the way in my bare feet.

When we got near the camp, all the boys came out of the barracks and lined up along the barbed wire, and yelled us a welcome. We asked them if they were downhearted, and they said no, and we said we were not either. We could hardly see them, but they began yelling again when we got nearer, and asked us, "Is there anyone there from Queenstown?" and then Hull, and Portsmouth, and Dover, and Toronto and a lot of other places.

I did not pay much attention until I heard: "Any Americans there?" and I yelled back: "Yes; where are you?"

"Barracks 6-B, Gruppe 3."

"Where from?" I yelled.

"Boston. Where you from?"

"The U. S. A. and Atlantic ports. See you later."

So, the next morning, I went over to his barracks and asked for the Yank. They pointed him out to me where he was lying on the floor. I went over and laid down with him and we had quite a talk. I will not give his name here for certain reasons.

He had received several wounds at the time he was taken prisoner. He had been in the Canadian service for two years. We used to talk about New York and Boston and the different places we knew in both towns, and we also talked a lot about the rotten treatment we were receiving, and tried to cook up some plan of escape. But every one we could think of had been used by someone else, and either had failed, or the Huns had fixed it so the plan could not be tried again. We doped out some pretty wild schemes at that. Altogether, we became great pals, and were together as much as possible at Dulmen. The day I left the camp, he gave me a ring made from a shell, and told me to get it safely back to the States, but someone stole it at Brandenburg.

One day while I was in his barracks, an Englishman stepped out of the door for some reason or other, and though he did not say a word to Fritz, in two minutes he was dead, in cold blood. We never knew why they killed him.

At Swinemunde and Neustrelitz, I must admit that the Germans had us pretty badly buffaloed, but at Dulmen the prisoners were entirely different. Dulmen was the receiving camp for the whole western front, and the prisoners there got to be pretty tough eggs, as far as Fritz was concerned, before they had been in camp many days. They thought nothing of picking a fight with a sentry and giving him a good battle, even though he was armed with rifle and bayonet. We soon learned that unless his pals are around a German will not stand by his arguments with his fists. In other words, if he can out-talk you, he will beat you up, but if he cannot, it is a case of "Here comes Heinie going back."

The Russian prisoners at Dulmen were certainly a miserable looking bunch.. They spent most of their time wandering around the Russian barracks, hunting for rotten potato peelings and other garbage, which they would eat. When they saw Fritz throw out his swill, they would dive right through the barbed wire one after another, and their hands and face and clothes were always torn from it. It was unhealthy to stand between the Russians and their garbage prey—they were so speedy that nothing stopped them.

One morning, just after barley-coffee time, I came out of the barracks and saw an Australian arguing with the sentry. I was not only curious, but anxious to be a good citizen, as they say, so I went up and slung an ear at them. The Australian had asked Fritz what had been done with the flag that the Huns were going to fly from Eiffel Tower in Paris.

That was too deep for Fritz, so the Australian answered it himself. "Don't you know, Fritz? Well, we have no blankets, you know."

Still the sentry did not get it. So the Australian carefully explained to me—so that Fritz could hear—that the Germans had no blankets and were using the flag to wrap their cold feet in.

This started a fight, of course—the German idea of a fight, that is. The sentry, being a very brave man for a German, blew his whistle very loudly, and sentries came from all directions. So we beat it to the Australian's barracks, and there I found the second American in camp. He was a barber named Stimson, from one of the Western states. He had heard I was there as well as the Boston man in the Canadian service, but he had been too sick to look us up, and in fact did not give a damn what happened, he was so miserable. He had been wounded several times and died in a day or two. I never knew how he came to be in the Australian service.

Those two and myself were the only Americans I knew of in this prison camp—whether in Canadian, Australian or French service. The other two had been captured in uniform, so there was no chance of their being released.

Dulmen was very near the Dutch border, and as it was quite easy to get out of the camp, attempts at escape were frequent. Most of those who ran away were brought back, though. The Germans were so easy on those who tried to run away that I almost thought they were encouraging them. One chap was doing his 10 days in the guardhouse for the sixth time while I was there—that is, he had just about completed his period of detention. He claimed that the sixth time he had really got across the border, and was arrested in a little town by the Dutch authorities and turned over to the Germans. That is against the law in most countries, but he swore it was the truth. I am not so sure myself. He got away for the seventh time while I was at Dulmen and was not returned.

Ten days in the guardhouse is not such a light punishment after all, because water three times a day is all the prisoner receives during that time, but it is pretty mild compared to some of the things the Huns do.

One morning I thought for sure I was going cafard. I was just fed up on the whole business, and sick of doing nothing but suffer. So I strolled along, sticking my head into barracks doors, sometimes trying to have a talk, other times trying to pick a fight. It was all one to me, I just wanted something to do. I found what I wanted, all right.

I had quite a talk with a sentry in front of a barracks. It must have lasted three-quarters of an hour. He did not know what I was calling him, and I did not know what he was calling me. I could have handled him all right, but another sentry came up on my blind side and grabbed me, and the talk was over.

They dragged me to the commander of the camp, and he instructed them to give me a bath. So they took me to the bathhouse, where I was stripped and lashed. All the time they were whipping me, I was thinking what a joke it was on me, because I had been looking for excitement and had got more than I wanted, so I laughed, and the Huns thought I was crazy sure.

Now the Germans have a kind of blue salve, on the order of soft soap. When you rub it on your face and take it off with a stick, it gives you as close a shave as any barber could. So they smeared it all over me, and I quit laughing. It felt like lye where I had been lashed. I was dumped into a vat of hot water, and at the same time my clothes were given a boiling, which was good for them.

When I came out of that bath there was not a hair on my body, except my head. I was just like a peeled onion, but far weaker. And how I did itch when the hair began to sprout again a few days later! It was a torture that lasted, I can tell you.

Then I was forced into my wet clothes and marched to the barracks. This bath and the stroll through the snow in wet clothes just about did for me. Nowadays when I sit in a draft for a second and catch cold, I wonder that I am still alive to catch it. Having gone through Dixmude and the Dardanelles and the sinking of the Georgic, and four German prison camps, and a few other things—I shall probably trip over a hole in the church carpet and break my neck. That would be my luck.

The Russians were very fond of this blue salve. As they did most of the cooking and were near the bathhouses, they had a fine opportunity for stealing lots of it. What they used it for I do not know, but their barracks were full of it.

There were all the diseases you can think of in this camp, including black cholera and typhus, and somebody was always dying. We had to make coffins from any wood we could find. So it was not long before we were using the dividing boards from our bunks, pieces of flooring and, in fact, the walls of the barracks. The officers were quartered in corrugated iron barracks, so they had to borrow wood from us for their coffins. We would make the box and put the body in it, give it as much service as we could in the way of prayers and hymns, and put it away in a hole near the barracks. There was so much of it that a single death passed unnoticed.

One morning the German sentries came to our barracks—they never came singly—and told us that an officer was going to review the prisoners, and ordered us to muster up, which we did. I was the last man out of the barracks, and on account of my wounds I was slower than the rest.

You understand, I had had no medical treatment except crepe paper bandages and water; my wounds had been opened by swimming from the Georgic to the Moewe, and they had been put in terrible shape in the coal bunkers. On account of the poor food and lack of treatment they had not even started to heal. Incidentally, the only cloth bandages that any of us had were what we would tear from our clothes, and I have seen men pick up an old dirty rag that someone else had had around his wound for a long time, and bandage his own wounds with it.

So it was all I could do to drag myself along. The officer noticed that I was out of line, and immediately asked my name and nationality. When he heard "American," he could not say enough things about us, and called me all the swine names he could think of.

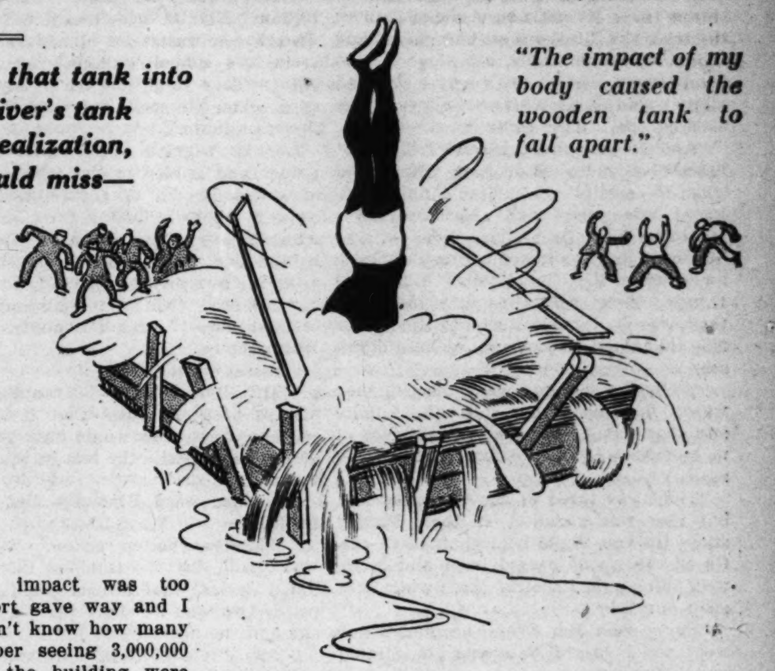
MOST THRILLING MOMENTS IN THE .. LIVES OF FAMOUS DARE-DEVILS ..

Woman hanging by her toes from trapeze high in air discovered that tank into which she was expected to dive was not there—Another high diver's tank collapsed when he struck it, and a third experienced the awful realization, when flying through the air, that he had miscalculated and would miss—"Dare Devil" Schreyer's story of how he made the German Crown Prince come to terms. :: :: :: ::



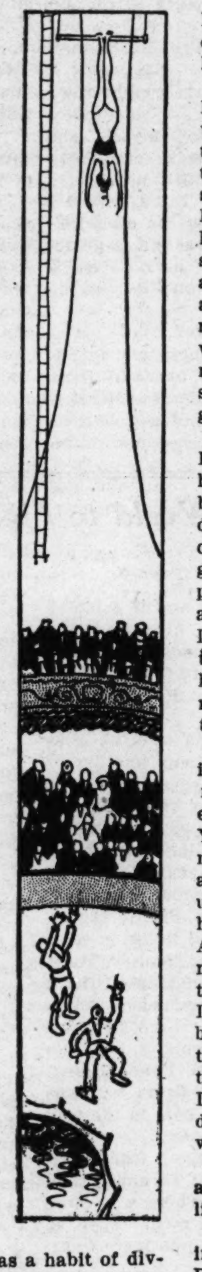
"The impact of my body caused the wooden tank to fall apart."

By Karl K. Kitchen

THERE was held recently in New York a "world's congress" of dare-devils. A dozen of the most famous men and women who make their living by performing various death-defying, hair-raising "stunts" for the entertainment of less adventurous mortals, gathered together and for a week displayed their utter contempt for the law of gravitation and other laws. It was the first gathering of its kind.

It is no reflection on their ability and daring, however, to say that for most persons the thrill has gone out of their performances. Some of the performers themselves admit it. With thousands of men going to death with reckless abandon on the war fronts of Europe, with aviators performing unheard-of "stunts" merely as a part of their day's work, the public has become hardened to the point that it can witness high dives, loop the loops and other feats with scarcely a quiver.

There are some 2000 men and women in the United States who make a living by performing reckless stunts, and most of them have been doing it for years without serious accident. Chief among those at Madison Square Garden was Dare-Devil Schreyer, whose "death-defying stunt" of catapulting himself through the air to a tiny tank more than a hundred feet away from the end of a chute which he traverses on a bicycle is recognized "in the profession" as the greatest of all dare-devil acts.



"When I looked down just before diving I discovered that the tank was not below me."

Next in importance, perhaps, was Nervo, who calls himself "The Human Comet." Nervo, whose real name is Albert Gorman, has a habit of diving 60 or 70 feet to a wooden skidway, which he strikes on his chest. In the opinion of many, his "stunt" is even more dangerous than Schreyer's. For Schreyer dives in water, while Nervo takes the full force of his fall on wooden planks.

The Great Calvert, who is a high-wire walker; Cuba Crutchfield, "king of the lasso and lariat;" Miss Mae O'Loughlin, the world's champion novelty high diver, and Capt. Scholl were also in attendance. Capt. Scholl is famous as a lion tamer and his particular feat is riding bareback on one of his pets. Miss O'Loughlin's "stunt" is more spectacular. She is suspended by her toes some 80 feet above a shallow tank of water and drops headforemost into it.

There were two famous high divers at the congress—Charles A. Bigney of Boston and Kearny P. Speedy, as well as two loop-the-loop and leap-the-gap performers. In addition, the four Lukens, who have a spectacular casting act, were in attendance.

"It's all in the day's work," said Nervo. "I can dive on my chest twice a day, seven days a week, 52 weeks of the year. However, I made one dive that I will never forget, and on that occasion I had enough thrills to last me for all time.

"The owners of the Masonic Building in Chicago wanted to advertise their new structure and they engaged me to dive from the twelfth floor—136 feet—to my skidway. That was back in 1910. I attempted it, and I was in the hospital for eight months as a result. I made the dive all right, and I landed on my chest, exactly as I intended, but the impact was too much for the skidway. Its support gave way and I was buried in the wreckage. I don't know how many ribs were broken, but I remember seeing 3,000,000 stars. However, the owners of the building were greatly pleased. It was a great advertisement!"

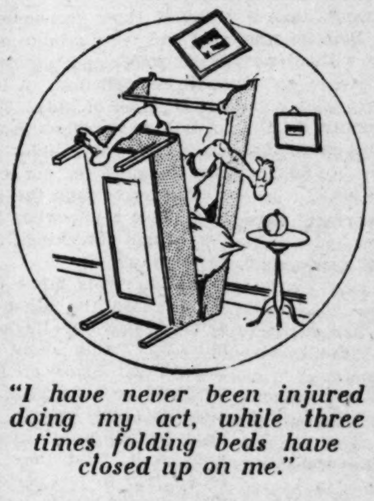
"My most thrilling moment?" repeated Charles A. Bigney. "I hardly know off hand. I've been doing high-diving stunts for 26 years, but I have had more black and blue marks than thrills. Still, the night I dove 90 feet into a wooden tank with only four and one-half feet of water, only to have its sides burst, gave me a thrill I won't forget in a hurry. The impact of my body caused the wooden tank to fall apart and instead of coming to the surface with a smile I found myself floundering on the floor. Of course, the water broke my fall. Otherwise I would have been killed outright, but it was a bit nerve racking. And I have a scar or two to this day as a result of it."

"Something like that happened to me," interrupted Speedy, Bigney's high-diving rival. "It was on Washington's birthday, eight years ago, and right here in New York, at the American Theater. I was making a 90-foot dive at every performance, and doing very nicely, thank you, until that fatal night. I believe I must have celebrated George's birthday too well. At any rate, the moment after I began my dive I knew that I would never reach the tank. I had miscalculated the distance. If I had known how to fly I would have been all right, but my efforts to learn at the moment were futile. My legs struck the edge of the tank, with the result that I had 126 stitches taken in them, and I didn't do any more diving that year. I was properly thrilled, believe me."

"And your most exciting moment?" I asked, turning to Miss O'Loughlin, who had joined the little group of dare-devils.

"The day I made my first high dive, in Boston, back in 1909," replied the 'World's Champion Novelty High Diver.' The moment just before I took the plunge was terrible. I felt that I'd have to quit, but I was afraid to. So I said to myself, it's a short life but a merry one, and dove. When I heard the crowd cheering I knew all was well. But wait a minute," she went on, "that wasn't the most thrilling moment. You know, I am hoisted 90 feet in the air while I hang from the trapeze with my toes. Well, one day when I looked down just before diving I discovered that the tank was not below me. Talk about a cold chill running up and down one's spine! I thought what a wonderful press story it would make, too. But as luck would have it, I was able to hang on until the trapeze was lowered and then hoisted to its proper place. Still, I wouldn't go through it again for a good deal."

"Your turn now," I said, looking at Cuba Crutchfield, the Lariat and Lasso King.



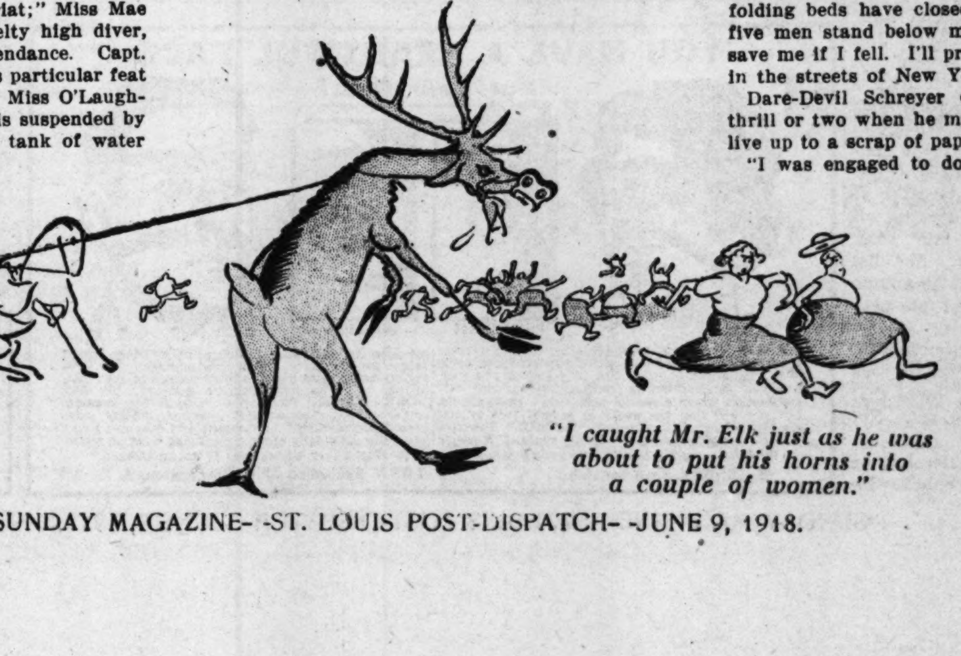
"I have never been injured doing my act, while three times folding beds have closed up on me."

"Well, I guess I'm to get my thrills pretty soon, for I'm in the draft," answered the Oklahoma cowboy, who, by the way, is a cousin of Will Rogers. "Still, I've had a thrill or two in some of the roundups out in Wyoming. And the day I roped a wild elk at Victor, Colo., I had a genuine A No. 1 thrill. You see, the Elks at Victor had arranged a barbecue and they had planned to kill a couple of wild elks along with the steers. Well, one of the wild elks broke out of the pen and charged the crowd. It happened that I was on horseback and had my lariat handy and I caught Mr. Elk just as he was about to put his horns into a couple of women. It was a close shave, the closest I ever want to have. Naturally, I made quite a hit with the women folks."

"You boys are spinning so many fairy tales that I'm going to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth," interrupted the Great Calvert, whose high life on a high wire brings him fame and fortune. "I'm safer on my high wire, 80 feet above the ground than I am in bed. I know, because I have never been injured doing my act, while three times folding beds have closed up on me. I have four or five men stand below me with a net, but it wouldn't save me if I fell. I'll probably be run over by a Ford in the streets of New York."

Dare-Devil Schreyer confessed to experiencing a thrill or two when he made the German Crown Prince live up to a scrap of paper at Spandau, back in 1907.

"I was engaged to do my stunt at Spandau," said Schreyer, "but the German manager refused to pay me every night as he agreed to and I refused to perform for the Prince until I got my money. The Crown Prince was the maddest white man I ever saw, but he was nutty to see my act and dug down in his pocket and paid the money himself. And I heard from very good authority that he was highly annoyed because I didn't kill myself."



"I caught Mr. Elk just as he was about to put his horns into a couple of women."

When Tillyannie Licked the Gooseites

him,' I says. 'And she don't need him for pertection, nuther, so long as I'm around,' I says.

"And, as I was a-sayin', I never seen sich a time. It got noised around about the trick the Slinker boys had played and about Tillyannie ridin' old Jigger. The whole crowd seemed to git sorter still and white. And the Gooseites—well, they was skeered. Jist plain, ordinary skeered.

"And if you could a-saw Tillyannie! Lawzee! She looked like she always did when the spellin' got excitable, only more so. I was purty nigh afeerd, myself—afeerd for her. Deep down under all that bloomin' and excitement I could see a awful ca'm that could mean a heap of things. Ever' word was measured, and they wasn't a move made by the other side that them flashin' eyes of hern didn't see.

"Well, the spellin' went on till they wasn't but one of our side left standin' and that was Tillyannie. All the rest of us had gone down to defeat, as the feller says.

"They was three of the Gooseites left, but they was a-shakin' in their Sunday shoes till you would hear their teeth rattle as the words passed back and forth, with Tillyannie a-spellin' three while they spelt one apiece.

"Purty soon Jim Akers, he missed and went down, leavin' Sam and Joe Slinker and Tillyannie.

"Law-zee! If you could jist a-saw Tillyannie!

"Well, it shore looked as if they was a-goin' to plumb swaller the old spellin' book and a piece of the dictionary, when, all of a sudden, Sam, he come up agin one of the words with six syllables to it. He spelt the fust syllable and fell back in the traces. He tried again and fell back a little harder. He had shore struck a snag and had jist one more trial at it. I could see that he was a-getherin' hisself fer a hard, steady pull that would take it plumb out by the roots or that he was aimin' to scoot over the top without nobody seein' how he done it.

"He tried scootin'.

"'Mr. Blymm," says Tilyannie to the Goose Creek teacher who was takin' his turn at givin' out the words, 'would you keer to have that word spelt agin?'

"'I reckon it was spelt correct,' says Blymm.

"'Would you please have it spelt agin?' says Tillyannie.

"'I reckon it was spelt'——

"With that our crowd riz like one person. Even little Timmie Tidwell, who was jist 6 years old, goin' on 7.

"'Set down,' says Tillyannie, without lookin' at us.

"We set down.

"'I'm waitin', Mr. Blymm,' says Tillyannie.

"He give her jist one good, searchin' look, and gen-tull-men! if he didn't order Sam to spell it agin, loud and slow and distinct.

"'There,' says Tillyannie. 'I knowed it was wrong.'

"'You'd like to know where that brother of yours is, I reckon,' Sam throwed as he set down.

"'He'll let you know that hisself, tomorrer,' says Tillyannie.

"Then the spellin' went on agin. Sam, he set there, mad plumb through. Joe, he stood up with his eyes a-buggin' out till you could a-knocked 'em off with a stick. He expected ever' minute to git his finish, as the feller says. We didn't none of us have no fear about our side. We had jist the same as licked Goose Creek already. But it was interestin' to see how easy Tillyannie could rattle off them words, a-spellin' 'em one after t'other, quicker than a wink. She jist caught 'em on the fly as they come frum Mr. Blymm's mouth and tossed 'em over her shoulder, done to a turn.

"But Joe, he was holdin' out purty well, too. The Gooseites commenced to perk up a little and Jim Akers, he 'lowed that old Goose Creek wasn't licked yet. Not by a jug full.

"And then, jist at that minute, Joe, he struck a snag somethin' like Sam's. He stopped and stuttered, give it a whack, backed up and tried agin, missin' both times.

"'Now, don't be in a hurry,' says Blymm. Blymm wasn't expected to take sides, but he wasn't jist plumb crazy about seein' his school walloped, so he says agin: 'Take your time fer it, Joseph,' he says. 'You can spell that word if you jist think a minute.'

Joe, he wiggled and twisted and got redder and redder in the face, when all of a sudden, out of the stillness, there come a whisper. Jist a faint kind of a whisper it was, but it was located right behind Joe, where Sam had slipped in after his own lickin'.

"'No fair! No fair!' yells our crowd.

"'Set down!" says Tillyannie, without lookin' at us.

"We set down.

"'Mr. Blymm,' says Tillyannie, 'it has always been the rules that if a person tried to cheat, they would have to git out of the house while the rest of the spellin' was a-goin' on.'

"'It has,' says Blymm. 'But I don't reckon'——

"'Then you better reckon.' Tillyannie was plumb disrespectful, but Blymm was jist a upstart that needed takin' down a peg er two, and we shore was tickled that she had the nerve to do it.

"'Mr. Blymm,' says Tillyannie, 'will you please have Sam Slinker leave the room?'

"'Why,' says Blymm, 'now'——

"'Will you please have him leave?' she axes again, slow and quiet.

"And blame me, if he didn't order Sam out of the house.

"'Now,' says Tillyannie, 'will you please skip that word that Joe got helped with and go on to the next one?'

"But Joe, he couldn't spell the next one, nuther, and had to set down on the third trial.

"Well, there was some doin's, I can tell you, and fer a minute er two they was a reglar rough and-tumble fight right there in the schoolhouse. A lively one, too, fer jist a passel of kids. The Gooseites was as mad as hornets and was a-stingin' any place they could light. But I reckon we was too quick fer 'em some way. Anyhow, we had purty nigh the whole mess of 'em a-layin' in a pile when Mr. Blymm and a few others got things restored to order, as the sayin' is.

"I didn't ride home that night in the wagon with the other kids. I walked along beside old Jigger all them seven miles. But they shore didn't seem more than three. Blame me if they did. I had my hand on his neck a part of the time, a-guidin' him—though Tillyannie didn't need no help and I knowed it. And she knowed it. But they is times when a feller likes to feel pertectin' and when a girl likes fer him to feel that-a-way. That was one of the times.

"'Tillyannie,' I says, 'jist how old air you?'

"'Fifteen, goin' on 16,' she says. There was a ketch er somethin' in her voice.

"'You ain't a-cryin', air you, Tillyannie?' I says.

"'No-no,' she says. 'Sh-shore not.'

"'You air, too,' I says. 'But don't you cry. You shore licked 'em, all right."

"'Yes,' she says, a-perkin' up. "D-didn't we lick 'em, though?'

"'Nobody done it but you,' I says.

"We went on fer a mile er two. 'Reckon the moon is a-goin' to shine?' asked Tillyannie.

"'Reckon it might,' I says, 'if they was any to shine. They ain't no moon right now,' I says.

"'O!' says Tillyannie.

"And we didn't say another word till we was purty nigh to her gate. And then I tuck my life in my hands, as it were, and says: 'Tillyannie,' I says, 'I'm 17, goin' on 18, myself. How long afore you're old enough fer me to commence settin' up with you?' I says.

"'How long afore you're old enough yourself?' she axes.

"'I reckon I ain't fur frum it right now,' I says to her.

"'I reckon the same about myself,' she says. 'Of course,' she says, 'settin' up don't mean nothin' but settin' up.'

"'Course not,' I says. 'But I reckon I can take my chances with the other fellers.' I knowed they was all a-gittin' plumb hawg wild about her. 'With a even start,' I says, 'I reckon I'll bring up somewheres in the race.'

"And that's how it started.

"Well, sir, I jist set there out in the woods that day, a-thinkin' over old times, and plumb fergot that I was a-listenin' till all of a sudden I heerd a gobble so clost it mighty near skeered me. I remembered then, what I was out there fer and commenced to call on my fingers. Cain't nobody beat me a-callin' wild turkeys. Purty soon I heerd it again, a-answerin', and the biggest gobbler I'd saw fer a coon's age come a-bustin' up. He lasted me and Tillyannie purty nigh three days, with dressin'.

"When I went a-draggin' him home, Tillyannie she met me at the door.

"'Honey,' I says, 'they ain't no plots in the woods, nuther. But I ain't a-goin' to let you git beat out of your trip to Californy, nohow.'

"'But we cain't,' Tillyannie commenced, 'with the new land we've been a-buyin' and all the work a'——

"'Yes, we can,' I says. 'Dog gone the work,' I says, pinchin' her arm and gittin' funny. 'Let the gold twist duns do your work,' I says, kotin' a sign er somethin' I had saw up in the city."

"Why, Gobbler Hunter," I said, "all this is a story itself. Write it up,"I encouraged.

"Shucks!" he said. "Write it up yourself, if you want to git fooled. What they want, I tell you, is things that I don't know a darned thing about. Me and Tillyannie is a-goin' fer a trip to Californy and I don't aim to ax no blamed editor fer the money to pay fer it, nuther. If they don't watch out, they won't git to play football with me no more—that is, not fer a while. 'Course, I'm still purty sartin that I can write. Sorter feel it in my bones, as the feller says."

Around the World to Fight Again in Belgium

is the pet of the veterans and is a friend of all—soldier or officer. Also, he is the envy of every small boy along the route, but though he would like to fraternize, he cannot, as the Americans do not understand him.

Mrs. Roze is a chaperon also, as Miss Vanderstraete met Lieut. Lang, another of the party, in Kiev. The young man won her heart and when they reach France they will be married. The youngest member of the party is Madeline Graindorge, who has seen just three weeks of life. Her father is a Belgian, her mother a Russian, and she was born on the Pacific Ocean. Mme LeSoil, a Belgian girl living in Russia, became a bride in that country. Mure Rogius, wife of Sergt. Rogius, is a British woman. Her wedding occurred in Petrograd.

"I am just a private soldier, why do you ask me?" said Fred VandenBroek, one of the few famous Belgian veterans who talk English. Then here is the way he summed up his experiences:

"We fought on the Russian front until Russia quit. We fought at Tarnapol, then we moved to Novisslo. There was more fighting. We lost some men. Then in November, 1917, there was no more fighting.

"Then we went to Kiev to start for Belgium. The Bolsheviki had taken the city. We waited until Feb. 22. Then we went to Vladivostok. There was trouble all the way across Siberia. We were stopped at Omsk. They wanted to disarm us. There was more trouble at Tchita. But here we are."

From San Francisco the fighting world wanderers made their way to an Eastern port, stopping at several cities en route, and were scheduled to sail for France as soon as occommodations could be prepared for them.

At Chicago two of them were left behind. Hundreds of friends were eager that they remain a few hours longer. But the two didn't hesitate; they pitted their legs against steam. Through the yards they ran, dodging trains being shunted back and forth, leaping out of the way of engines.

At last the engineer got the signal of the frantic conductor and stopped the train. The two panting, perspiring veterans leaped aboard. They had won. Their purpose is to get back to the fighting line and they did not dare risk any delay.

YOU HAVE A BEAUTIFUL FACE
But Your Nose?

BEFORE AFTER

IN THIS DAY and AGE attention to your appearance is an absolute necessity if you expect to make the most out of life. Not only should you wish to appear as attractive as possible, for your own self-satisfaction which alone is well worth your efforts, but you will find the world in general judging you greatly, if not wholly, by your "LOOKS." Therefore it pays to "look your best" at all times. Permit no one to see you looking otherwise; it will injure your welfare! Upon the impression you constantly make rests the failure or success of your life. Which is to be your ultimate destiny? My new NOSE-SHAPER, "TRADOS" (Model 24), corrects now ill-shaped noses without operation, quickly, safely and permanently. Is pleasant and does not interfere with one's daily occupation, being worn at night.
Write today for free booklet, which tells you how to correct ill-shaped noses without cost if not satisfactory.

Long Live the King!

I wonder if you could dress Toto, and let me see him somewhere."

"Out! You don't want to go out in that crowd, do you?"

"Why—am I not to go?"

His voice was suddenly quite shaky. He was, in a way, so inured to disappointments that he recognized the very tones in which they were usually announced. So he eyed Nikky with a searching glance, and saw there the thing he feared.

"Well," he said, resignedly, "I suppose I can see something from the windows. Only—I should like to have a really good time occasionally." He was determined not to cry. "But there are usually a lot of people in the place."

There was, after all, little to see from the windows. That part of the place near the palace remained empty and quiet, by order of the King's physicians. And although it was carnival, and the streets were thronged with people, there was little of carnival in the air. The city waited.

Some loyal subjects waited and grieved that the King lay dying. For, although the palace had carefully repressed his condition, such things leak out, and there was the empty and silent place to bear witness.

Others waited, too, but not in sorrow. And a certain percentage, the young and light-hearted, strutted the streets in fantastic costume, blew horns and threw confetti and fresh flowers, still dewy from the mountain slopes. The scenic railway was crowded with merrymakers, and long lines of people stood waiting their turn at the ticket booth, where a surly old veteran, pinched with sleepless nights, sold them tickets and ignored their badinage. Family parties, carrying baskets and wheeling babies in perambulators, took possession of the park and littered it with paper bags. And among them, committing horrible crimes, dispatching whole families with a wooden gun from behind nearby trees and taking innumerable prisoners, went a small pirate in a black mask and sash of scarlet ribbon, from which hung various deadly weapons, including a bread knife, a meat cleaver and a hatchet.

Prince Ferdinand William Otto stood at his window and looked out. Something of resentment showed itself in the lines of his figure. There was, indeed, rebellion in his heart. This was a real day, a day of days, and no one seemed to care that he was missing it. Miss Braithwaite looked drawn about the eyes, and considered carnivals rather common, and certainly silly. And Nikky looked drawn about the mouth, and did not care to play.

Not that Prince Ferdinand William Otto knew he was in revolt. At first it consisted only of a consideration of his promise to the Chancellor. But while there had been an understanding, there had been no actual promise, had there?

Late in the morning Nikky took him to the roof. "We can't go out, old man," Nikky said to him, rather startled to discover the unhappiness in the boy's face, "but I've found a place where we can see more than we can here. Suppose we try it."

"Why can't we go out? I've always gone before."

"Well," Nikky temporized, "they've made a rule. They make a good many rules, you know. But they said nothing about the roof."

"The roof!"

"The roof. The thing that covers us and keeps out the weather. The roof, highness." Nikky alternated between formality and the other extreme with the boy.

"It slants, doesn't it?" observed his highness doubtfully.

"Part of it is quite flat. We can take a ball up there, and get some exercise while we're about it."

So they went to the roof. They went through silent corridors, past quiet rooms where the suite waited and spoke in whispers, past the very door of the chamber where the Council sat in session, and where reports were coming in, hour by hour, as to the condition of things outside. Past the apartment of the Archduchess Annunciata, where Hilda, released from lessons, was trying the effect of jet earrings against her white skin, and the Archduchess herself was sitting by her fire, and contemplating the necessity for flight. In her closet was a small bag, already packed in case of necessity. Indeed, more persons than the Archduchess Annunciata had so prepared. Miss Braithwaite, for instance, had spent a part of the night over a traveling case containing a small boy's outfit, and had wept as she worked, which was the reason for her headache.

The roof proved quite wonderful. One could see the streets crowded with people, could hear the soft blare of distant horns.

"The scenic railway is in that direction," observed the Crown Prince, leaning on the balustrade. "If there were no buildings we could see it."

"Right here," Nikky was saying to himself. "At this very spot. She held out her arms, and I"——

"It looks very interesting," said Prince Ferdinand William Otto. "Of course, we can't see the costumes, but it is better than nothing."

"I kissed her," Nikky was thinking, his heart swelling under his very best tunic. "Her head was on my breast, and I kissed her. Last of all, I kissed her eyes—her lovely eyes."

"If I fell off here," observed the Crown Prince in a meditative voice, "I would be smashed to a jelly, like the child at the Crystal Palace."

"But now she hates me," said Nikky's heart, and dropped about the distance of three buttons. "She hates me. I saw it in her eyes this morning. God!"

They played ball, and the Crown Prince took a lesson in curves. But on his third attempt, he described such a compound curve that the ball disappeared over an adjacent part of the roof, and although Nikky did some blood-curdling climbing along gutters, it could not be found.

It was then that the majordomo, always a marvelous figure in crimson and gold, and never seen without gloves—the majordomo bowed in a window, and observed that if his royal highness pleased, his royal highness' luncheon was served.

Olga Loschek had found the day one of terror. Annunciata had demanded her attendance all morning, had weakened strangely and demanded fretfully to be comforted.

"I have been a bad daughter," she would say. "It was my nature. I was warped and soured by wretchedness."

"But you have not been a bad daughter," the Countess would protest for the thousandth time. "You have done your duty faithfully. You have stayed here when many another would have been traveling on the Riviera, or"——

"It was no sacrifice," said Annunciata, in her peevish voice. "I loathe traveling. And now I am being made to suffer for all I have done. He will die, and the rest of us—what will happen to us?" She shivered.

The Countess would take the cue, would enlarge on the precautions for safety, on the uselessness of fear, on the popularity of the Crown Prince. And Annunciata, for a time at least, would relax. In her new remorse she made frequent visits to the sickroom, passing, a long, thin figure, clad in black, through lines of bowing gentlemen, to stand by the bed and wring her hands. But the old King did not even know she was there.

The failure of her plan as to Nikky and Hedwig was known to the Countess the night before. Hedwig had sent for her and faced her in her boudoir, very white and calm.

"He refuses," she said. "There is nothing more to do."

"Refuses!"

"He has promised not to leave Otto."

Olga Loschek had been incredulous, at first. It was not possible. Men in love did not do these things. It was not possible, that, after all, she had failed. When she realized it, she would have broken out in bitter protest, but Hedwig's face warned her. "He is right, of course," Hedwig had said. "You and I were wrong, Countess. There is nothing to do—or say."

And the Countess had taken her defeat quietly, with burning eyes and a throat dry with excitement.

"I am sorry, highness," she said from the doorway. "I had only hoped to save you from unhappiness. That is all. And, as you say, there is nothing to be done." So she had gone away and faced the night, and the day which was to follow.

The plot was arranged, to the smallest detail. The King, living now only so long as it was decreed he should live, would, in mid-afternoon, commence to sink. The entire court would be gathered in anterooms and salons near his apartments. In his rooms the Crown Prince would be kept, awaiting the summons to the throneroom, where, on the King's death, the regency would be declared, and the court would swear fealty to the new King, Otto the Ninth. By arrangement with the Captain of the palace guard, who was one of the Committee of Ten, the sentries before the Crown Prince's door were to be of the revolutionary party. Mettlich would undoubtedly be with the King. Remained then to be reckoned with only the Prince's personal servants, Miss Braithwaite and Nikky Larisch.

The servants offered little difficulty. At that hour, 4 o'clock, probably only the valet Oskar would be on duty, and his station was at the end of a corridor, separated by two doors from the schoolroom. It was planned that the two men who were to secure the Crown Prince were to wear the palace livery, and to come with a message that the Crown Prince was to accompany them. Then, instead of going to the wing where the court was gathered, they would go up to Hubert's rooms, and from there to the roof and the secret passage.

Two obstacles were left for the Countess to cope with, and this was her part of the work. She had already a plan for Miss Braithwaite. But Nikky Larisch?

Over that problem, during the long night hours, Olga Loschek worked. It would be possible to overcome Nikky, of course. There would be four men, with the sentries, against him. But that would mean struggle and an alarm. It was the plan to achieve the abduction quietly, so quietly that for perhaps an hour—they hoped for an hour—there would be no alarm. Some time they must have, enough to make the long journey through the underground passage. Otherwise the opening at the gate would be closed and the party caught like rats in a hole.

The necessity for planning served one purpose, at least. It kept her from thinking. Possibly it saved her reason, for there were times during that last night when Olga Loschek was not far from madness. At dawn, long after Hedwig had forgotten her unhappiness in sleep, the Countess went wearily to bed. She had dismissed Minna hours before, and as she stood before her mirror, loosening her heavy hair, she saw that all that was of youth and loveliness in her had died in the night. A determined, scornful and hard-eyed woman, she went drearily to bed.

During the early afternoon the Chancellor visited the Crown Prince. Waiting and watching had made inroads on him, too, but he assumed a sort of heavy jocularity for the boy's benefit.

"No lessons, eh?" he said. "Then there have been no paper balls for the tutors' eyes, eh?"

"I never did that but once, sir," said Prince Ferdinand William Otto gravely.

"So! Only once!"

"And I did that beceause he was always looking at Hedwig's picture."

The Chancellor eyed the picture. "I should be the last to condemn him for that," he said, and glanced at Nikky.

He went, shortly after 3 o'clock. And, because he was restless and uneasy, he made a round of the palace, and of the guards. Before he returned to his vigil outside the King's bedroom, he stood for a moment by a window and looked out. Evidently rumors of the King's condition had crept out, in spite of their caution. The place, kept free of murmurs by the police, was filling slowly with people; people who took up positions on benches, under the trees, and even sitting on the curb of the street. An orderly and silent crowd it seemed, of the better class. Here and there he saw police agents in plain clothes, impassive but watchful, on the lookout for the first cry of treason.

An hour or two, or three—three at the most—and the fate of the palace would lie in the hands of that crowd. He could but lead the boy to the balcony, and await the result.

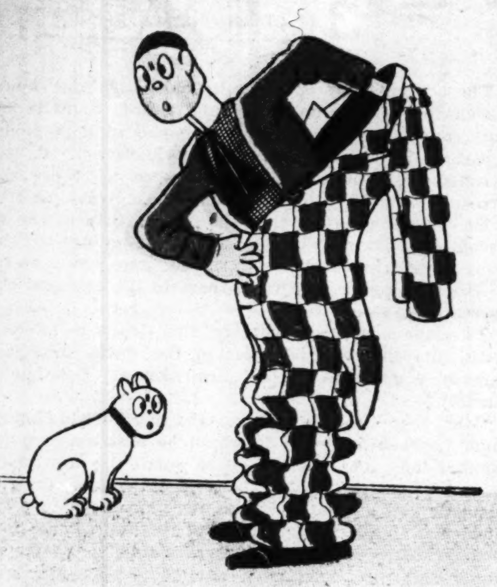
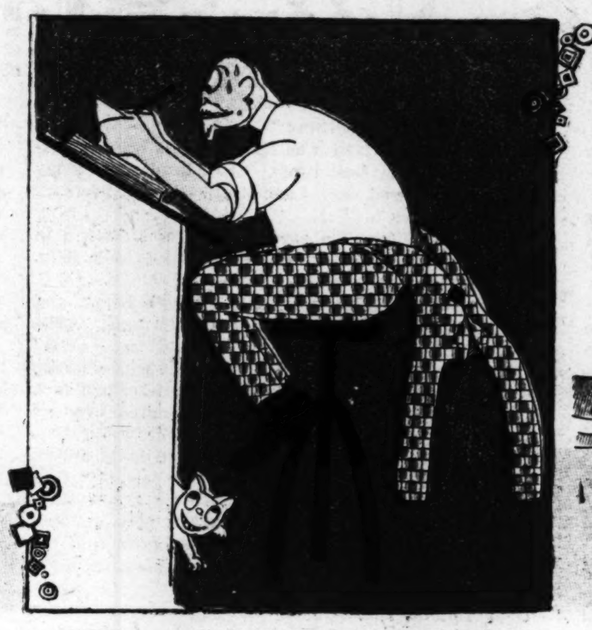
This Face Powder Stays on Better Than Any Other

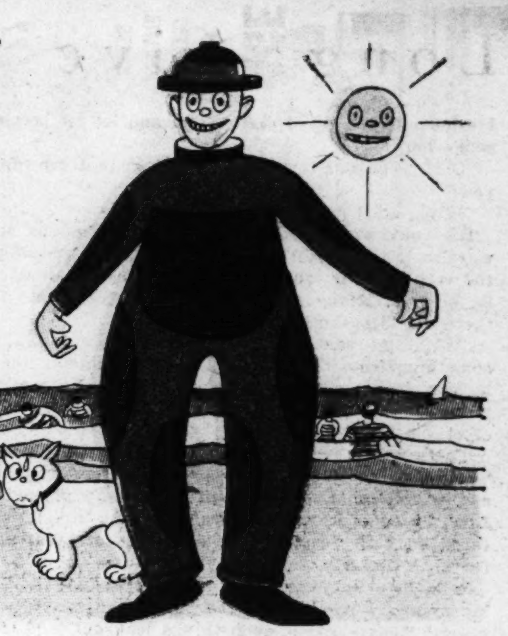
Thousands of women have unsightly complexions because they use injurious face powder. A specialist has at last perfected a pure face powder that really stays on. It does not contain white lead or starchy rice powder to make it stick. Five thousand dollars is offered any chemist who analyzes it and finds it contains any white lead. White lead poisons the skin and rice powder turns into a gluey paste that encourages enlarged pores, blackheads and rice powder pimples. This improved formula contains a medicinal powder doctors use to heal the skin. In fact, this new powder helps to prevent and reduce enlarged pores, blackheads and pimples. It is called La-may (French, Poudre L'Ame). Because it is pure and because it stays on better than any other, it is already sold everywhere. The large size is only fifty cents and the half size twenty-five cents. When you see how wonderfully it beautifies your complexion, you will understand why La-may so quickly became the most popular beauty powder sold in New York.



This is the way you get into it.



When you buckle down to work.



Sun-proof, for the beach.

"Not at all, it's just as practical as can be."

"But look at your underwear. So filmy, so delicate! They won't last any time at all."

"Why, you goose, of course they will. I'll just keep on washing them in Lux."

LUX! It's the magic word that makes it possible for a woman to have the dainty, delicate garments she has longed for all her life. And to have them for constant wear—not just for very special occasions.

Lux comes in clear, pure, transparent flakes. They melt instantly in hot water, and you whisk them into a rich, creamy, bubbling lather. You can dip the sheerest fabrics up and down in this lather without injury. You don't have to rub them at all. The dirt just drops right out into the suds.

Do you know what ruins your dainty underwear so quickly? It's the old-fashioned rub-rub-rub—rubbing cake soap directly on fine materials, then rubbing again to get the soap and dirt out.

Today the bride can fill her trousseau with the finest, daintiest silks and laces—and just so long as she keeps them new with Lux they will wear and wear.

Grocers, druggists and department stores have Lux. Get your package today. Use it for all fine laundering. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

How to wash silk underwear

Just drop a tablespoonful of Lux flakes into half a basinful of boiling or very hot water. Whisk into a rich, creamy lather. Add cold water till luke-warm. Dip the garment through the foamy lather many times—squeeze the suds through it—do not rub. Rinse three times in clear, luke-warm water. Squeeze the water out—do not wring. Dry in the shade. When nearly dry, press with a warm iron—never a hot one.

Use Lux on anything that pure water alone will not harm.

"My skin is so tender"

The new treatment for tender skins

Is your skin so tender that the least exposure to the weather makes it smart and burn—so tender that it is often painful even to wash?

Some people with delicate, tender skins have been misled by the superstition that washing the face with soap is bad for the complexion. Dr. Pusey, the famous skin specialist, in his book on the care of skin, says: "The layer of dirt and fat that such persons accumulate on the skin is a constant invitation to various disorders."

The following Woodbury treatment is just what a sensitive skin needs to keep it active and resistant.

Dip a soft washcloth in warm water and hold it to the face. Then make a warm-water lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap and dip your cloth up and down in it until the cloth is "fluffy" with the soft, white lather. Rub this lathered cloth gently over your skin until the pores are thoroughly cleansed. Then rinse the face with clear, cool water and dry carefully.

Make this treatment a nightly habit. See what a difference it will make in your skin in even ten days—a promise of that loveliness which the regular use of Woodbury's brings to a tender, sensitive skin.

You will find a 25c cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap sufficient for a month or six weeks of this treatment and for general use for this time. Woodbury's is for sale at drug stores and toilet goods counters everywhere throughout the United States and Canada.

Write today for a week's size cake

For 5c we will send you a trial size cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap large enough to last for a week, together with the booklet, "A Skin You Love to Touch," which gives the treatment to use for all of the commoner skin troubles.

For 12c we will send you, in addition, samples of Woodbury's Facial Cream and Facial Powder. Send today to The Andrew Jergens Co., 5510 Spring Grove Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio.

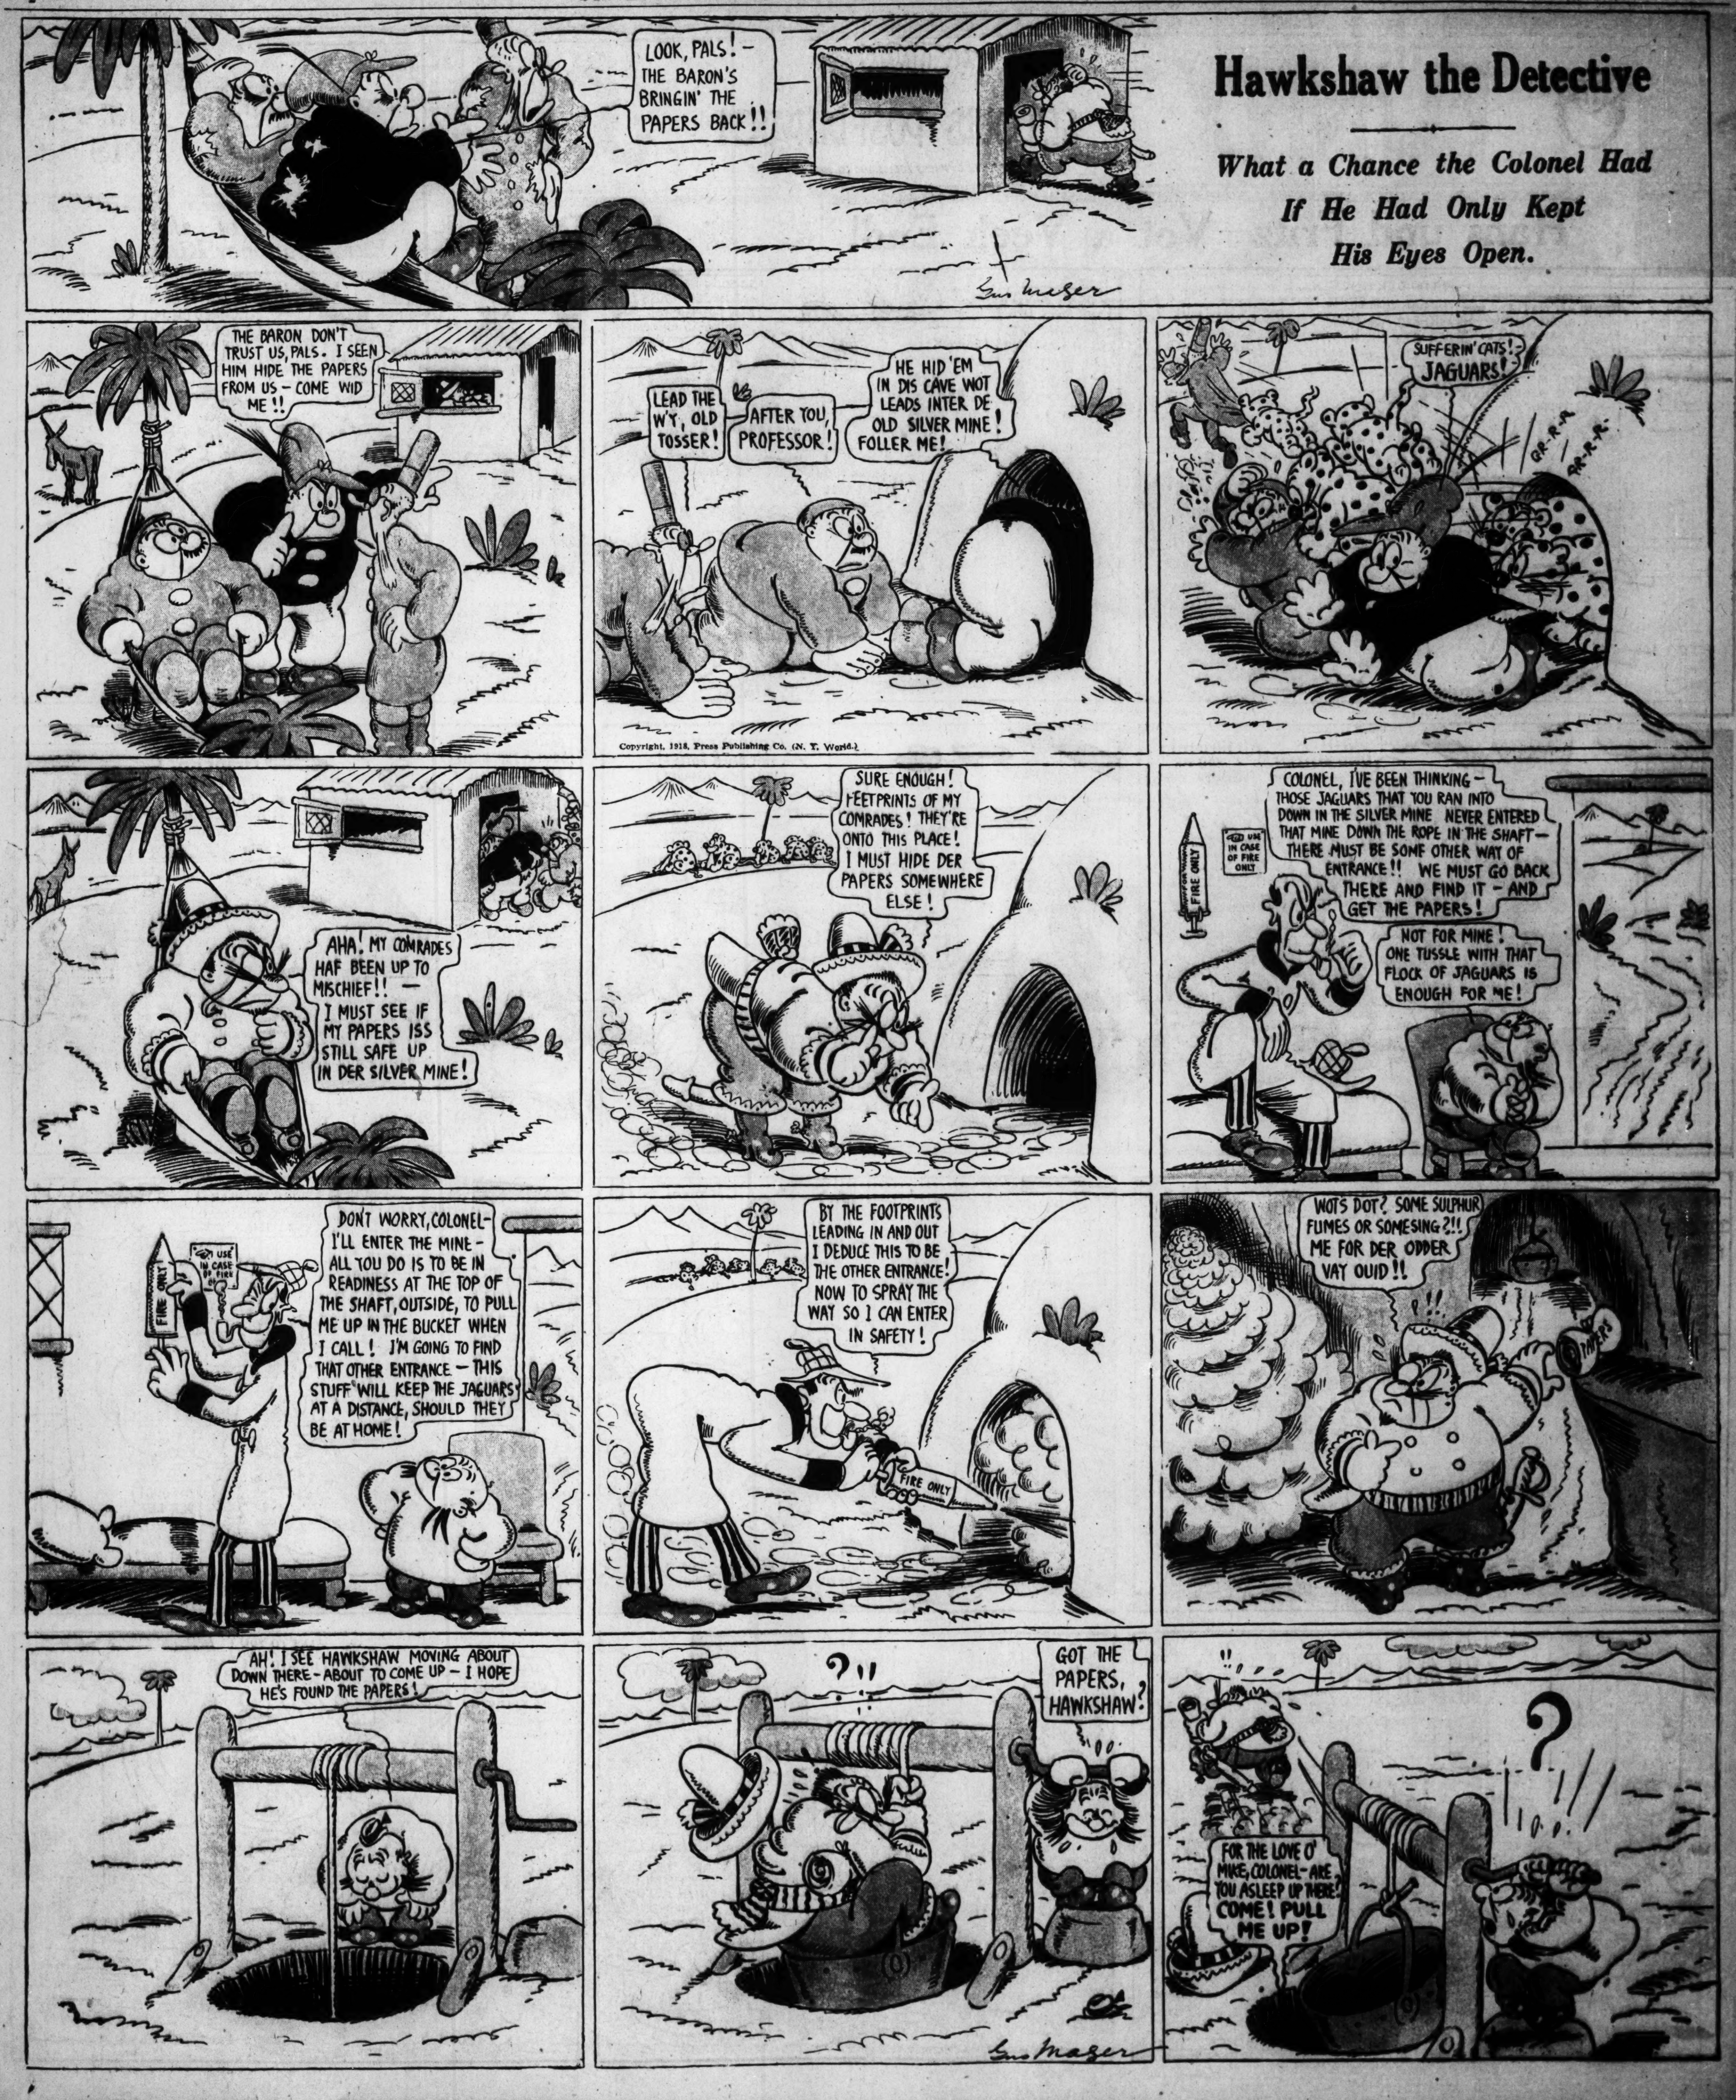
Hawkshaw the Detective

What a Chance the Colonel Had If He Had Only Kept His Eyes Open.



LOOK, PALS! — THE BARON'S BRINGIN' THE PAPERS BACK!!
Gus Mager
THE BARON DON'T TRUST US, PALS. I SEEN HIM HIDE THE PAPERS FROM US — COME WID ME!!
LEAD THE W'Y, OLD TOSSER!
AFTER YOU, PROFESSOR!
HE HID 'EM IN DIS CAVE WOT LEADS INTER DE OLD SILVER MINE! FOLLER ME!
SUFFERIN' CATS! JAGUARS!
GR-R-R
GR-R-R
AHA! MY COMRADES HAF BEEN UP TO MISCHIEF!! — I MUST SEE IF MY PAPERS ISS STILL SAFE UP IN DER SILVER MINE!
SURE ENOUGH! FEETPRINTS OF MY COMRADES! THEY'RE ONTO THIS PLACE! I MUST HIDE DER PAPERS SOMEWHERE ELSE!
COLONEL, I'VE BEEN THINKING — THOSE JAGUARS THAT YOU RAN INTO DOWN IN THE SILVER MINE NEVER ENTERED THAT MINE DOWN THE ROPE IN THE SHAFT — THERE MUST BE SOME OTHER WAY OF ENTRANCE!! WE MUST GO BACK THERE AND FIND IT — AND GET THE PAPERS!
FIRE ONLY
USE IN CASE OF FIRE ONLY
NOT FOR MINE! ONE TUSSLE WITH THAT FLOCK OF JAGUARS IS ENOUGH FOR ME!
DON'T WORRY, COLONEL — I'LL ENTER THE MINE — ALL YOU DO IS TO BE IN READINESS AT THE TOP OF THE SHAFT, OUTSIDE, TO PULL ME UP IN THE BUCKET WHEN I CALL! I'M GOING TO FIND THAT OTHER ENTRANCE — THIS STUFF WILL KEEP THE JAGUARS AT A DISTANCE, SHOULD THEY BE AT HOME!
BY THE FOOTPRINTS LEADING IN AND OUT I DEDUCE THIS TO BE THE OTHER ENTRANCE! NOW TO SPRAY THE WAY SO I CAN ENTER IN SAFETY!
FIRE ONLY
WOT'S DOT? SOME SULPHUR FUMES OR SOMESING?!! ME FOR DER ODDER VAY OUID!!
PAPERS
AH! I SEE HAWKSHAW MOVING ABOUT DOWN THERE — ABOUT TO COME UP — I HOPE HE'S FOUND THE PAPERS!
?!!
GOT THE PAPERS, HAWKSHAW?
Gus Mager
!!
FOR THE LOVE O' MIKE, COLONEL — ARE YOU ASLEEP UP THERE? COME! PULL ME UP!

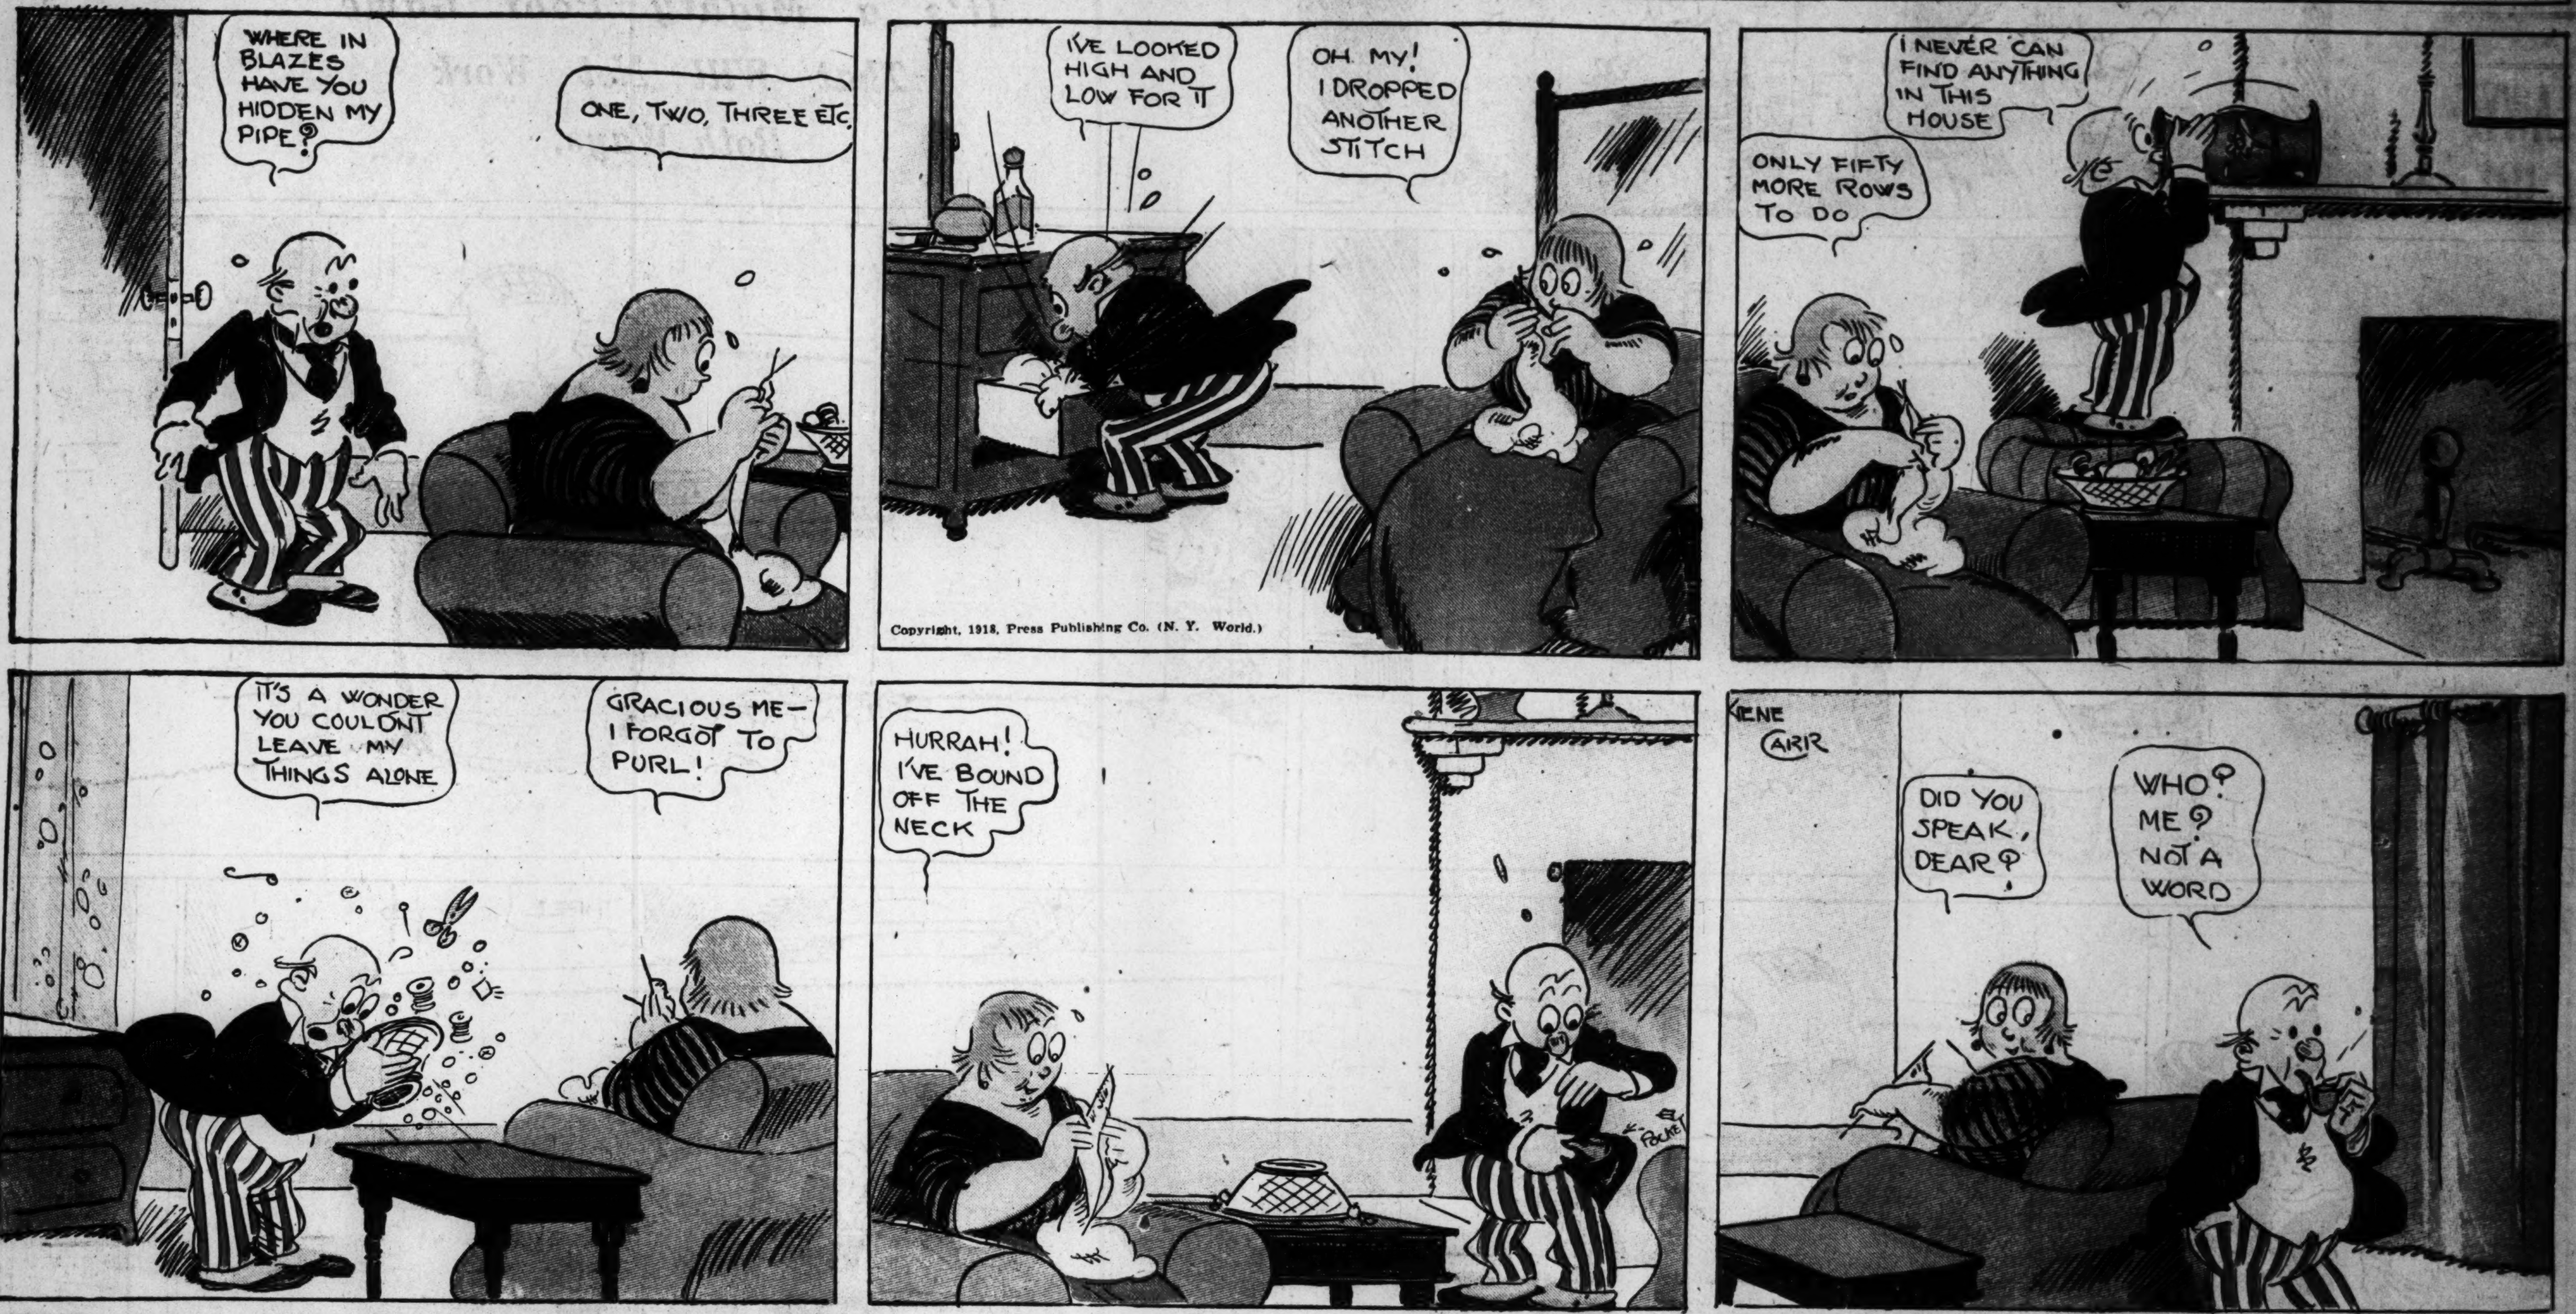
Poor Mr. W.—He Can't Get a Bit of Attention



WHERE IN BLAZES HAVE YOU HIDDEN MY PIPE?
ONE, TWO, THREE ETC.
I'VE LOOKED HIGH AND LOW FOR IT
OH MY! I DROPPED ANOTHER STITCH
I NEVER CAN FIND ANYTHING IN THIS HOUSE
ONLY FIFTY MORE ROWS TO DO
IT'S A WONDER YOU COULDN'T LEAVE MY THINGS ALONE
GRACIOUS ME—I FORGOT TO PURL!
HURRAH! I'VE BOUND OFF THE NECK
POCKET
GENE CARR
DID YOU SPEAK, DEAR?
WHO? ME? NOT A WORD

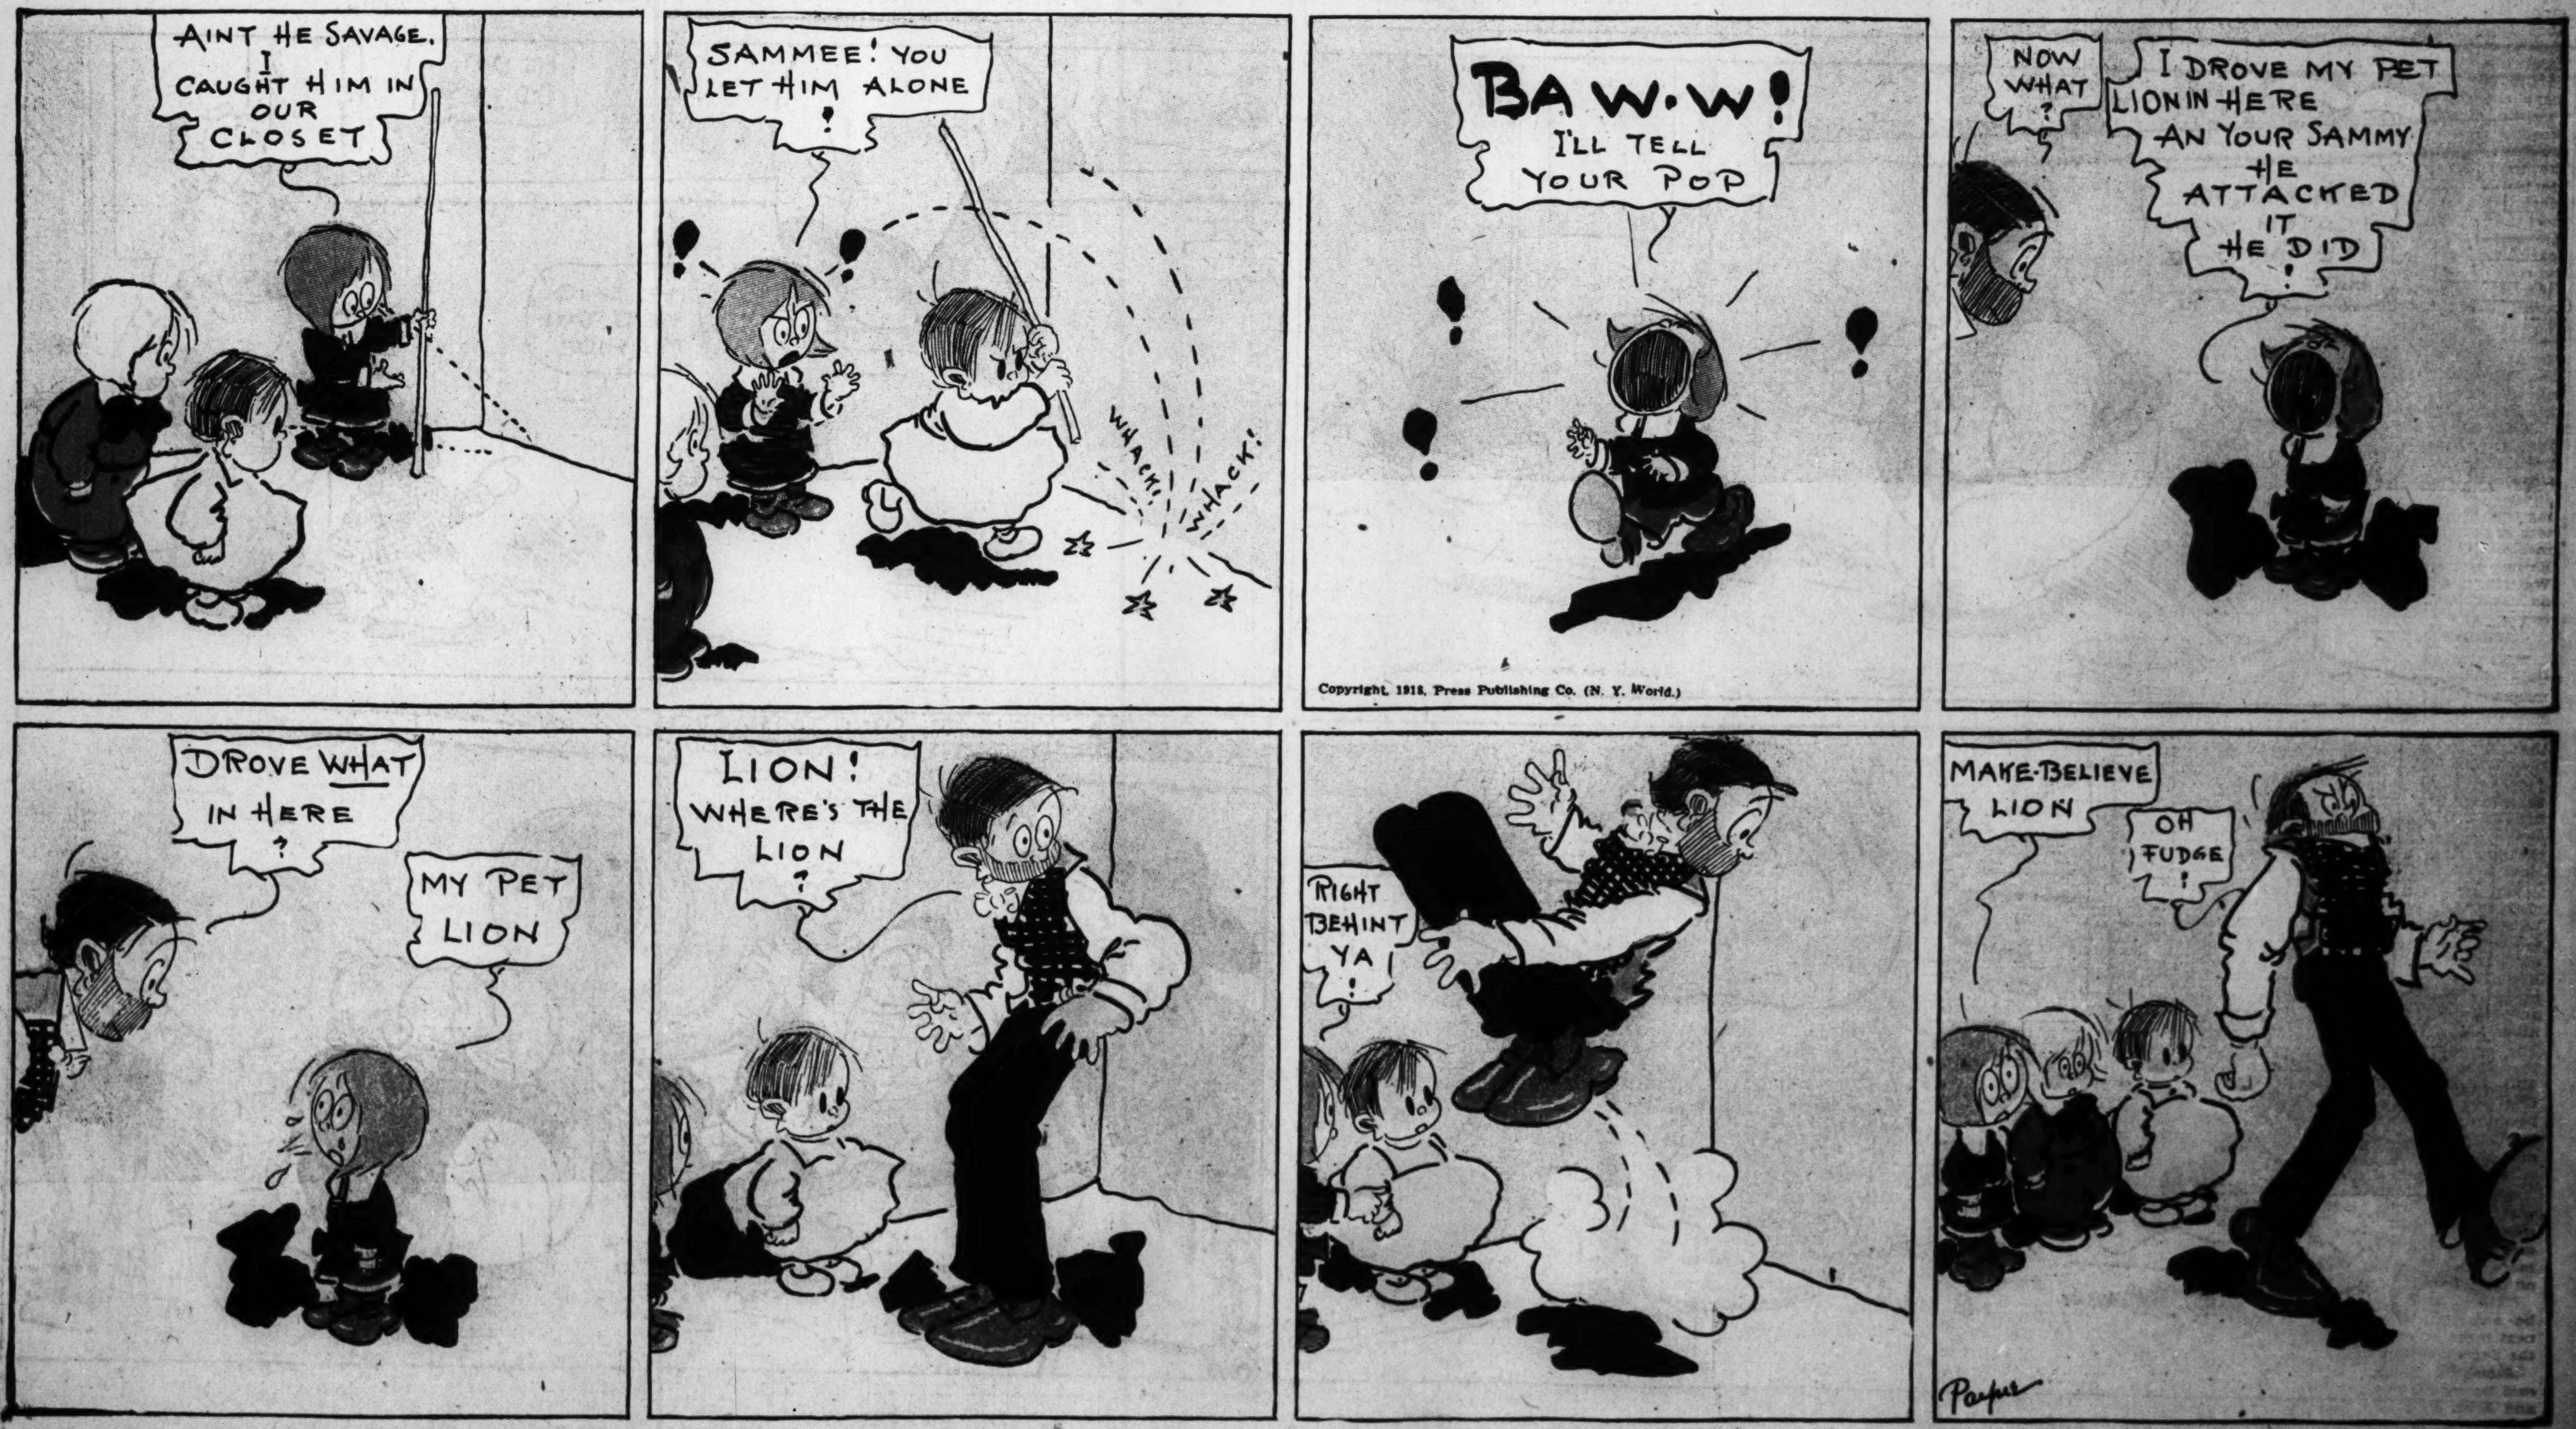
S'Matter, Pop—Sammy Doesn't Care Whose Lion He Fights



AINT HE SAVAGE. I CAUGHT HIM IN OUR CLOSET
SAMMEE! YOU LET HIM ALONE!
WHACK!
WHACK!
BAW-W! I'LL TELL YOUR POP
NOW WHAT?
I DROVE MY PET LION IN HERE AN YOUR SAMMY HE ATTACKED IT HE DID!
DROVE WHAT IN HERE?
MY PET LION
LION! WHERE'S THE LION?
RIGHT BEHINT YA!
MAKE-BELIEVE LION
OH FUDGE!
